PREFACE.

THE meagre story of this community was told for the first hundred years merely as a part of ancient Dover and Exeter. During the century this intervening territory had only briefest mention in the records of those earlier townships. The Pascataqua plantations had no William Bradford or John Winthrop to chronicle their history.

Since the corporate parish existence of Newmarket in 1727, a large fatality seems to have attended her annals. With the exception of a list of marriages beginning in 1774, the earliest town records now to be found, commenced in 1783, and the earliest church records in 1828. Perhaps no other attempt was ever made to write a history with so scanty material. In the absence of records it is impossible to determine accurately what persons were members respectively of town, parish and church. The aim has been to include all whose membership in town, church or parish may be inferred from some action of their own. The Newfields and Lamprey River families worshipped with the Dover and Exeter churches.

It is greatly to be regretted that the collector of the material for this history could not have lived to complete the manuscript according to his original plan of form and arrangement. But the town has reason to be profoundly grateful, and is to be congratulated, that such a wealth of material was gathered by a historian so scholarly, thorough and accurate as Rev. James Hill Fitts, during his long pastorate over the Congregational Church.

The editor has endeavored to carry out the original plan as far as it could be ascertained, and as far as practicable, give in his own words the substance of the topics under consideration. Gaps, where found, have been filled, and noteworthy occurrences since his lamented death added. Subsequent students, it is certain, will find here some materials which will form the background of their fuller histories. It is a satisfaction to have done something to preserve these items of biographical and historical interest. Such work a few persons could have done. Much of the material is already beyond the reach of most students, and is receding still further with every passing year.

Many and appreciative thanks are hereby tendered to all who have rendered valuable assistance in bringing the History to its present completeness.

THE EDITOR.

HISTORY OF NEWFIELDS.

Chapter I.

INTRODUCTORY.

The Hilton brothers of an old English baronial family were thrifty merchants in London. William Hilton came to Plymouth, Mass., November 9, 1621, in the ship Fortune, the first to follow the Mayflower. He was an adherent of the Church of England, but was pleased with the country and the Pilgrim society, as his letter home to his kinsman, by the Fortune, which sailed December 13, 1621, abundantly shows:

Louing Cousin.—At our arriuall at New Plimouth in New England, wee found all our Friends and Planters in good Health, though they were left sicke and weake, with very small meanes; the Indians round about us peaceable and friendly; the Country very pleasant and temperate, yeelding naturally of itself great stores of Fruites, as Vines of diueres sorts in great abundance. There is likewise Walnuts, Chestnuts, Small Nuts and plums, with much Variety of Flowers, Rootes and Herbes, no lesse pleasant than wholesome and profitable. No place hath more gooseberies and strawberries, nor better; timber of all sorts you have in England, doth couer the land, that affords beasts of diuers sorts, and great flocks of Turkies, Quails, Pigeons and Partridges; many great lakes, abounding with fish, fowl, beaver and otters. The sea affords us great plenty of all excellent sorts of sea fish, as the riuers and isles doth variety of wild fowl of most useful sorts. Mines we find to our thinking, but neither the goodness nor Qualitee we know. Better Grain cannot be than the Indian Corne, if we will plant it upon as good ground as a man need desire. Wee are all Freeholders; the Rent-Day doth not trouble us; and all those good Blessings we have, of which and what we list in their Seasons, for taking.

Our Companie are for most Part very religious, honest People. The Word of God sincerely taught us eury Sabbath; so that I know not any thing a contented mind can here want. I desire your friendly care to send my Wife and children to me, where I wish all the Friends I have in England, and so I rest.

Your louing Kinsman,

But William Hilton did not have "a contented mind." By 1631 he had planted "corne" at Kittery, and was corresponding April 18, 1633, with John Winthrop, Jr., of the Massachusetts Bay government. He received many grants of land from Dover and Exeter, uplands and marshes at Oyster and Lamprey rivers, 1636 to 1642. Civil honors also were conferred on him — was commissioner in 1642, and deputy in 1649. Nevertheless he removed to the royal and church settlement of Agamenticus, to which Sir Fernando Gorges gave a town incorporation April 10, 1641, and a city charter, with the name Gorgeana, now York, November 1, 1642. Here he died in 1665 or 1666, leaving a widow, Frances, and children.

Edward Hilton joined the wealthy fraternity of the Fishmongers' Guild, in London, in 1621. In the spring of 1623 he led a company of adventurers, who "set up their stages" and arranged their flakes for fishing at Wecanacohunt on the Pascataqua¹ since known as Dover Point.

This enterprise at Hilton's Point was commercial rather than civil or religious. It scarcely looked for permanence, or recognized either government or church. The planters, however, were manifestly sympathetic with royalty and the established church. The despotic, bigoted, ungainly James Stuart was upon the throne, a "finished specimen of all that a king ought not to be." The colony languished. In 1630 Edward Colcord found only "three houses" on the Pascataqua.

The Plymouth Council granted the Hilton Patent, including Wecanacohunt and Squamscot, March 12, 1629-30, "in consideration that Edward Hilton & his Associates hath already at his and their owne proper costs and charges transported certain servants to plant in New England, . . . where they have already Built some houses and planted Corne, And for that he doth further intend by God's Divine Assistance to transport thither more people and cattle to the good increase, &c."²

Mr. Hilton was put into formal possession of this patent by Thomas Lewis, July 7, 1631.³ Hilton's associates in England were merchants of Bristol, Shrewsbury and other western towns. Thomas Wiggin came over to look after their interests in 1631, and was employed "to begin a Plantation higher up the river for some of Shrewsbury . . . upon a point of land that lieth in the midway betwixt Dover and Exeter." When Wiggin began to make improvements Capt. Walter Neal, agent for the London adventurers, ordered him to desist. "Captain Wiggins intended to have defended his right by the sword. But it seems both the litigants had so much wit in their anger as to wave the battle, each accounting himself to have done very manfully in what was threatened: so as in respect, not of what did, but what might have fallen out, the place to this day retains the formidable name of Bloody Point."¹

Wiggin went to England for recruits and supplies in 1632, and on December 5 Hilton and Neal sent four pumaces and forty men to Pemaquid, Me., against Dixy Bull. The Bristol, but not the Shrewsbury, men, March 25, 1633, sold two thirds of their interests in the double patent, now divided into twenty-five shares, to the Puritan lords, Tay, Teal and Brooke, and Wiggin is continued in the agency. Winthrop calls these forty lords, knights and gentlemen, "honest men" and styles Wiggin "governor at Pascataquack under the Lords Tay and Brook." Wiggin landed at Salem October 10, 1633.

William Hilton's wife and two children arrived in the ship Anne July, 1623. One of the children was baptized in 1624 by Rev. John Lyford, who had received Episcopal ordination. This baptism of an Episcopal child in the Pilgrim congregation was the commencement of the trouble with Lyford. About this time Hilton joined his brother at Pascataqua.

History affirms that Edward Hilton came to Dover Point in the spring of 1623. Daniel Neal's description of a Puritan portrays what we know of Edward Hilton. He says, "If a man maintained his steady adherence to the doctrines of Calvin and the Synod of Dort; if he kept the Sabbath and frequented sermons; if he maintained family religion, and would neither swear nor be drunk, nor comply with the fashionable vices of the times, he was called a Puritan."

The religious no less than the civil character of a community depends largely upon its founders. The planters of Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay were impelled by advanced views of the sacred rights of conscience. Purposes enkindled at the fires of their intense love for personal and social freedom inspired them. They fled from the intolerance and persecution of the old world, to found in the new world a free church and a free commonwealth—"a church without a bishop, a state without a king."

But the settlers on the Pascataqua were never persecuted. Their early patrons were Church-of-England men and they themselves were mostly conformists, not Puritans, and were not harassed by either the established government or the established religion of Great Britain. The Hilton brothers were "fishmongers of London," and came here to fish, to trade, to plant vines and dig mines.

The ecclesiastical history of New Hampshire properly commences with the year 1633. Ten years had passed since the settlement began at Pascataqua. The English proprietorship had changed hands. The colony had not prospered under Episcopal patronage. The owners now desired to make New Hampshire Puritan. In the autumn of 1633 they sent over to Dover Point a number of families from the West of England. Hilton welcomed his friend Wiggin with this accession of about thirty colonists. These families adopted the Congregational form of worship, and built the first meeting-house in the state in 1634 at Dover Point. William Leveridge, who came with the colonists, became pastor, the first one of New Hampshire, and was ardent, industrious and spiritually enterprising. But he remained at Dover less than two years. His three successors were ambitious politicians, prelatical demagogues, and, worse than all, immoral refugees from England and Massachusetts. During these disorders Edward Hilton contended efficiently for good government and religious order. He was the personal friend and confidential correspondent of Gov. John Winthrop in 1638—a testimonial of great significance. His neighbors of Massachusetts thought him the man most entitled to confidence in the colony. And when at length the better elements prevailed, and in 1641 New Hampshire entered the confederation of the four New England colonies, Edward Hilton was the first named in the list of magistrates. He was also made deputy for Dover in 1644. Such was the man who first settled at Newfields, on the west bank of the beautiful Squamscot. Here he had built his house and occupied land in 1639.

In 1635 the planters at Dover claim to have purchased the marshes at Lamprey River.

In 1636 the Bay government erected their Bound or Possession House at Winnecowett—now Hampton—made known in 1638 at Wecanacohunt their intention “to survey the utmost limits of their patent and make use of them,” and sent expeditions to establish their northern boundary at Aquedoctan—now Lakeport—in 1639 and 1652.

In 1637 George Burdett came to Dover and supplanted Thomas Wiggin, having been chosen a chief magistrate by a combination. The troubles of 1637 and onward were occasioned by the conflicting English and Scotch theories of civil and religious polity—on the one hand imperialism and episcopacy, and on the other hand republicanism and presbytery.

In October, 1638, a church was formed at Dover under Hansard Knollys, a graduate of Emmanuel College, ordained January 30, 1729, who had renounced his Episcopal ordination and joined the Puritans.

Thomas Larkham, a Churchman, succeeded in 1640. Upon request the governor and assistants of Massachusetts commissioned Simon Bradstreet, Hugh Peters and Timothy Dalton to inquire into the difficulties. Both sides were found to be in fault. The matter was settled by one party rescinding the excommunication, and the other the fines and banishment. The celebrated Hugh Peters testified before Parliament in 1647 that he had not seen a drunken man, nor heard a profane oath, during his residence of five years in New England.

In 1641 Dover and Strawberry Bank—now Portsmouth—joined Massachusetts, and Hampton was joined June 2 of that year to the jurisdiction of Ipswich.

When Exeter put herself under Massachusetts and was received September 8, 1642, the Bay colony, which adopted for herself in 1631 church membership as a convenient testimonial of fitness for the exercise of the elective franchise, required no such test of the New Hampshire towns.

In 1643 the County of Norfolk was formed, comprising the towns of Salisbury, Haverhill, Hampton, Strawberry Bank, Dover and Exeter. The county continued till the four New Hampshire towns were severed by royal charter from Massachusetts in 1679.

From 1652 public worship in Dover and Exeter was sustained for many years by a rate upon pipe bolts, hogshead staves, lumber and mill-sites. Coopers, lumbermen and mill owners were efficient members of the parish.

The Hilton family now worshipped with the First Parish in Exeter. As the banished John Wheelwright had left his pastorate in 1643 and the dubious Stephen Bachiler had been refused settlement by the General Court in 1644, an endeavor was later made to purchase Mr. Wheelwright's house and land as a parsonage for Mr. Nathaniel Norcrosse, a "university scholar" in Massachusetts. But the "university scholar" eluded their grasp.

The Rev. Samuel Dudley, son of Gov. Thomas Dudley, was settled at Exeter in 1650. In 1652 Edward Hilton, Sr., was "requested to go along with Mr. Dudley to the General Court to assist him," and he no doubt was helpful in religious matters. The same year Edward Hilton, Jr., was among the "surveyors or overseers appointed to build" the second meeting house in Exeter; and he also further assisted the minister by marrying in due time the clergyman's daughter. The son, however, was more in sympathy with prelacy than were either the father or father-in-law. In 1665 Edward Hilton, Jr., and John Foulsham were among the few principal actors in trying to procure the taking off of hands from the Bay government. Their prayer was that they might be "gouverned by the laws of England, and enjoy both the sacraments of which they have been too long deprived." Here are both imperialism and episcopacy. Their notions of the ordinances were "that all persons of good and honest liues and conversations should be admitted to the sacrament of the Lord's Supper according to the Book of Common Prayer, and their children to baptism."¹ It is evident New England institutions were not founded on such ritualistic basis. The position of the younger Hilton and his associates was firmly resisted. But the action of the General Court, May 19, 1699, releasing the elder Hilton from the imposition of county rates, must be interpreted as bearing witness to their respect for his continued loyalty to Puritan ideas of civil and religious polity.

aged patriarch died in the beginning of the year 1671. He had lived in the colony nearly half a century. It is supposed that he was buried in his own grounds on the sunset bank of the Squamscot river. Here in this field of grass the first planter of New Hampshire, the founder of Dover, the early resident of Exeter and the first settler of Newfields, with many of his descendants of seven generations, slumber together.

Chapter II.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS AND MINISTERS.

All roads in New Hampshire, historically speaking, lead to the Pascataqua. Capt. Martin Pring of Bristol, England, "a skillful navigator," sailed for America in the year 1603. He entered the channel of Pascataqua for three or four leagues, and with his shipmates landed on the soil of New Hampshire. It is no longer doubtful that other navigators had preceded Capt. John Smith in exploring these shores; but Captain Smith was the first to map out and give locality and name to his discoveries. In the early summer of 1614 that remarkable voyager cruised along the Atlantic coast from Penobscot to Cape Cod. He says, "Accominticus and Piscataquack are two convenient harbors for small barks, and a good country within their craggy cliffs." Returning to England in August, 1614, Captain Smith presented his map to Prince Charles, afterward the ill-fated Charles First, who graciously gave the country the name of New England.

There is no evidence that Capt. John Smith ever landed on the Isles of Shoals. A rude cairn of rough stones, however, thrown promiscuously together and covered with lichens, on the highest point of Appledore, commemorates his exploits. He is also remembered by a triangular monument of marble erected in 1864, on one of the highest eminences of Star Island. The shaft, which is eight or ten feet high, rests on a pedestal of rough granite, and is covered with three Moslem heads — now falling from their places — to represent the three Turks slain by Smith. Inscriptions on the three sides of the pillar eulogize at length this hero of the land and sea. The whole is surrounded by a railing to protect it from vandal hands.

King James, November 3, 1620, signed a patent incorporating "The Council Established at Plymouth, in the County of Devon, for the Planting, Ruling, Ordering and Governing of New England in America." Sir Fernando Gorges, president, and Capt. John Mason, secretary, were among the most enterprising members. To this Plymouth Council was entrusted the management of the whole country between the fortieth and forty-eighth degrees of latitude. Their grand Charter became the great civil basis of all the subsequent grants and patents by which New England was divided. Nothing is more evident today than that these grants were so indefinitely described as to occasion interminable controversies. The Patent itself manifestly invaded the chartered rights of the Virginia Company granted in 1606.

Contrary to their expectations the Pilgrims made their ever-famous landing within the limits of the Plymouth Council. They had intended to settle within the boundaries of the Virginia Company.

The first ship which followed the Mayflower in the interest of the Plymouth colony was the Fortune, arriving November 11, 1621, and bringing thirty-five colonists. Among these was William Hilton, from London. His wife and two children came over in the ship Anne, which with the Little James, built for the Plymouth colony, arrived in July, 1623. The same year the lands at Plymouth were assigned in severalty to be cultivated by families. William Hilton, as coming in the Fortune, was allotted "one acre lying to the sea eastward." His wife and two children who arrived in the Anne received "three acres beyond the brook to Shawberry Hill." John Lyford and friends affirmed "that the first occasion of the quarrel with them was the baptizing of Mr. Hilton's child, who was not joined to the church at Plymouth." As Hilton's name does not appear among those present at the division of cattle in 1627, he must have removed from Plymouth, and was now at the settlements of the Pascataqua river.

The Plymouth Council, August 10, 1622, granted to Gorges and Mason the territory lying between the Merrimack and the Kennebec, which they called Laconia. The year 1623 marks the establishment of a colony of fishery at Pascataqua.¹

David Thomson and his companions landed at Little Harbor. The name Portsmouth was given this settlement by Capt. John Mason, who was treasurer and paymaster of the king's armies, and governor of Portsmouth castle in old Hampshire, England. The next year, 1624, Thomson, dividing his settlement, removed to the island now bearing his name in Boston Bay. His removal, however, did not break up the plantation at Portsmouth.

The settlement at Coheco — Dover — was nearly coincident. The brothers Edward and William Hilton, "fishmongers of London," settled Dover Neck in 1623. These fish merchants must have had an artistic as well as commercial outlook. It is not easy to find a more beautiful location than Hilton's Point or Dover Neck. Both banks of the river and bay are charming. Though the beauties of the scene have been often sung, still fresh descriptions will not exhaust the theme. The Pascataqua settlements, however, progressed but slowly.

One of the earliest acts of friendly interest among the several New England plantations was the breaking up of the profligate establishment at Mt. Wollaston. Thomas Morton and his associates were disorderly, drunken and licentious. He also sold arms and ammunition freely to the Indians, besides teaching them the use of pistol and rapier. The Indians were ready pupils in the use of firearms and soon became more expert than the English. The infant settlements as far as Pascataqua were alarmed. A messenger sent to Morton "in a friendly and neighborly way to admonish him to forbear these courses," was repulsed. A second remonstrance was ineffectual. Morton proved utterly refractory and continued his scandalous practices. Nothing but force could avail. The third messenger sent was "Capt. Miles Standish and some other aid with him." Morton barricaded his house, defied the invaders, and fortified his men with drink. But they were disarmed and dispersed without bloodshed, and their leader was conducted to Plymouth, whence

"Therefore, honorable and worthy countrymen," said Captain Smith to the New Hampshire colonists, "let not the meanness of the word fish be distaste to you, for it will afford as good gold as the mines of Potosi, with less hazard and charge, and more certainty and facility."

he was sent to England by way of the Isles of Shoals in the ship Whale. This was a political expedient, not religious persecution. Morton's extradition was a measure of self-defence in 1628. Edward Hilton of Cochecho showed his sympathy with the Plymouth colony by paying his proportion towards the expense of crushing out this growing mischief — one pound.

The Hiltons were not mere adventurers. They were merchant proprietors with a personal interest in their plantation. This is assigned as a reason for granting Edward Hilton, March 12, 1629–30, lands on the north and on the south of Pascataqua “up to the falls of Squamscot, and three miles into the main land for breadth.” The grant sets forth that Hilton and his associates had, “at their own cost and charges, transported servants, built houses, and planted corn at Hilton's Point, and intend the further increase and advancement of the plantation.” This grant was commonly called Bloody Point, Squamscot, or Hilton's Patent. William Hilton was one of the witnesses July 7, 1631, to the “livery of seizin” to his brother, Edward Hilton, of the lands embraced in this Squamscot or Hilton's Patent.

In 1631 Hilton sold their languishing plantation at Cochecho to some merchants of Bristol, England. When Capt. Thomas Wiggin came to look after the affairs of the new company he found only three houses on the spot. These had probably been occupied by the two Hiltons and Thomas Roberts. Three houses were perhaps the extent of Hilton's colony up to this date. Very little improvement had been made; only unwrought mines of iron had been discovered; no profit whatever had accrued to the proprietors. But the feeble settlement was about to be replenished. William Hilton writes the following letter to John Winthrop, Jr.:

October 10, 1633. The Coheco patent has again been sold. But Thomas Wiggin is still agent. He visits the plantation a second time bringing with him about thirty persons from the west of England, "a part of whom haue been of good estate and of some account for religion." They take up small lots at Dover Point.

It is said the Pascataqua planters came here to fish and trade and search for mines of precious metals; that their main object was commercial rather than religious. This is true. But it is not all the truth. The London adventurers, on their part, were engaged in a commercial speculation. Even of those who sympathized, more or less, in religious sentiment with John Robinson, considerations of pecuniary interest were preëminent. Gorges and Mason were in sympathy with the church of England. William Hilton, while at Plymouth, was of Episcopalian sentiments. The Plymouth Council would never have preferred to employ separatists in founding a colony and giving value to their land. The taunt that the colonists were Puritans would depress the value of their stock. But the option was not theirs. At that period no other persons than separatists were disposed to confront the hardships of emigration; none could be relied on like the Puritans to carry the business through. Hence the actual settlers were largely dissenters; the colonists of 1633 were Puritans.

The Hiltons were lovers of good men. Edward Hilton was the confidential friend of John Winthrop, ever opposed to the immoralities and political ambitions of bad men. Both Gov. John Wentworth and Lt.-Gov. Joseph Dudley held personal correspondence with him respecting these evils, October, 1638.

Among the colonists of 1633 was William Leveridge, a graduate of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, England, in 1625, receiving the degree of A. M. in 1631, "an able and worthy Puritan minister.” During his ministry in 1633–34, the first meeting house in New Hampshire was built. It stood on a most inviting eminence at Dover Neck. In 1667 it was surrounded with an entrenchment one hundred feet square, with logs on top and plankarts at opposite corners. The building was occupied till 1720. Its foundations and fortifications are still pointed out. On December 9, 1880, the author first stood on the spot.

One of the exiles from Massachusetts, on account of the Antinomian controversy was John Wheelwright. He was born about 1592, the son of Robert Wheelwright of Salesby, Lincolnshire, England. He graduated at Sidney College, Cambridge, in 1614, and received the degree of A. M. in 1618, the classmate and friend of Oliver Cromwell. Wheelwright is generally supposed to have been brother-in-law of the celebrated Anne Hutchinson, having married for his second wife, Mary, daughter of Edward and Susannah Hutchinson. He was ordained vicar of Bilsby in 1623, and remained till silenced for non-conformity by Archbishop Loud in 1631. Records there mention four children — a son buried May 19, 1627; Catherine, baptized November 4, 1630; Mary, baptized May 19, 1632, and buried July 28, 1632; and Elizabeth, baptized June 9, 1633. A fugitive, like John Cotton, from the persecutions of Archbishop Loud, he arrived at Boston with his wife and children, May 26, 1636. Himself and wife were admitted to the church in Boston, John Cotton, teacher, June 12, 1636, seventeen days after their arrival. He soon became pastor of the church at Mt. Wollaston, Boston, October 30, 1636–37, “a gentleman of learning, piety and zeal.” His famous Fast-day sermon, January 19, 1637, remained in manuscript till 1867. It was criticised as inflammatory and tending to sedition. Being produced in General Court, March 9, 1637, Wheelwright justified it, and proceeded to decry the New England ministry as “loyalists.” After much deliberation the court adjudged him guilty of sedition and contempt of court. Gov. Henry Vane protested; the Boston church, of which Wheelwright was a member, petitioned in his behalf; the court deferred its sentence, and asked the judgment of the clergy.

The first General Synod of New England assembled at Newtown, Cambridge, May 30, 1637. All the pastors, teachers and elders in the country were present. Eighty-two opinions were condemned as erroneous. Prominent among these were the peculiar tenets of Wheelwright and Mrs. Hutchinson.

Although after nine months delay, the General Court, November 2, 1637, pronounced upon Wheelwright its sentence of disfranchisement and banishment, Mrs. Hutchinson was, after long forbearance on the part of the church, excommunicated. She finally died by a Mohawk scalping-knife.

On leaving Boston Wheelwright came to Squamscot in 1638, and was pastor at Exeter from December 13, of that year, till the union with Massachusetts in 1642.

There is extant an Indian deed conveying land between the Merrimack and Pascataqua to John Wheelwright, for a consideration in "coats, shirts and kettles." It is signed by Passaconaway, chief sagamore of Penacook, Runawit, sagamore of Pentucket, Wahangnonawit, sachem of Squamscot, and Rowls, sachem of Nuchawanack. Thomas Wiggin, agent, and Edward Hilton, steward, of the plantation at Hilton's Point, were witnesses to the deed, May 17, 1629.

In 1633 the authorities of Portsmouth and Dover agreed with Wheelwright that his proposed town at Squamscot Falls should be called Exeter. The genuineness of the above transactions has been a matter of learned controversy. Perhaps the deed is generally believed to be a forgery executed not far from the year 1700.

John Wheelwright, Philemon Pormout, and seven other men received letters from the Boston church to "the church at the Falls of Piscataqua," January 6, 1639. Thirty-five associates joined in the settlement at Exeter. These "combination" settlers were from the neighborhood of Wheelwright in Lincoln County, England. They organized a body politic October 4, 1639. Their civil compact was a pure democracy, and their church was among the first three in New Hampshire.

At the end of more than a year's negotiation, Portsmouth and Dover placed themselves under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts June 14, 1641. Exeter followed their example September 8, 1642. Hampton had been planted by avowed subjects of Massachusetts. The settlement at Winnicummet¹ September, 1638, was the fourth, and for more than half a century, the last in New Hampshire. Rev. Stephen Bachiler, who had been minister at Lynn, Mass., in 1632, more than any other person may be regarded as the father of the church and founder of the town. It was incorporated May 22, 1639.

The year 1643 also marks the consummation of The New England Confederacy, or "The United Colonies of New England."

The Hiltons were still prominent men at Dover. On June 2, 1633, land is granted on the east side of Pascataqua River, "where William Hilton lately planted corne." October 4, 1639, "Will Hilton and goodm. Smart were to have lots on the other side of the river." In 1640 William Hilton was surety for Edward Colcord of Dover, whose dignity was that of one of three commissioners for cases under twenty shillings. December, 1640, William Hilton is to enjoy marshes at Oyster River. September 27, 1642 the General Court at Boston appointed him commissioner to order small cases. That year he had a grant of twenty acres of land in Dover. He was a deputy from Dover to the General Court at Boston in 1644; also sold land and marshes at Oyster River. About this time William Hilton removed to Kittery Point; then to York, where he was selectman, 1652-54, and where he died in 1655 or 1656, leaving a widow Frances and several children.

In 1641 Edward Hilton of Dover, was magistrate of the Associate Court with the power of the quarter courts of Salem and Ipswich. Before this time he seems to have joined the plantation at Exeter, now Newfields. In 1639 a division of land was ordered. "A division of the upland from the cove against Rocky Point to the creek next on this side Mr. Hilton's." These lots are described as "On and abutting on the river eastward, and the other end running up into the maine sixty-four pooles in length." This division took place previous to 1643. Among the thirty-three names are those of several Newmarket families. About the same time, 1639-43, the marshes were divided. William Hilton, probably a son of Edward, received marsh land. The Rev. John M. Whiton, D. D., in his History of New Hampshire, has the following sentence near the date, 1672. "Edward Hilton, the founder of Dover, died this year at Exeter, having lived in the Colony almost half a century."

When Exeter placed itself under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, John Wheelwright, jealous of that Colony and still under its sentence of banishment, withdrew to the territory of Gorges. He gave to the tract of land he bought the name of Wells. In the quiet of his new solitude his past course presented itself under a different aspect from what it had worn in the ardor and pride of conflict. He soon sought a reconciliation with the Massachusetts magistrates and elders. His confession is dated September 10, 1643. He was offered a safe conduct to Boston. He responded March 1, 1644, by a respectful and dignified letter which was considered satisfactory. At the next session of the General Court in 1645, without his appearance, the sentence of banishment was revoked and he restored to former rights and privileges. He returned to Hampton in 1647, where he was assistant pastor with Rev. Timothy Dalton about ten years. In 1656, Wheelwright visited England, where, like other ministers from New England, he enjoyed the special regard of Lord Protector Cromwell. After the Restoration in 1660, he returned to America and was installed at Salisbury, Mass., in 1662, dying there November 15, 1679, aged 87, at the time the oldest minister in New England.

Upon the withdrawal of Wheelwright and his friends, the church at Exeter was regarded as extinct. The same year an attempt was made to form a church and settle a pastor. Their candidate now fourscore years of age, was the Rev. Stephen Bachiler, who had been dismissed from Hampton for irregular conduct. But the General Court at Boston in 1644, interfered. The following law had been enacted March 3, 1636:

“Forasmuch as it hath been found by sad experience that much trouble and disturbance hath happened both to the church and civil state by the officers and members of some churches which have been gathered within the limits of this jurisdiction in an undue manner, and not with such public approbation as were meet, it is therefore ordered, that all persons are to take notice that this Court doth not, nor will hereafter, approve of any such companies of men as shall henceforth join in any pretended way of church-fellowship, without they shall first acquaint the magistrates, and the elders of the greater part of the churches in this jurisdiction, with their intentions, and have their approbation herein. And further it is ordered, that no person, being a member of any church which shall hereafter be gathered without the approbation of the magistrates and the greater part of the said churches, shall be admitted to the freedom of this commonwealth."

At this time the freemen of Massachusetts probably did not constitute more than one fifth of the adult male population. Universal suffrage was not known in any of the colonies. But there was no such religious test in Plymouth, or in Connecticut. And by the act of September 3, 1642, the freemen and deputies of New Hampshire were specially exempt from the obligation of being church members. With respect to matters at Exeter the court affirms that the divisions there were such, they could not comfortably and with approbation proceed in so mighty and sacred affairs; the court therefore directs them to "defer gathering a church or any other such proceeding, till they, or the Court at Ipswich, upon further satisfaction of their reconciliation and fitness, shall give allowance therefor."

Rev. Thomas Rashleigh was admitted to the church in Boston in 1640, while a divinity student; was "chaplain" at Cape Ann, 1641; Exeter, spring of 1643, and granted a house lot, May 6, 1643; and stayed "something less than a twelvemonth."¹

In 1656 or 1657, the Rev. Mr. Bachiler went back to England where he died at the great age of 100 years.

In 1643, Hatevil Nutter was probably sometime minister at Exeter. He was an "exhorting elder" in the church at Dover in 1638, and owner of land at Lamprey river as early as 1645, which Exeter covenanted to enclose with fence. The inhabitants were ordered out several times to do their shares of fencing. June 11, 1650, Mr. Nutter accepted the fence which the town "engaged by covenant" to set up for him, and he was heard of no more in Exeter.²

For reasons not given, at a later meeting held November 27, 1644, the town chose Mr. Stanyan and James Wall to "Agree and bargain with Mr. Nutter of Douer to buye or purch — for the Towne that psell of Land lyeing by Lamprell

Rev. Samuel Dudley was the next minister of Exeter, who was born in England about 1610, and qualified for the clerical office as early as 1637, preached at Portsmouth in 1649, "a person of good capacity and learning." Having preached a short time at Dover, he settled at Exeter in 1650, "until such time as God shall be pleased to make way for the gathering of a church, and then to be ordained pastor and teacher according to the ordinance of God." Edward Hilton was chairman of the committee of six who made agreement with Mr. Dudley, May 13, 1650. "Its agreed June 26, 1650, that a meetinghouse shall be built of twenty feet square." Edward Hilton, Jr., was an overseer to see the meeting house finished forthwith, July 8, 1652; but was released from this service, October 23, 1652, on account of press of private business. Mr. Dudley received a call from Portsmouth, October 27, 1656, which he declined and remained in the pastorate of Exeter till his death, February 10, 1683. He was son of Gov. Thomas Dudley, son-in-law of Gov. John Winthrop, and brother of Gov. Joseph Dudley.¹ It is evident such a man was a great acquisition to the little community of Exeter.

Rev. John Cotton, who was born May 18, 1658, son of Rev. Seaborn Cotton of Hampton, and a graduate of Harvard College in 1678, preached at Hampton in 1678, and at Exeter in Riuore w^{ch} the Towne by A former order was Injoynd to fence for the s^d mr Nutter."

It seems that they failed in their attempt to buy, as at a meeting held January 31, 1645, "It is ordered that Mr Nutter his 60 rod of Fencin att Lamprell Riuer shall be set up for him by the 17th day of next moneth by euery Inhabitant equal pportion, and whoseouer shall neglect to doe his pportion or to cause it to be don by the Aforesay he shall pay 3s 4d the rod vnto him that shall dooe It for him."

The names of those who had done their share by March 6, 1645, were as follows: "Anthony Stanian, Will Mauer, Hen^r. Robey, John Legat, John Cram, Rob. Smith, Tho. Pettet, Ralph Hall, ath Boulton, Tho. Biggs, Drake, God^d Dearborn, George Barlo, Rowel, Francis Swaine, James Wall [Conner], Hemp^r Willson, Tho. King, Samuel Grenfeld [hilton], John [Manly], Thomas Jones, Bellshasur Willie, Thomas Weight, Robert hithar [Hersy]."

At a meeting held November 7, 1649, "It is Agred vpon by the Towne that euerey of the Inhabitants of the Towne shall goo downe to Lampell Riur or send downe A sufficient man in his Roome vpon the first second day of Aprell for the sufficiant and seting vp of Mr Nutters fence ther for the preuention of further damage &c."

For a list of Mr. Dudley's descendants, see Exeter News-Letter for August 31, 1846.

1684. He was invited to Portsmouth in 1691, but declined, and was ordained at Hampton, November 19, 1696, successor to his father till his death, March 27, 1710.

Rev. William Wentworth was baptized at Alford, England, March 15, 1616; signed the Exeter combination October 4, 1639; removed to Wells, Me., with Mr. Wheelwright, 1642; elder of the Dover church, 1650; officiated as minister at Cocheco in the winter of 1665-66, and was one of the committee to arrange with Dover Point for the ministry at Oyster River, April 1, 1657. He was asked to continue his ministry at Exeter, October 6, 1690. Further arrangements were made with him October 6, 1691, and he was requested, March 30, 1693, to "supply and perform the office of a minister one whole year ensuing if he be able." He was now 78 years of age, and probably unable by reason of natural infirmities to comply with the request. He died at Dover, March 16, 1697, aged 81. From him several of the New Hampshire governors of the name were descended.

The present First Church of Exeter dates back only to September, 1698. The ancient volume of records begins thus: "The order of proceedings in gathering a particular church in Exeter. After conferring together and being mutually satisfied in each other, we drew up a Confession of Faith, and the terms of the Covenant, which we all signed the Sabbath before the ordination."

The Rev. John Clark, third minister of Exeter and first pastor of this First Church, was ordained September 21, 1698. The church was reorganized the same day. The record continues: "We were, by the elders and messengers of the several churches, owned as a church of Christ, and John Clark declared a minister of Christ Jesus." Mr. Clark was born at Newbury, Mass., January 24, 1670, and died in office, July 25, 1705.

His successor was the Rev. John Odlin, born in Boston, November 18, 1681, who graduated at Harvard College in 1702 and was ordained at Exeter, November 11, 1706. He married the widow of his predecessor, and died in office, November 20, 1754. During his ministry the towns of Newmarket, Epping and Brentwood, were incorporated from the territory of Exeter, and their respective churches organized together with the present Second or Phillips Church at Exeter.

The first two meeting houses in Exeter stood on the hill near the brick and tile factory of Wiggin and Dolloff. The third was erected near the place where the old church now stands. It was "seated" by vote of the town February 3, 1697. A pew was assigned to "Edward Hilton for wife Ann, daughter of Rev. Samuel Dudley, & son Winthrop, his wife & two daughters, Mary and Sobriety, on the north side of the meeting house joining to the Pulpit." At the same time his nephew, Richard Hilton, received seats "for himself, wife, children, mother & sister Rebecca, on the North side of the meeting house joining the parsonage pew."

The second Hilton, who is styled "Colonel," died April 28, 1699.

Col. Winthrop Hilton was the eldest son of the second Edward. He was the personal friend and firm supporter of his uncle Gov. Joseph Dudley. After the death of Col. Richard Waldron of Dover, June 28, 1689, Hilton became the principal military chieftain in New Hampshire. His commission as Colonel is dated April 3, 1707. His letter to his wife, on his way a second time in command of troops against Port Royal, is introduced as exhibiting his lively trust in the overruling providence of God.

CASCO FORT, July 16th, 1707.

My dear Spouse,

I can't but take all opportunities to salute you. I do earnestly embrace this as ye last before our departure. Notwithstanding a thousand difficultues in our way, It is ordered that ye fleet prepare to take ye signal for weighing anchor to morrow. The soldiers are utterly averse and will at best be but passive in returning to Port Royal. Nevertheless if Providence cast advantages into our hands there, they will eagerly embrace them; and if we obtain a victory, God will now haue a much greater share in our songs of triumph, than if we had been successful at first. Dear Heart, pray hard for us, and cheerfully commit to ye Almighty's protection.

Your louing, louing husband,

WINTHROP HILTON.

Colonel Hilton with his brother Dudley Hilton, and one or two other men were killed by the Indians near the "Mast Road" in Epping July 23, 1710. "He was a gentleman of good temper, courage and conduct, respected and lamented by all who knew him." His tombstone bears upon it the earliest date of any monument in town.¹

He was born in Massachusetts, May 7, 1676; graduated from Harvard College in 1697, and was ordained pastor at Oyster River, now Durham, September 10, 1707. He died in 1750, aged 74 years.

Chapter III.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS AND MINISTERS CONTINUED.

The settlement of Exeter was undoubtedly commenced in the spring of 1638, and soon became of sufficient importance to attract attention. During that year a church had been gathered there, and a letter was written to the church in Boston about the middle of December, 1638, "to desire Mr. Wheelwright's dismission to them for an officer or minister," but because Mr. Wheelwright did not desire it the matter was dropped for the time. But soon after, as he had been the year before sentenced to depart out of the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, he, with certain others, at their own request, were dismissed from the Boston church. In obedience to the sentence he had already located on "a Plantation begun about the falls of Pascataqua, on the south side of the Great Bay, up that river called by the first inhabitants Exeter," supposing it to be beyond the jurisdiction of Massachusetts. The number and names of those accompanying Mr. Wheelwright are unknown. The following persons, however, were dismissed from the Boston church at the same time: Richard Morrys, Richard Bulgar, Philemon Purmot, ¹ A portion of Newmarket was called Lubberland as early as 1669. It was a part of Oyster River precinct. In 1717 Rev. Hugh Adams called it Lover Land. It extended to Crummet's Creek.

Isaac Grosse, Christopher Marshall, George Baytes, Thomas Wardel and William Wardel and most of them probably were in his company, as all but Baytes and Marshall were early in Exeter. In this place they gathered a church and walked together in an orderly and Christian way till it appeared, by stretching the line of Massachusetts further northward, they were still within the "liberties of the Massachusetts," which, it is judged, occasioned Mr. Wheelwright's removal "to the Province of Maine to a Plantation since by the inhabitants called Wells."¹

The government during the year 1638, so far as any government was recognized, was patriarchal. In 1639 it was found necessary to establish some form of government. On July 4 of that year a combination² was entered into, but was soon after modified so as to make their subjection and loyalty to their Sovereign Lord, King Charles, somewhat questionable. The whole matter, therefore, was reconsidered, and on April 2, 1640, the former combination in substance was renewed. The document was recorded in the book of records, and there signed by the inhabitants themselves with their own proper names or with their mark. Twenty-one subscribed and fourteen signed the combination. The Preamble thereto, not having been published by Belknap, is subjoined:

Whereas a certen Combination was made by us the brethren of the Church of Exeter, wth the rest of the inhabitants bearing date Mon. 5th, D. 4, 1639 wh afterwards, upon the instant request of some of the brethren, was altered & put into such a form of wordes, wherein howsoever we doe acknowledge the King's Majesty our dread Sovereigne & ourselves his subjects; yet some expressions are contained therein wh may seeme to admit of such a sence as somewhat derogates from that due allegiance wh we owe to his Highnesse, quite contrary to our true intents and meanings; Wee therefore doe revoke, disannull, make voyd and frustrate the said latter Combination as if it never had been done, & doe ratify, confirm and establish the former wh wee only stand unto as being in force & vertue — the wh for substance is here set down in manner and form following.³

Mon. 2^d, D. 2., 1640.

Of many of the men who signed the Exeter Combination we know but little, of some of them nothing. Any one interested to learn what may be known of them is referred to Bell's "History of Exeter," pp. 21-40.

A few persons who came to Exeter with Mr. Wheelwright did not sign the Combination. They either had died or removed before that instrument was executed. Others came into the place soon after the date of the Combination, but did not subscribe to it. Edward Hilton was here in 1639, and the very first paragraph of the town records which is still preserved relates to his land and house, and the "creek next from his house towards Exeter," now known as Pease's brook.

Wheelwright and his company were good men, peaceable and well-disposed. Their aim was to serve God, subdue the forest, get a living in this world and secure inheritance in a better. Their posterity are engaged in no better business or with higher ends in view.

During the first year they had no need of law, and do not appear to have had any government, court or record. It seems probable that early in the next year a spirit of independence or insubordination manifested itself, which suggested to the fathers of the plantation the importance of establishing a civil government which resulted in the Combination of which we have spoken. The handful of our ancestors who settled on the banks of the Squamscot, although acknowledging their allegiance to the king of England, claimed to possess and exercise all the powers of an independent state. Perhaps Plymouth and Exeter alone of all the towns in New England ever claimed such right or exercised such powers.

The Exeter Records commenced in 1639, and the first items recorded have for their caption, "Certain ordinances made at the Court holden in Exeter."

On January 19, 1640, "it was agreed to by the inhabitants that Isaac Grosse, Ruler, Augustine Storrs, and Anthony Stanion shall have the ordering of all town affairs according to God."

Orders made by the Court held at Exeter, February 6, 1640, were as follows:

1. That no man shall set fire upon the woods to the destroying of the feed for the cattle or the doing of any other hurt, under pain of paying the damage that shall ensue thereby—after the middle of April.

2. That every man shall fall such trees as are in his lot being offensive to any other, and if after due warning any shall refuse,—to pay half a crown for every tree that is so offensive.

3. That every action that is tried, the party that is cast in it shall pay to the Jury four shillings.

Thus early the hundred inhabitants of Exeter, though they had three good men to order all town affairs according to God, still preserved their rights to trial by jury.

On March 6, 1640, it was ordered,

That no wine or strong water shall be sold by retail to the English, but by Thomas Wardle.

That whosoever shall dig a saw pit and shall not fill it or cover it, shall be liable to pay the damage that shall come to man or beast thereby.

That all the swine that is not taken down the river by the 4th day of the second month, (April)¹ the owners shall be liable to pay the damage that shall befall any thereby.

That every man that is an inhabitant of the town shall have free liberty to trade with the Indians in anything except it be powder, shot or any warlike weapons, or sack, or other strong waters.²

It is here recorded that Anthonie Stanion hath satisfied the Court concerning the offence given by him to our Ruler Needham.

On April 9, 1640, a convocation of the people was held on important matters as the following record shows:

AN ORDER AND LAW.

It is enacted for a law constituted, made and consented unto by the whole Assembly at the Court, solemnly met together in Exeter, the 9th day of the 2d month 1640,—

That if any person or persons shall plot or practice, either by combination or otherwise, the betraying of his country or any principal part thereof into the hands of any foreign State, Spanish, Dutch or French, contrary to the allegiance we profess and owe to our dread sovereign Lord King Charles, his heirs and successors, it being his Majesty's pleasure to protect us, his legal subjects—shall be punished with death.

If any person or persons shall plot or practice any treason or shall revile his Majesty the Lord's Anointed, contrary to the allegiance we profess and owe to our dread Sovereign Lord King Charles, his heirs and successors (ut Supra)—shall be punished with death. Numb. 16. Exo. 22: 28. I Kings 2: 8, 9, 44.

The Squamscot plantation, no less than the Bay colony, claim the sanction of Revelation for their laws.

The other laws or orders made during the year, required any person purchasing a town lot to build a habitation thereon within six months; forbidding any person to fell timber within half a mile of the town, except it be upon his own particular lot, without it be for building or fencing, upon the penalty of five shillings for every tree so felled; imposing a penalty of ten pounds on any person making sedition or commotion; declaring all creeks free, only he that makes a "ware" therein is to have in the first place the benefit of it in fishing time, and no other may set a ware either above or below it, and enjoy the same liberty.

The same year Edward Rishworth was "chosen by order of the Court to be Secretary to the Court, and look to the book, and to enter such actions as are brought, and to have 12d laid down at the entering of every action."

The General Court at Boston September 8, 1642, "ordered that all the present inhabitants of Pascataquak who formerly were free there, shall have liberty of freemen in their Seuerall townes to manage all their towne affairs & shall each town send a deputy to the General Court though they be not at present Church members."

In 1644 a movement was made to gather a church and invite

Rev. Mr. Bachiler to be the minister, but because of the "divisions & contentions which are among the inhabitants there" the General Court ordered that the matter be deferred till the Court at Boston or Ipswich (upon further satisfaction of their reconciliation and fitness) shall give allowance thereto. It would seem that those early settlers were so outspoken and strenuous in the exercise of their strong personal convictions as for a time to bar them from the religious privileges they were so anxious to enjoy.

At a town meeting held May 25, 1646, Edward Hilton and Thomas King were chosen to purchase Mr. Wheelwright's house and land for a parsonage for Mr. Nathaniel Norcrosse, and it was agreed that every inhabitant of the town shall pay his proportion of the expense. At the same time Thomas Jones, Robert Hithersay, Humphrey Willson, Abraham Drake, Nicholas Swain, Robert R. Smith, John Cram, Thomas Pettit, Frances P. Swain, Anthony Stanyan, Samuel Greenfield, John Smart, James Wall, Henry Roby, Nathaniel Boulter and John Legat entered their names on the town book binding themselves "to saue harmless the sayd purchasers If our somas do not Amount vnto the full price of the sayd purchase."

On November 16, 1648, the town voted to extend a call to a minister of Braintree, Mass. This seems to have proved unavailing, and on April 22, 1649, Mr. Emerson of Rowley, Mass., was invited to become minister, but he declined the call.

The same year James Wall, John Legat and John Cram were elected townsmen of Exeter. John Legat was chosen clerk, and was to have four pence for every "order," and five pence for every grant to be paid by the person to whom the grant was made.

It is evident that the people valued their religious privileges for we find them zealous in their endeavors to avail themselves of a permanent ministry, and provide first of all for its maintenance. Whether few or many of the settlers were members of the church all felt themselves to be authorized defenders, and all were cheerful supporters of the church. On April 22, 1650, those "chosen for the ordreinge of the sole afares of the Towne," ordered first "that euerie inhabitant of the towne shall pay for euery thousand of pipes staues they make, tow shillinges wich shall bee for the mentainence of the minuistre and for eury thousand of hogshed staues one shilling six pence, and for euey thousand of boultres that is sould before they bee made into staiveses fore shillinges, and also what is due from the sawe milles shall bee for the maintenance of the minnistree.” It was also ordered that any man delivering any staves or bolts before he has satisfied the town orders shall pay ten shillings for every thousand of staves, and twenty shillings for every thousand bolts. These orders were signed by Edward Hilton, Edward Gilman, John Cram, Thomas Pettit, John Gilman and Henry Roby.

Early this year the town extended a call to Rev. Samuel Dudley to become its minister which was successful, as we learn from the record of a town meeting held May 13, 1650, when it was “unanimously Agreed by M^r Samuel Dudley and the Towne That M^r Dudley Is fourthwith so soone As comfortable subsistance can be made by the Towne for him and his famelye In the house w^{ch} was purchased of M^r Whelwrit, That then the said M^r Dudley Is to com to Inhabet att Exeter And to be A minester of God’s word vnto vs vntil such time as God sheall be pleased to make way for the gathering of A church, And then he to be ordained or Pastor or teacher According to the ordinance of God. And in Consideration of this promise of M^r Dudley The Towne doth mutually Agree to fitt vp the Aforesaid house And to fence In A yard and gardon for the said M^r Dudley And to Allow fourtey pounds A yeare towards the maintenance of the said m^r Dudley and his family, and that the vse and sole Improvement of the Aforesaid house bought of M^r Whelwrit and All the lands and meddows there vnto belonging shall be to the propper vse of him the said m^r Dudley dureing the time that he shall continue to be A minester of the word Amongst vs. And what Cost the said M^r Dudley shall bestowe About the said house and lands In the time of his Improuement, The Towne Is to Allow vnto him or his so much as the said house or lands are bettered by It att the time of the saide m^r Dudlyes leauing of It either by death or by some more then ordenarey Call of God otherwais. And It is further Agreed vpon that the ould cow house which was m^r Whelwrits shall by the Town be fixed vp fitt for the setting of Cattle In, And that the Aforesaid pay of 40 £ A yeare Is to be made In good pay euerey halfe yeare In Corne twenty feet square. It was also voted "That the bridges, stocks, and wach house shall be maintained and finished by the Townes Labore."

Though a decision had been made to build a meeting house, it seems that the work for some reason was delayed, for we find another record of a meeting July 8, 1652, when it was ordered "that the meeting house shall forthwith be built and that euerey man both seruants as well as others, shall com forth to work vpon It as they are Called out by the Seruayers of the work vpon the penaltie of 5s A day for euerey dayes neglect, and teames are to be brought forth to the work by the oners as they are called for by the said seruayers vpon the penalltye of 10^s A day for there neglect. And the seuayers or ouerseers Appointed for the s^d work are m^r Edw. Gillman, Tho. King and Edw. Hilton Jun. and they are to see the work fineshed and not to have it neglected."

At a later town meeting October 23, 1652, John Robinson and John Gilman were chosen in the place of Edward Gilman and Edward Hilton, "hauinge the same power giuen them to manage or cary on the work aboute the meetinge howse with Thomas Kinge, according to the formur acte of the towne."

At the same meeting Mr. Colcord, John Legat, and Thomas

Biggs are "Appointed to call to Accounte the owners of the sawmills and to make demand of such bord or planke as are due to the Towne, and vpon non payment to take A legall Course for the Recouerey of the same."

At a meeting held February 15, 1654, Mr. Colcord, Nicholas Leson and Thomas Biggs were granted power "to call the saw mills to account and likwis to Reseaue payment acording as they shall see met for time past and likewise for this present yeare coming."

October 31, 1655, at the request of the town of Hampton the fifth day of every week was "ordered" as a market day.¹

At a town meeting held April 28, 1656, a vote was passed requiring all the sawmills of the town to be rated "for the maintaining of the publike ordinances—Mr. Hilton's mill at fifty shillings."

On March 4, 1658, Mr. Dudley and Mr. Hilton were given power by the town to treat with Captain Wiggin and agree with him as to the annual payment he is to make to the town towards the support of the public ministry according to present and future rates "by the sawmills and pipe staves."

On July 26, 1665, Edward Hilton, John Foulsham, Philip Chesley, Anthony Brackett, William Cotton, Robert Watson, John Pike and others petitioned the King to free them from the jurisdiction of Massachusetts and join them to the Province of Maine "that they may be gov^{ed} by the knowne lawes of England and enjoy the use of both the sacramts w^{ch} they have bin too long deprived of." The petition sent from Portsmouth complained that the Government of Massachusetts "have kept us under hard servitude, and denyed us in our publike meeting the Common prayer Sacram^{ts} and decent buriall of the dead contrary to the Laws of England & his Maj^{ties} lve sent by Simon Bradstreet & John Norton in the yeare 1662."

Nicholas Shapleigh, May 20, 1667, recommended to Mr. Mason that Edward Hilton and others be commissioned to look after his interests here, and "to joyin the Governmnt to the prouince of Maine."

The letters also notified Mason that "Seuerall masts² which

It is recorded at the same time, that Richard Walderne and Peter Coffin have "encouaged many to ship to the Govment of the Massachusetts," and their arrest is recommended for cutting and carrying away from Mason's claims, several masts laden on "the shipp the greate Duke of Yorke."

"That all the masts sent his Majtee fom New England upon the shipp called the Greate Duke of York or yt had been sent for England Two years before were cutt of the Lands of Robt Mason."

In 1677 the following Exeter men are recorded as favoring continuance with Massachusetts: "Sam Dudley, John Gilman, Rob: Wadleigh, Robert Smart, senior, Samuel Leane, John Foullsom, Jnath. Thing, Bily Dudley, Daniel Gilman, Ralph Hall, Samewell ffoulsham, Peter ffoulsham, Eph ffoulsham, Charles Gliten, Samuel Hall, Antip^{as} Maverick, John Gillen guner, Conealles Learey, Edward Gilman, William More, Thomas Rolines, Linsley (Kingsley) Hall, Humphrey Wilson."

As reference has already been made to rates to meet civil and ministerial expenses, to give an idea of what they were we append:

JOHN GILMAN, SEN'R	} Trustees for Exeter.
RALPH HALL,
EDW'D SMITH,

After New Hampshire became a distinct province in 1680 everything passed off satisfactorily to the people as long as the principal offices were filled by her own citizens. At this time Robert Mason, as heir of John Mason, patentee, laid claim to the state as his property, and as the governor then in office failed to prove the helper he needed to gain possession, he made application to the King for a new governor, and the King in compliance with his desire, sent the mercenary Edward Cranfield, whose sole purpose seems to have been to exercise the authority with which he had been invested, first of all, for his own selfish ends. The people were not long in learning his character, nor slow in showing their dislike to him and his actions. They soon became satisfied that any endeavor on their part to secure justice in any disagreement would be an utter failure. His high-handed act in dissolving the assembly because it would not pass certain bills in his favor did much to arouse a feeling of hostility against him. Without doubt it had much to do in stirring up Edward Gove, who had been a member of the assembly, and his associates, to open rebellion. Meanwhile in all his official acts he tried to evince great loyalty to the King. Anything he discovered in the acts of the people which could be construed as an act of disloyalty to the King he was sure to take up, if possible, to their discomfort. It seemed to gratify him more to find fault and punish, than to praise and please. As a matter of course his associates in office were ever ready to do his bidding and evince their fealty by showing themselves jealous of his honor before the people. The following document furnishes an illuminating instance:

To the Worps William Vaughan Esqr Judge, Richard Martin & Walter Barefoot Esqrs Assistants now sitting in Court in Portsmouth in ye province of New Hampsheire ffeb. 14: 1682—

Edward Randolph Esqr: his Majties Attorney Gen^l in this Province doth in behalfe of his Majties inform against Danniell hilton Thomas ffilbrook ye elder, Benjamin ffifield Joshua Dow, Kingley Hall, ffancis Page, Mathias Haines: all of them Inhabitants of this Province, ffor that they & Every of them in a riotous manner & in contempt of his Majties Laws & authority, in & upon ye 13th day of this Instant ffebruary, did meet & assemble in the now dwelling house of the Hon^{ble} Edward Cranfield Esqr his Majties Govr of ye Said Province & did in presence of the said Govr & unto him declare & avow their abhorrence of & non Conformity to the methods and knowne practice of the Laws of England, in the matter of taking oathes, tending to the disturbance of his Majtis peace & the Evill Example of some persons mutinously affected in this his Govr and in order that the said persons may be duely prosecuted.

ED RANDOLPH.

The Exeter jurymen for the trial of Edward Gove were “Humphrey Willson, Peter Foulsam, Dan. Gilman, Lieut. Hall, Moses Gilman, Sen., Ensign More, Edward Gilman.”

In 1685 the inhabitants of Exeter petitioned against Lieutenant-Governor Cranfield, unable doubtless to put up with his usurpations and tyranny longer. This petition was signed by

We are not aware of the effect of this petition upon Cranfield, but we know that becoming discouraged with his ill success in enriching himself in his official position he soon after abandoned his office, and was succeeded by Walter Barefoote.

But little is known of the transactions of the town for several years, from 1680 to 1690, owing probably to the purloining by Robert Mason in his searching of the books of different towns for evidence to support his land claims. The town was practically for a time without any government of its own which led to the following petition of certain citizens:

To the Honable the Governour and Councill of their Majts Colony of Matthathusets in New England

At a town meeting held October 6, 1690, it was “voted that Elder william winworth is to be treated with for his continuence with us in the work of ye Ministry in this towne for one Complete yeare Insueing.” Biley Dudley, Kinsley Hall and Moses Leavitt were the committee chosen for this purpose.

At a meeting October 8, 1691, Capt. William Moore and Capt. Peter Coffin were chosen “to treat with Elder winworth to supply and carrey one ye worke of Ministry in the Towne y^e Insuen yare.”

At a meeting November 30, 1693 (?) an agreement was made with “m^r William wintworth to supply and performe ye office of A minister in this towne one whole yare if he be Able, and if performed the towne doe promise to paye him ye sune of forty pounds in current paye, or proporshonable to any parte of ye yare.”

The date of the above meeting was doubtless 1692, as we find that at a meeting held June 23, 1693, Capt. John Gilman and “Billey Dudly” were chosen “to goe to the Naiboring ministers and take thayer Aduice for a mette person to supply the office of the ministry in ye towne of Exeter.”

The inference is that failing health compelled Mr. Wentworth to give up the work of supply, after a brief time, thereby leaving a vacancy to be filled. A suitable candidate was shortly brought to their notice, as we learn that at a legal meeting held September 18, 1693, Capt. John Gilman, Capt. Peter Coffin and Capt. Robert Wadleigh were chosen a committee “to treat with m^r John Clarke, and procure him to come to this towne to be our minister.”

At another meeting “of ye free houlders of ye towne of Exiter” the same committee were “Impowered to Agree with m^r John Clarke to be our minister and what salery they doe agree with him for, ye first halfe ye towne doe ingage to paye.”

On April 20, 1694, Peter Coffin, Capt. Robert Wadleigh and

Richard Hilton were chosen in behalf of the town to purchase "a sartin house and land near the present mettin house" for the use of the minister.

Mr. Clark was not ordained as pastor till September 21, 1698. After a brief ministry of seven years he died July 25, 1705.

Chapter IV.

EARLY LAND GRANTS.

If Wheelwright's Indian deed be valid, the Rev. John Wheelwright at Squamscot Falls, May 17, 1629, cancelled the claims of the lords of the soil, by purchasing New Hampshire of Passaconaway and other chiefs on the Merrimack and Pascataqua rivers for "a valuable consideration in coats shirts and kettles." It is alleged that Gorges and Mason divided their patent, and took separate grants November 17, 1629, Mason taking the territory west of Pascataqua which he called New Hampshire, and Gorges taking that east of Pascataqua which was called Maine.

Another division of Pascataqua soon took place. On March 12, 1630, a patent was obtained whereby there was granted to Edward Hilton "all that part of the river Pascataqua, called or known by the name of Hilton's Point with the south side of said river, up to the falls of Squamscot, and three miles into the main land for breadth."

The London adventurers also, November 3, 1631, obtained a grant on both sides of the river Pascataqua to the extent of five miles westward by the sea coast, then to cross over towards the other plantation in the hands of Edward Hilton, the whole extent being thus divided into two parts. Thus Wiggin was appointed agent for the upper or Hilton's patent, and Walter Neal for the lower patent.

The doubtful "Letters from Neal and Wiggin relating to the division of Lands at Pascataqua 1633 May 13," anticipated names given to the respective towns, to Squamscot Falls—Exeter—in 1638; to Wecanacohunt—Dover—in 1639; to Winnecowett—Hampton—in 1639; and to Strawberry Bank—Portsmouth—in 1653.

When the charter of Plymouth Council was surrendered in 1635 Mason had well nigh succeeded in securing for himself the whole of New Hampshire, but his death in November of that year put an end to his ambitious projects. He received no adequate compensation for his large outlays. By 1644 nothing remained for his heirs except their interest in the soil.

In 1680 a nephew of Edward Hilton, and son of William Hilton, for a confirmation of a sale of lands made in 1636 by Tahanto, Sagamore of "Peneacooke" to William Hilton, Sr., thus petitioned, "Whereas your petitioners father William Hilton came over into New England about the yeare Anno: Dom: 1621 & yo^r petitioner came about one yeare & an halfe after, and In a little time following settled ourselues vpon the River of Pascattaq. with Mr. Edw: Hilton who were the first English planters there."

William Hilton, Jr's. testimony is conclusive that William Hilton, Sr., came to Plymouth in the ship Fortune, November 11, 1621, and his wife and two children followed in the Anne in July, 1623. This agrees with the "about a yeare & an halfe after" given above.

The original grant given by the Plymouth Council was as follows:

Now know yee that the said President and Councill by Virtue & Authority of his Majesties said Letters Pattents and for and in consideration that Edward Hilton & his Associates hath already at his and their owne proper costs and charge transported sundry servants to plant in New England aforesaid at a place there called by the natives Wecanacohunt otherwise Hiltons point lying som two leagues from the mouth of the River Pascataquack¹ in New England aforesaid where they have already Built some houses, and planted corne. And for that he doth further intend by God's Divine Assistance, to transport thither more people and cattle, to the good increase and advancemt & for the better settling and strengthing of their plantacon as also that they may be the better encouraged to proceed in soe pious a work which may Especially tend to the propagation of Religion and to the Great increase of Trade to his Majesties Realmes and dominions, and the advancement of publique plantacon, Have granted Enfeoffed and confirmed, and by this their p'sent writing doe fully clearly and absolutely give grant enfeoffe and confirme unto the said Edward Hilton his heires and assignes for ever, all that part of the River Pascataquack called or known by the name of Weconacohunt or Hiltons Point with the south side of the said River up to the ffall of the River, and three miles into the Maine Land by all the breadth aforesaid. Together with all the Shoares Creekes Bays Harbors and Coasts, alongst the sea within ther limits and Bounds aforesaid with the woods and Islands next adjoening to the said Lands not being already granted by the said Councell unto any other person or persons together alsoe with all the Shoares Creeks Bays Harbors and Coasts, alongst the sea within the limits and Bounds aforesaid with the woods and Islands next adjoyneing to the said Lands, not being already granted by the said Councell unto any other person or persons together alsoe with all the Lands Rivers Mines minerals of what kinde or nature soever, woods Quarries, Marshes, Waters, Lakes, ffishings, Huntings, Hawkings, ffowlings, Comodities Emolumts and hereditaments whatsoever with all and singular their and every of their sppts in or within the limits or Bounds belonging or in any wise appertaining . . . unto the said Edward Hilton his heirs, Associates, Assignes forever to the onely proper use and behalfe of the said Edward Hilton his heires Associates & Assignes for ever, yielding and paying unto our Sovereigne Lord the King one ffifth part of Gold and silver oares and another ffifth part to the Councell aforesaid and their successors to be holden of the said councell and their successors or Assignes for every hundred Acres of the said Land in use the some of twelve pence in Lawfull money of England into the hands of the Rent gatherer for the time being of the said Councell yr successors or Assignes for all services whatsoever.

This land was laid out (rightly or fraudulently) by the Massachusetts government in Newington and Stratham. The territory of this grant was located in 1656 by order of the General Court November, 1655. This grant is the foundation of all the land grants in Dover and several neighboring towns.

This grant to Edward Hilton conveyed some specific title or enlargement of title to lands. The actual delivery of the land was made by Thomas Lewis, by power of attorney, to Edward Hilton on the premises, July 7, 1631, in presence of Thomas Wiggin, William Hilton, Samuel Sharpe and James Downe. This grant was on the north and south sides of the Pascataqua river. It undoubtedly conflicted with the Pascataqua grant, but this was to be expected, as conflicts were not unusual in those early grants.

This grant constituted the foundation of the early grants made to individuals in the course of time by the towns.

Towns had the right to grant or sell unoccupied lands or standing timber and also to control the fisheries.

Grants of land included within the original territory of Exeter were made from time to time by vote of the town at its regular or special meetings. Such grants as lie within the present limits of Newmarket and Newfields are hereby given, mainly in the language of the records, spelling and all. It may interest the reader in comparing the past with the present.

At a meeting held in Exeter October 4, 1639, the "Courte" ordered:

Imprimis. That Mr Eduard Hilton his vpland ground is bounded in Breadth from the creeke next from his house towards Exeter on the one side & a Certaine point of Land ovr against Captaine Wiggins his house between the Marsh and the vpland thats his bounds one the othr side, and it is to extend into the maine the same distance in Length as it is in Breadth, and that hee shall haue all the meadows wch hee formerly ocupied from his howse to the mouth of Lamprell River.

The boundary of this grant at a meeting held April 3, 1671, was defined as follows:

Old mr Hiltons grant made to him by composition by the towne measurers, was bounded Southeast vpon the river, vpon the townes land northwest, with Robert Smarts land northeast, with the creeke next to his house and the townes land southwest, and this land being a mile and forty eight rod square;—vpon the north west corner there is a white wood tree marked with the letter E, vpon the southwest syde at the upper corner in the woods a Pyne tree marked with the letter E.

Hilton and goodm. Smart who are to haue the lotts one the othr side the Rivr where the Towne shall bee thought most convenient By G. Rul. Needam and mr Starre deputies to this purpose.

5th Lye. That whosoever shall Carry themselves disorderly vnreuerently in the Cote Towards the magistrates or in yr presence shall bee lyable to such a Censer as the Cote shall thinke meate.¹

In 1640 a division of the uplands from the Cove against Rocky Point, off against Mr. Connor's and railroad bridge, to the creek on the side next to Mr. Hilton's was made as follows:

1 Impr Mr Stanyan 27 acres 135 poole, one end butting vpon the river Eastward & the other end running up into the mayne six score poole in Length.

[Lot] 29 80 acres to Mr Wheelwright, butting as aforesayd.

32 Griffine Monntegue 10 acres 50 poole butting as aforesayd bought by Mr Edward Hilton of Thomas Croly.

Thirty-two persons are numbered in this division, viz.: Mr. Wheelwright, Mr. Morris, Mr. Grosse, Mr Stanyan, Goodman Moore, Goodman Littlefield, Mr. Stone, Mr. Pormot, Goodman Cole, Mr. Needham, Goodman Compton, Thomas Wardell, Goodman Dearborn, James Wall, William Wardell, Griffin Montague, Robert Read, Goodman Cram, Goodman Winborne, Robert Smith, Thomas Weight, Goodman Pettit, Goodman Walker, Thomas Lavitt, William Wentford (Wentworth), Edward Rishworth, Goodman Littlefield, Jere. Blakewell, George Raburne, Goodman Elkins, Goodman Willie, and Goodman Bulgar.

The amount divided to each man varied from 4 acres 20 poles to 80 acres with the following note attached: "Note here a great mistake in this Record viz: euery aker herein mensioned stands but for halfe an aker as attests

ROBERT BOOTH
Sept. 26. 1760."

At a town meeting held September 29, 1640, "there was granted to Lieftenant John Gilman that parcell of vpland, No. 33, lyeing between Griffin Monntague lot abouesaid and the brooke which divides betweene m^r Hilton's Land and the towne of Exeter."

¹ Exeter First Book of Records, Vol. 1:137.

The "lot Lyers to the towne of Exeter" report that "wee . . . have taken a view of the lotts between the parting brooke of Mr. Hiltons and the towne of Exeter beginning our station at the towne syde of the 29th lot which was granted to m^r Wheelwright and measured through it and left eighty acres, and through Robert Reads lot 9 acres and fyfty pole, and M^r Stors lot twenty acres & one hundred pole, and Griffin Montegue ten acres & fyfty pole which was the last lot, and the lay'd the rest to John Gilman senor according to what was granted him, beginning at the highway marking a sloping white oake on the right hand marked with H, and so tooke our station Eastward downe to Jonathan Things medow & marked a tree and then run a lyne six score rod west & marked a tree in a little swamp."

In the first division Goodman Smart received "one acre & 26 poole bee it more or less." In all there were five lots, and fourteen acres of marsh.

"In the second Division 19 acres on this side Mr. Hiltons is divided, & six acres at Lamproue River¹ as Followeth." This consisted of four lots.

"In the Third Division 16 acres on this side mr Hiltons & six acres at Lamproue River." William Hilton was granted "2 acres & 40 poole bee it more or less & 120 poole at Lamproue River." And "m^r Stanyan 8 acres more or less & 2 acres & halfe at Lamp: riuer." There were six lots in all.

In the 4th Division 19 acres on this side Mr Hiltons & 14 acres at Lamp: River diuded & given to them yt haue noe cattle & to eury man an equall pportion wch comes to euery one an acer & an halfe.

At a meeting held at Exeter December 3, 1640, orders were made and agreed upon as follows:

Its agreed vpon yt m^r William Hilton is to enjoy those two marshes in Oyster Riuer wch formerly hee hath had possession of & still are in his possession & the other marsh wch m^r Gibbies doth wrongfully dayne from him with the rest of those marshes wch formerly hee hath may^d use of soe fare forth as they may bee for the publique good of this plantation: And soe much of the vpland adjoining to them as shall bee thought conueyent by the neighbors of Oyster Riuer wch are belonging to this body.

¹ According to David Murray, the eldest Beckett is authority for saying that Lamprey River received its name from John Lamprae. Pascassooke was the Indian name of Lamprey River. The word is retained as the name of its principal branch in the form of Piscassic. The river at Newmarket is called "Lamprey" for the first time in 1652.

It is further agreed vpon y^t vpon or former agreement euery one shall fence his pportion of ground, & if any refuse, whosoever will fence it shall haue the use of it till they bee fully satisfyd if it bee ould ground, & if it bee new hee shall haue it for his payens.

Its likewise agreed that whosoever buyes the Indean ground by way of purchase is to tender it first to the towne before they are to make pper use of it in particular to themselues.

The sons and administrators of Edward Hilton sold 300 acres of his grant of 1652 to Walter Barefoote, November 16, 1674. The grant fell to Samuel and Charles Hilton in the division of their father's estate January 1, 1677. Robert Tufton Mason, as Lord Proprietor, issued writs of ejection against Richard Walderne and 40 other New Hampshire land holders, February 14, 1683, and put Walter Barefoote in possession of the Hilton and Wadleigh estates at Lamprey River. But Mason's clients were able neither to occupy or sell the estates, and the settlers enjoyed disturbed and not peaceful possession still. William Ardell was sued by Mason, May 22, 1684, for trespass in entering the half part of lands and cutting and sawing timber at Hilton's mill on Lamprey river. This was followed, June 15, 1685, by an attachment, in the name of Barefoote, of timber and lumber at Piscassic or in default thereof the seizure of the body of Ardell.

Piscassic rivers were conveyed by the will of Barefoote, October 9, 1688, to his nephew, Thomas Wiggin, Jr. Suits were instituted against the Hiltons for carrying off masts, March 29, 1697. Samuel Hilton deeded the grant to Richard Hilton and Joseph Smith, February 28, and September 2, 1699. The Hiltons on the Grant Road are still in possession of portions of this estate.

March 30, 1675, a grant of 600 acres was made to Moses Gilman by the town measurers, bounded as follows:

From mr Hiltons tree marked E at northwest, running southeast forty rod to a corner tree of Robert Smarts marked on four sides being a white oake & with the letter M for Moses, and from hense six score & four rod, meeting at Lamprey riuer path being the old path, northeast to a white oake marked with three mark, on mark being the path and two marks on each syde of the tree as the path goes, so due north according as Lamprey riuer path runs, being fourtene score rod, to a young red oake at Gliddens fence, from thence to a white oake tree marked on three sydes, one myle and forty rod due west ouer to the tayle of the mill, Northy ten score rod to a white oake vpon the pitch pyne playne marked on four sydes, from thence easterd eight score rod butting upon Douer lyne to a great pyne marked & so long to Rob. Smarts mil by the bridge foote & from thence to Gliddens tree before, marked, in which land there is an allowance for an hundred acres & highways.¹

At a town meeting held April 2, 1675, "there was granted to William Moore three hundred acres of vpland which is to lye two miles from the towne, where he can find it which land is to be layd out by the last of June, bounded on Roberts Smarts on the northeast, & against Leiftenant Hall to the southwest, butting toward Edward Hiltons southeast & against Pascascek riuer northwest."

Granted to Robert Smart senior three hundred acres after the same manner, bounded on the common north east, to the southwest next to Ensigne Moores, butting against mr Hiltous grant & Pascasack riuer.

The above lands were granted March 30, 1675, and ordered to be laid out April 2, 1675.

Lamprey River Neck was granted by Dover to Peter Coffin of Exeter April 26, 1675, who sold it to Richard Waldron June 25, 1675, and Waldron sold it to Sampson Doe March 22, 1709.

John York, October 14, 1680, conveyed to Roger Rose 80 acres of land granted to his father. Roger conveyed the same to John Smith July 17, 1705.

January 31, 1681, lands were granted to John Wadleigh, John Clarke, Henry Magoon, Samuel Hall and Joseph Hall.

At a meeting held March 14, 1681, "There was granted to Mr. Robert Wadleigh two hundred acres of land about Lampril riuer, where he may soe find it out, not intrenching vpon former grants or other mens proprieties nor to come within four miles of the meeting house."

At the same time Moses Gilman, Jr., Jeremy Gilman and others were granted two hundred acres each.

At a legal town meeting held March 30, 1681, "There is granted vnto Joseph Wadleigh one hundred acres of land in the township of Exeter, if it doth not intrude vpon any former grant or highwayes."

Also "vnto Ephraim Folsom one hundred acres of land vpon the said termes aforesaid."

"Also to John Young and David Robinson as above."

March 23, 1682, John Young's hundred acres was laid out "at the head of Jonathan Things lot and at Cattaile Swamp."

At a public town meeting held at Exeter October 6, 1690, it was "granted to Peter Coffin A Conveanance of land at hye water mark wheare ye Maj^r part of the selectmen shall see covenant for the Building of wharfe and house."

At a meeting held October 10, 1693, there was "Granted to Capt. Peter Coffin all that parcell of land lying and being and joyneing to douer line, on the north side and upon ye hy waye to Pascaset mille on the west, and so downe to ye mille at Lamperell Riuer falls, not to Infrendg upon any formore grant or possession of Charles Gliden and ye ould Indaine feild at ye landing place, and all ye land of m^r Nutters sould to John Godard and william follit as may Apeare by bill of sale ye said Peter Coffin In gageing in Consideration of ye former promises to paye to ye towne of Exeter the sume of ten pounds forthwith after ye date hereof."

Fifty acres of land were granted to Capt. Thomas Parker, April 11, 1694, on the east side of Lamprey river.

March 26, 1707, Joseph Chesley bought of Sampson Doe all the land between John Goddard's and Richard York's.

The "Two Mile Streak" was a strip of land two miles wide at the head of ancient Dover granted in 1719 and confirmed in 1722, to the proprietors of the iron works at Lamprey River "for their encouragement" and to supply them with fuel. In 1747 there were 16 families and two garrisons on this Streak.

Joseph Hall of Newmarket conveyed to Thomas Millet, February 11, 1736, two tracts of land in Dover which originally belonged to his grandfather, Lieut. Ralph Hall.

The following Newmarket men were among the original proprietors of Nottingham in 1722-23; William Young, Nathaniel Hersey, Job Gilman, Capt. John Gilman, Edward Hall, Joseph Hall, Peter Gilman, Nathaniel Rogers and Joseph Moulton.

Chapter V.

IN YE OLDEN TIME.

English settlers brought with them notions and customs respecting landed estates that had grown up in the long ages of tribal and national development. These they applied to land holdings in America without thought of their unfitness. To take a minor example: Among the first colonists land was often transferred by the ancient ceremony known as "livery of seisin."¹ The seller stood upon the tract that had been sold and plucking a twig from a bush or tree passed it into the hand of the purchaser; or gave a bit of turf with a twig stuck in it, and in some cases a splinter also. If there was a house, the seller took hold of the ring of the house-door and formerly gave it to the new owner. The ground with its products and appurtenances was thus symbolically delivered in a manner very suitable to illiterate times and restricted territories. But remote and unsurveyed tracts of wilderness could not well be handed over "by twig and turf."

After a while laws were made to cover the omission of "livery of seisin," and it passed gradually out of use.

The ancient notions of land tenure crossed the sea. At first America seemed destined to be a country of great lords and their liegemen. All the territory embraced in the thirteen colonies was at one time or another covered by grants made to proprietaries. In some regions royal grants overlaid and overlapped one another in bewildering confusion. Land-holding almost everywhere in the colonial period retained some features of feudalism. In Virginia a quit rent of a shilling for every fifty acres was paid to the crown, or to some grantee of the crown. Land was rarely conveyed by a proprietary without at least a nominal rental to some dignitary of the lordship.

But the "manors" in Pennsylvania, and the "baronies" in Carolina, appear to have been such in name only. The people of a township anciently held their land under the manor law, allotting a portion of the township to each family according to rank or wealth. This practice antedates the remotest history and traditions of our race.

In Massachusetts, Connecticut and Long Island the townships, as corporate land holders were to "go the rounds" of their several tracts, renewing the marks in the line trees, at regular intervals. And each individual owner of plow-land, mow-land and forest within a "town," must trace his boundary every winter, if his next neighbor located it. The colonists were thus following a custom whose origin is lost in the obscurity of the ages before written records.

It was the township plan that obtained generally in New England. From the beginning of these colonies the parties fenced their fields together, and shared upland, meadow, and woodland between the families in proportion to their investment, their social importance and some other qualifications not now easily made out.

Each New England family in a town held land in several widely separated pieces. Each individual had his "home lot" and his "acre right" in the undivided meadow, forest and other estates of the "town." "Field meetings" regulated the times of planting and turning of cattle into the "Commons." The "towns" made dividends of lands to individuals. The common field system was only a temporary makeshift.

The Royal Charter vested all power in the General Court. No individual or company could lawfully hold land except by grant of the General Court. Power was granted to the township to hold lands on certain conditions; to support ministers and maintain public worship; for self-defence; in 1630, to demand and supply all able-bodied men with firearms; in 1634, to maintain a watch of two men by night, and furnish a place for the safe keeping of arms and ammunition; to apportion taxes on the people; to fix wages of labor when required by employers; in 1635, to provide standard weights and measures; to decide the location of houses; in 1636, to elect constables and surveyors of highways; in 1637, to restrain swine; to nominate to the General Court persons "to sell wine and strong water"; in 1639, to erect posts on which intentions of marriage might be lawfully put in case there was no public lecture; to require to make returns of births, marriages and deaths; to select two or three men to lay out highways who were afterwards called "selectmen"; in 1641, to authorize selectmen to lay out town ways and erect town bounds; to send to the General Court the names of all idle and unprofitable persons, and to perambulate their town lines once in three years.

It may be interesting to note that the town was the outgrowth of the wants of the people. Planters would settle compactly for convenience of public worship and defence. The church was a powerful force from within, holding the town compacted. Besides the unflagging hostility of the savages for nearly a hundred years gave a pressure from without, making it convenient to live on home lots rather than upon farms. Thus the old English land community acquired vigor in crossing the sea.

Parishes were ecclesiastical bodies exclusively, and bodies corporate only for religious purposes. Each parish was a corporate unity. They were generally divided by geographical lines.

After the Indians became hostile every town or neighborhood maintained at least one garrison or "stronghouse," as a refuge for all the settlers when the red man was on the war path. At times all the women and children would be in the garrison for several weeks. These houses were usually owned and occupied by one family, but when used as a garrison the expenses of living and defence were shared.

In those early days there were few fences and cattle and swine were allowed to run in the highways and on the "common lands" and sometimes overran the limits granted them, thus becoming an annoyance and doing damage. This became an evil which could not long be borne, and a law was passed in 1692, requiring that one or more sufficient pounds should be made and maintained in every town for impounding swine or cattle found doing damage.

Wolves were the most troublesome and dangerous animals encountered by the early settlers of New Hampshire.

As early as 1716, laws were passed with a view of lessening their depredations. It was voted, January 8, 1725, "that there be paid out of the Public Treasury for the head of every grown wolf thirty shillings besides what is already allowed, which will make the Sum four pounds for every wolf's head killed as above." Under this law, during the years 1735-37, some 550 pounds were paid out. The bounty for killing wolves was increased April 11, 1764, from fifty shillings to seven pounds ten shillings new tenor.

The frequency of taverns in the early times when the population was sparse and travelers were few, excites some surprise. But it must be remembered that the tavern was the common gathering place. It had a bar-room, and a comfortable fireside, and a company who were wont to talk over current events, and express their private opinions. It was considered a respectable place. Inn keepers were considered town officers. Their appointment was an honor and mark of respectability. To obtain a license to keep such a house of entertainment, a man must be of good repute and possessed of a comfortable estate.

But this state of things did not continue. As might have been foreseen and expected, the open bar and jovial company furnished occasion for broils and disorders. This led the General Assembly for the public good to pass an act limiting the number of taverns in the town of Exeter to two, and ordering the suppression of all tippling houses, and that the justices of the quarter sessions be appointed to license said town. This act was passed December, 1715.

January 3, 1716, it was voted, "That an Act be passed for the suppression of disorders in licensed houses and in ord^r thereto that tything men be chosen and sworn in each town wthin the Province." But those days have vanished. The old taverns and old tavern keepers, with the old stage, will never be reproduced.

There were no regular public conveyances anywhere north of Boston prior to 1761. In the spring of that year the first regular stage line was opened, running from Portsmouth through Newbury, Ipswich and Medford to Boston (or Charlestown ferry). One round trip was made each week. The stage left Staver's Inn, Portsmouth, at 8 a. m., Tuesday, reaching Boston Wednesday night. Returning, left Boston Friday morning and reached Portsmouth Saturday night.

John Balch, postrider, set out from Portsmouth Saturday morning, July 27, 1781, and rode by way of Conway and Plymouth to Haverhill, N. H., then down the river to Charlestown, Keene and to Portsmouth again. This was repeated every fourteen days.

The Pascataqua bridge from Durham to Newington was built in 1793-94. It was 2,600 feet long and cost $65,000. A great enterprise for those times!

The first turnpike constructed in New Hampshire was from Concord to Pascataqua bridge, Durham. The company was incorporated June, 1796.

The first newspaper printed in New Hampshire was the New Hampshire Gazette, first issued October 7, 1756, at Portsmouth.

In those early days houses were first made of logs, and later with frames. The rooms generally were not more than seven feet in height. Some fireplaces would take in wood from four to six feet in length, back logs, fore stick and kindling. On a cold day the fire was a "roarer." Common chairs were bot-tomed with strips of the brown ash. In the company room were from three to six black, high-back, rush-bottomed chairs. In the living room there would be in winter the bed, trundle bed, cradle, spinning wheel, linen wheel, and sometimes the loom. The kitchen "dressers" contained the table furniture of wooden plates, pewter platters, earthen mugs and tin dippers, with knives, and later iron forks and pewter spoons. The knife basket hung at the side of the room. There was also an eight day clock, often without a case, a gun on wooden hooks and on the mantel-piece, a mug of cider and several pipes. Possibly you would see antlers of a moose or deer.

The old settlers used for lights pieces of resinous pitch pine, which, when lighted, were placed in the corner of the fireplace where the smoke would be drawn up the chimney. Sometimes the lighted torch would be carried in the hand about the house and down to the cellar. The light used during the last century was the tallow or wax candle. The wick was made of home-spun tow, linen or cotton. The candle was frequently run in moulds and as often called a "dip" from the manner in which it was usually made. The candle was followed by the old sperm oil lamp, and later by coal gas and kerosene oil.

Their diet also lacked the luxuries of the present day. Potatoes were introduced by the Londonderry settlers in 1719, but very few were raised about the time of the Revolution. Turnips and parsnips were grown in large quantities and were the vegetables most commonly used.

One common article of food was bean porridge, which was eaten for breakfast, and often for supper. When milk was plenty it was eaten with brown bread for the evening meal.

Another common article of food was baked pumpkin. A hard shelled pumpkin was selected, a hole cut in the stem end, the seeds and soft portions removed, leaving the solid meat. It was then partly filled with new milk and baked six or eight hours and allowed to cool in the oven. Some ate it with milk from bowls; others poured the milk inside and ate from the pumpkin. Pumpkins were much preferred to squashes and few of the latter were raised.

The bread everywhere eaten was the rye and Indian, morning, noon and night. Rye flour was used as we now use wheat. Indian puddings, both boiled and baked, were almost daily eaten. Some families had 365 Indian bannocks for breakfast, and 365 boiled Indian puddings for dinner, in the year. Their quality was improved by adding beef suet and sweet apples. Wild meats and fish were eaten freely. When salmon or venison was out of season a lamb or calf was right to entertain company of standing and position. Liquors were used freely, all drinking from the same earthen mug or bowl. Prior to the Revolution, no tea, coffee, nor cocoa was used, but instead hop and spruce beer, cider, punch, flip, toddy, rum, eggnog and black strap. The gallon bottle in which drink was carried to the field and forest was called a "rundlet."

They had no sweet corn, but used the old yellow or red field corn to boil, roast or hull. Oat and barley cakes were eaten with relish. Indian hominy and succotash made a feast. Wheat and even rye, was used only for company. Beef steak was little used. Salted beef, pork and fish were common.

Flax was raised in great quantities and pulled by the hand, not mown or reaped. Then came the rotting, threshing, combing, swingling and hetcheling by the men, and the combing and spinning by the women, who also often wove it into cloth for family use.

Trade was generally by barter. In 1635, musket balls were made to pass as farthings. Not more than twelve could be given in any one payment.

At the bi-centennial celebration at Exeter in 1838, Judge Jeremiah Smith in his historical address, said of Edward Hilton: "He can be justly called the Father of New Hampshire." The exact date of his settling upon the Squamscot is not known. Tradition locates him here before the coming of Wheelwright and his associates to Exeter. In the allotment of lands, Wheelwright certainly concedes Hilton's prior claim to his extensive possessions at Newfields.

These first settlers found a remnant of the Squamscot tribe of Indians in possession of the soil, but they migrated from this vicinity in 1672 and settled on the Hudson River near Troy, N. Y. They were peaceful and friendly, otherwise Mr. Hilton could not have made a home for himself so far from any settlement. The natural advantages of the location were appreciated by both the red and white men. Fine forests, convenient waterways, abundance of fish and before the dam was built at Exeter salmon and bass were very plentiful in their season.

For a century Exeter was on the frontier. Unbroken forests extended to the west, and on the north to Canada. Bears and wolves abounded, and wrought havoc among sheep, swine and poultry, and destroyed much corn. Gen. James Hill was once pursued by a pack of wolves, one jumping upon his horse. A neighbor hearing the wolves and fearing trouble, fired a gun from his door and frightened them away, thus preventing possible harm.

In view of all the hardships and discouragements confronting them, we may say nothing but the hope of better times kept our fathers alive. When many of the eastern settlements were wholly broken up, they stood their ground. Thus they gained a reputation for fortitude of which their posterity boast to this day.

The principal garrisons were on high land commanding a view of the river. The Capt. William Hilton garrison, erected about 1680, stood on "Fowler's Hill"—a little west of the present dwelling. It was a log house surrounded by a palisade with a sentry box on the barn. In the Indian attack of 1690, the men were at work in the field, and the sentry had fallen asleep. The Indians stealthily approached and fired on the defenceless farmers who rushed for the garrison. Some were killed, among them a gentleman who had lately come from England with considerable money for those times. In that time of terror he had buried his gold in the field and died without revealing the location, and the deposit has not been found to this day. The garrison remained till about 1822.

The Col. Edward Hilton garrison (later Col. Winthrop Hilton's), stood on or near the site of the first Hilton house, in the field near the family graveyard. In the attack upon the hay-makers in this field in 1706, the Indians intercepted the return of the white men to the garrison.

In 1719 Jeremiah Folsom built a two-story brick garrison house upon the hill south of Lamprey River Village, now the property of Mrs. C. Mathes. This garrison was patterned after the Weeks "Brick House," in Greenland. It stood till 1874.

Susanna Folsom, afterwards Mrs. John Mead, the daughter of Jeremy Folsom, when about ten years of age, stepped to the door one evening at dusk and saw Indians peering around the corner of the house. She quickly shut the door and gave the alarm. All was made secure and there was no trouble.

A brick garrison, built by Capt. Edward Hall in 1722, stood upon the spot now occupied by the residence of George W. Pease. It had a wooden portico over the front door, upon which was a small cannon. One evening the family discovered a pine bush standing in the garden on the south side of the house. Suspecting an Indian might be skulking behind the bush, a gun was fired into it, when the bush toppled over and disappeared in the darkness. In the morning traces of blood were found. This garrison stood until 1845.

There was a garrison also on Hall's Mill Road at the Hanson place.

The square at Exeter was adorned with stocks and a whipping-post, but we have no tradition of such instruments of punishment in Newmarket.

The old "pound" stood on the northeast corner of the burying grounds towards the Junction. It was made of wood.

Teamsters often forded the Squamscot a little below the present bridge. Many crossed the river on the ice in winter. This was done after the bridge was built to avoid the payment of toll.

Most of the houses were unpainted. The first one painted in Newfields was the Dudley Watson house, near the Junction, now the home of Mr. George Robinson. The first meeting house was never painted. Meeting houses were not heated in any way.

Chapter VI.

SOME OF THE EARLIEST SETTLERS.

It is eminently fitting that we should give a prominent place to some of the earliest settlers who had so much to do with the laying of the foundations of the Plantation at Pascataqua, and giving it character, ever acting in the interest of good government and the best welfare of its civil institutions. Though the dominant motive influencing their coming to America may have been commercial, yet they were deeply cognizant of the fact that the highest commercial prosperity could only be assured as justice and righteousness should rule in the life of the people, and they were ever ready to shape word and action accordingly.

1. Edward Hilton stood at the head of the list who sustained a sterling character for wisdom and integrity. He had built his house on the Squamscot, December 4, 1639, in a field between the road and the river, a little west of the graves which have since been made there. This is the earliest date on the Exeter records and describes Mr. Hilton's uplands at Newfields and his marshes at Lamprey River. He was possessed of this land about 1628, and it was afterwards sold to some merchants of Bristol, who retained it for about two years. His patent, March 12, 1631, included land on both sides of the Pascataqua, "up to the falls of Squamscot and three miles into the main land for breadth." He assisted in sending a force against the pirates December 5, 1632; was the first magistrate of New Hampshire after the union with Massachusetts, receiving the appointment October 7, 1641; assistant for Exeter, 1642-52; townsman, 1645, and nearly every year to 1652; one of the purchasers of Rev. Mr. Wheelwright's house and land, May 25, 1646; and sold James, his Indian, to George Carr, 1649. The town of Exeter, April 22, 1649, empowered Edward Hilton, James Wall, John and Robert Smart and Thomas Biggs to set up a sawmill "vpon Pascasoke Riuer which Runs Into Lamprell Riuer." He was appointed April 22, 1650, to make out parish rates in pipe and hogshead staves; May 12, 1650, to make an agreement with Rev. Samuel Dudley on the terms of his settlement "in pipe staves and what is due from the sawmills"; was on a commission to agree with Hampton and Dover about the town bounds December 29, 1651; and to go along with Rev. Samuel Dudley to the General Court to assist him respecting the boundaries between Exeter, Hampton and Dover, May 20, 1652. He received a grant of land at Piscassic River one and a fourth miles square, November 6, 1652, "in respect that he had been at charges in setting up a sawmill." This mill, for which he was rated £5 to the ministry in 1656, stood on the lower Piscassic, where also he built his "Piscassic house." His upland embraced the whole village of Newfields. Edward Hilton and Valentine Hill settled the line between Exeter and Dover, April 14, 1657. He was chosen March 4, 1658, to treat with Thomas Wiggin respecting his rate toward the public ministry of Exeter; was one of the principal men of the Province and associate¹ on the bench of the Supreme Court, 1661-64; left depositions dated 1661, 1662 and 1669. The deposition of 1661 states that Philip Chesley had put aboard the vessel "Nineteen moose skins for Samuel Hall."²

He was one of those commissioned to agree with the court in Boston in behalf of the inhabitants of Pascataqua, the court declaring May 19, 1669, "that Mr. Edward Hilton is according to the articles, excepted from the County rates; and that accordingly he be freed from such impositions, and that the Treasurer of the County discount Mr. Hilton's £20 for public worship."

Mr. Hilton died in the spring of 1671, leaving wife, Katherine — not the mother of his children —, four sons, Edward, William, Samuel and Charles, and two daughters, Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Moulton.

² Court Papers, Vol. 1: 109.

Letters of administration were granted to the sons March 6, 1671. The estate was appraised March 9 and 10 at 2204 pounds, and described his lands as "ye estate," one mile and forty-eight rods square, his residence as "ye manor house," and refers also to the "Purcassett house." The estate was divided January 1, 1677.

Edward Hilton was an enterprising, thrifty leader among men having no doubt many retainers on his princely estates and about his baronial residence.

The deposition of Mr. Hilton dated June 25, 1662, testifies to Philip Chesley's demand made several times on Samuel Hall to recover his "tobacco tongs," which Mr. Hall had failed to return.¹

The deposition dated Dover, June 30, 1669, testifies to his hearing Antipas "Mabbricke" say that he gave order to Capt. Walter Barefoot to pay Robert Couch twenty pounds in money for taking his son Moses as an apprentice, and eight pounds to provide his son with clothes; also that Mr. Maverick was to give Moses one year's schooling and at the expiration of his apprenticeship to furnish him "as much in clothes as he brought with him."²

At the same time Ann Hilton "aged about 27 years," confirms the above testimony.³

The sons of Edward Hilton, administrators of the estate, bind themselves jointly by an agreement dated June 28, 1671:

In consideration of the 3^{ds} of ye sd estate due unto or mother-in-law m^{rs} Katheren Hilton "to pay or cause to be paid unto ye sd m^{rs} Hilton during her naturall Life the just sume of Thirtie pounds pr Ann^w In Currant New England Siluer or mrchantable goods at money price, to be delivered & paid unto her quarterly at ye place of her abode, & to provide for her a chamber or convenient room with bed & beding suitable for accomodacions with other necessities for her comfortable being soe Long as she liueth."⁴

June 1, 1677, the sons came to the following agreement as to the division of their land:

Edward Hiltons share begins at a creek by Capt. Gilman's farm and runs down to a Creek called Smarts Creeks mouth; Sam^{el}. Hiltons share from that Creek down to ye place where Georg Norten built a vessell thats his share; William Hiltons Share from thence to ye first marsh Point,—so all to run a norwest point in ye woods to ye head of ye land granted. Sam^l. Hilton & Charles is to have ye old mill and grant with Lampreele Riuer marsh for their shares.

This agreement was duly signed by all, William, as usual, making his W mark.¹

2. James Wall came with other carpenters to Pascataqua in the "Pied Cow," under written contract with John Mason, dated March 4, 1634, to build sawmills and houses for him at Newichwannock; was at Exeter April 3, 1638, as witness to a deed of Wehangnonawit to John Wheelwright and others; signed the Exeter Combination, July 4, 1639; received in the first division of land, December 4, 1639, ten acres and ninety poles upland, and one acre and fifty-four poles marsh with "halfe an acree at Lamproue riuer"; was nominated magistrate "to put an Ishew to small differences amongst us," and also petitioned for peaceable possession of "thouse small quantitie of meddows which are at Lamperell riuer that Douer men now seeme to lay claim to," May 12, 1643; was allowed for "Corne spoyled by swine" and presented Christey Lawson to court for extortion, July 5, 1643; was assigned meadow land August 21, 1643; on committee to meet Dover men at Lamprey River "to consult conclude and bargain with them concerning the making of a bridge ouer the s^d Riuer," January 27, 1645; local magistrate, 1646; townsman and was granted permission with Edward Hilton and others to put up a sawmill on Piscassic River, April 22, 1649; committee on the settlement of Rev. Samuel Dudley, May 13, 1650; appointed special surveyor of highways, September 1, 1651, and April 20, 1652; authorized, in behalf of the town to sign a petition to general court respecting the Exeter boundary of Hampton and Dover, October 15, 1651; and died at Hampton October 3, 1659, leaving his second wife, Mary Philbrick, who married (1) Edward Tuck, and two children.

3. Thomas Biggs petitioned that Exeter might be received within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts in May, 1643. Exeter court, September 5, 1643, "ordered that Thomas Biggs shall pay vnto Grifing Mountegu for taking Away his oure 2^s 6^d and charges, or a nee owre and the Court charges . . . shall pay vnto the Sagamoure for takeing Away his Net and part of it 5^d . . . shall be whipt 6 strips for takeing Away a sith of Captaine Wigons and other petey lasones." The young culprit afterwards became a useful citizen. He was granted lands January 16, 1646; thirteen acres at the mouth of Lamprey River, February 4, 1646; ten acres February 5, 1646; fifty acres, March 4, 1648; sixteen acres, January 12, 1649; twenty acres, November 24, 1650; and was granted permission with Edward Hilton and others to set up a sawmill at Piscassic River, April 22, 1649.

4. John Goddard, a servant of Capt. John Mason, came in the ship Warwick to the Pascataqua with Walter Neale, September 9, 1631. He went first to Newichwannock; then settled on Lubberland side of Lamprey River, and remonstrated in 1643 against being assessed at the Pascataqua patent. He had a grant of land on Great Bay, and held lot No. 14 at Cochecho marsh in 1648. He was on Dover tax list in 1648, only three persons rating higher. The settlement of the line, September 8, 1652, left him in Exeter, apparently the first settler at Lubberland, Lamprey River. In October, 1653, he, with others, was arraigned before the court in Boston, and a verdict rendered against him in October, 1655, for trespass in "entering upon the lands and houses, disposing of the goods and cutting down the timber without permission" of the Mason proprietor of New Hampshire. This was doubtless considered willful trespass, as on July 5, 1653, notices had been posted on the meeting house doors in Dover, Exeter and Portsmouth, and other places protesting against the proceedings of the Massachusetts government, "forbidding all persons to feed upon the lands, cut the grass or fell any timber without license or composition first had or obtained from the said Joseph Mason," he being the agent of Anne Mason, widow of John Mason.

He was rated at Oyster River precinct, September 22, 1659. When the line between Dover and Exeter was established, April 14, 1657, the land of John Goddard was to belong to Exeter. In 1657 he held goods to the value of twenty-five pounds of Mrs. Anne Mason, executrix to Capt. John Mason, for which his estate was attached by Edward Colcord, who held a claim against Walter Neale, agent for said Mason.

John Goddard died in 1660, leaving a widow, Welthena, who married (2) in 1667, Michael Symonds, and children. Mrs. Symonds was living August 8, 1705, being non compos mentis "through much infirmity and exceeding old age." An inventory of Goddard's estate made June 27, and returned September 16, 1667, mentions 100 acres of land joining to John Woodman's above the Falls; "3-8 of pascasick mill" and "50 acres of upland at the further end of the township of Douer joining to Robert Smarts land in Exeter."

The division of his estate, dated Lubberland, May 10, 1670, and approved by court, June 10, 1670, mentions Welthena Symonds, her son, Benjamin Goddard, and her sons-in-law, John Gilman, Arthur Bennick and James Thomas. Goddard's Cove and Creek now point out his name and location. The cellar of the Goddard-Symonds garrison is mentioned March 16, 1736, when Abraham Bennick conveyed to his son Abraham, a "messuage in Lubberland being part of the estate of John Goddard, beginning at the old garrison cellar."

By an agreement between "Goodwife Simmons" and her children, approved in court at Portsmouth, June 25, 1678, John Goddard was to have two thirds of the farm; Mrs. Arthur Bennick and her children, the part of the sawmill that was John Goddard's and the sixty acres of land belonging to it; James Thomas, forty pounds which was his wife's portion; John Gilman, his wife's portion; and Benjamin, 100 acres of land lying at the second falls and sixty acres near Mr. Symonds' sawmill.

5. John Goddard, Jr., a selectman in Dover in 1661, had been absent in 1662, from public worship on the Sabbath four days and had heard the Quakers twice, for which he paid the penalty, — absence from church five shillings each day, attending a Quaker meeting ten shillings. He was joint administrator of his father's estate, June 25, 1667, and died about 1675, without wife or children.

6. Edward Starbuck was born in 1604, and was an elder in the church at Dover in 1638; was at Dover as early as 1641, and had a grant on Great Bay in 1643; with Hatevill Nutter was granted by Dover, December 27, 1647, "accommodation of the upper and lower falls of Lamprill Riuer for the erectinge or settinge up a sawmill"; received Lot No. 14 "ouer ye Back Riuer''; protested against union with Massachusetts, March 4, 1641; was taxed at Dover in 1648 and 1659; deputy to the General Court in 1643 and 1646; was recognized to appear October 3, 1648, with Thomas Joyes at the Court of Assistants at Boston, "to answer for such offences and misdemeanors as have been by him committed against Anabaptists; and furthermore, he will be of peacable and good behaviour towards all man, and especially towards the Reverend Teacher of Douer''; was granted a mill-site at Cocheco second fall, July 4, 1650. In 1653 he conveyed his estate to his son-in-law, Peter Coffin, and retired to Nantucket in 1659. He died December 4, 1690, aged 86 years.

7. Hatevill Nutter was "exhorting elder" in the church at Dover in 1638, and probably sometime minister at Exeter; was assigned Lot No. 20, "ouer ye Back Riuer," recorded 1642; and was owner of land at Lamprey River as early as 1645, which Exeter covenanted to enclose with fence. In carrying out this covenant the inhabitants were ordered out several times to do their shares between 1645 and June 11, 1650, when he formerly accepted the fence which the town "was engaged by covenant" to set up for him. He had Lot No. 11, at Cocheco marsh in 1648 and 1649; was taxpayer at Dover and grand juror, 1649. In 1652 "the meeting house on the hill neer Elder Nutter's" was erected and he makes deposition August 18, 1652, "that in 1636 the land on both sides of Lamprey River was in the possession of the inhabitants of Dover for fishing, planting and felling of timber." He was zealous against the Quakers, 1662. He died in 1675. His will dated December 25, 1674, gives "to my son Anthony Nutter, my mill graunt at Lamprell Riuer." The inventory of his estate, June 25, 1675, mentions "right in Lamprell Riuer for the erection of a sawmill in partnership." This mill-site had been granted him and Elder Starbuck by Dover, as mentioned above.

8. George Barlow joined the Exeter combination, April 2, 1640; petitioned the governor, deputies and magistrates, May 3, 1643, "to appoint the bounds of our town" and also "that we may still peacebly enjoy those small quantities of marshes which are at Lamperel riuer"; was allowed September 5, 1643, one bushel of corn from John Bursley for "corne spoyled by swine"; received lands November 4, 1647, forty acres, March 4, 1648, four acres; perhaps was preacher at Exeter, certainly so at Saco in 1652, where he was forbidden to "prophecy" in 1653. He was a lawyer at Plymouth in 1660.

9. Francis Swain is first mentioned in town books, March 31, 1645; received grants of land in 1646, 1647 and 1650, some of them in connection with Nicholas Swain; received of the parish, June 26, 1650, twenty shillings for his pains and time "in going into the Bay to receive Mr. Dudley his pay;" and committee of the parish, December 5, 1650, "to bargain with some able merchant, in the Bay to furnish Mr. Dudley forty pounds worth of English commodities."

10. John Warren is first mentioned in town books in the grant for sawmill and lot, April 22, 1649; received lands in 1650 and 1664; was appointed September 1, 1651 "to go to the Bay to receive the town's pay of Mr. Kimball for Mr. Dudley;" and committee of town on boundary in 1661 and 1668.

11. Thomas Pettit was allotted uplands December 4, 1639; joined the combination April 2, 1640; petitioned that Exeter be joined to Massachusetts in May, 1643; held office and was on a committee June 13, 1655, to make a new agreement with Mr. Dudley respecting his support. He had a wife, Christian, and daughter, Hannah, born in February and died in December, 1647.

12. Edward Gilman, Sr., the emigrant ancestor of the family in America, came from Hingham, Norfolk County, England, to Hingham, Mass.; seems to have been in sympathy with the Puritan movement, and came to Hingham, Mass., with Rev. Robert Peck in the ship Diligent, August 10, 1638, with his wife, three sons, two daughters and three servants; was admitted freeman, December 13, 1638; was granted, with others, the township of Seekonk, now Rehoboth, Mass., 1641, and his estate was rated at £300, in 1643. His name appears in Ipswich in 1646, and soon after in Exeter, where his sons, Edward and John, had previously located, where he is first mentioned in connection with a mill grant; was "accepted, with his son Moses, at their request, to become inhabitant of Exeter and to come and live amongst us," May 10, 1652; with his sons, John and Moses, and John Legat, was granted July 8, 1652, "200 acres of swamp towards

Mr. Stanyan's meadow lying about a brook that way in distance about two or three miles from the town;" signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts in 1677. With others he was allowed, February 18, 1679, "to erect a gallery at the end of the men's gallery for their wives;" also "the gallery wherein they do sit, and have upon their own proper charges built, we do further confirm and allow of." He died June 22, 1681.

13. Edward Gilman, Jr., was accepted as an inhabitant of Exeter November 4, 1647, with the privilege of setting up mills "in any Riuer within the liberty of Exeter." He had a saw-mill in operation at Squamscot Falls by the summer of 1648; was on a committee to present the call of the parish to Rev. William Thompson of Braintree, Mass., November 16, 1648; to agree with Rev. Mr. Dudley, May 13, 1650; committee on bounds of Exeter, May 10, 1652; and to oversee the building of the meeting house July 8, 1652, from which service he was excused October 23, 1652, because about to sail for England. He was lost at sea in 1653. He was a capable, enterprising and trusted man.

14. Edward Colcord was born in 1609; came to the Pascataqua in 1631, finding there only three houses; received the deed of Wehangnonawit, and other sagamores of "Paschataquacke," with John Wheelwright and others, April 3, 1638; joined the Dover combination October 22, 1640; signed the protest against annexation to Massachusetts, March 4, 1641; received one hundred acres of land at Exeter, April 26, 1645, where he was accepted an inhabitant in 1646, and again as early as May 10, 1652, "to come and live amongst us;" was in Hampton in 1644, and received grant of land, 1646, but soon returned to Exeter; was chairman of a committee to call to account the owners of saw-mills for such boards or plank as were due the town, 1652-54; trustee John Goddard for goods of Capt. John Mason in Goddard's hands, 1657; testified, 1668, "that the northern bounds of Exeter, mentioned in an agreement made with Wehangnonawit, the chief sagamore of the Indians located here, was the westerly part of Oyster River, about four miles northerly beyond Lampierle River;" made deposition August 25, 1676, that he was "aged 67 years living in ye country about 46 years," was one of three commissioners to end small cases under 20 shillings in value; petitioned with Hampton men, October 22, 1677, to be continued under the government of Massachusetts.

Court records prove him to have been incorrigibly litigious. Some of the trouble arose from the fact that he was a sturdy opponent of Massachusetts, up to a certain date. William Hilton was once his surety. Notwithstanding his litigiousness he was one of the most prominent men in the province. On June 10, 1680, the governor and council after a full hearing, made the following order and decree:

Edward Colcord and Ann his wife, being bound over to appear before the council for their disorderly living, upon a full hearing of the case, the council doth order that the said Edward Colcord and Ann his wife shall stand bound to the treasurer of this province in the sum of 5 £ a piece to be of good behavior each to the other during the pleasure of the council, and that the said Ann do attend her duty toward her said husband in the use of the marriage bed according to the rule of God's word, which, if she refuses so to do, upon complaint to the next court at Hampton, the council doth order that she shall be whipped to the number of ten stripes.

Having a case in court with Henry Williams, the issue depending on the "equal judgment" of the president and council "of his Majesties Province of New Hampshire," he petitions them, April 20, 1681, if they shall "see meet to cause myself to be once possessed of ye estate yo^r honours judge mine" "to Appoint Cap:^t Gillman Cap:^t Hussey & Sam^l Dalton Esquires & ye Reverend M^r Sam:^l Dudley and M^r Seaborn Cotton to give me peaceable possession of my estate violently detained from me that I may both enjoy myne own & justly pay others their due." He died at Hampton, February 10, 1682.

15. John Smart came, with his wife and two sons, John and Robert, from Norfolk County, England, to Hingham, Mass., in June 1635, where he received a grant of land, and drew his house lot September, 1635. Goodman Smart was allotted planting land at Exeter, on the east side of the river, December 4, 1639, with marshes on Squamscot and "at Lamproue Riuer." He petitioned in May, 1643, that Exeter might be received within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts; also petitioned the governor, deputy governor and magistrates "to appoint the bounds of our Towne," "to establish three men among us to put an Ishew to small differences amongst us” and “that we may still peaceably enjoy those small quantities of meadows which are at Lamprell river,” May 12, 1643; his house is mentioned in 1644; received ten acres of meadow between Piscassic and Lamprey Rivers beyond the great swamp, January 16, 1645, which was resurveyed July 21, 1680; joined in the agreement to purchase Mr. Wheelwright’s house to be used for a parsonage, May 3, 1646; was granted 300 acres of land, May 25, 1646, “a mile in Breadth reserving six Rods in Breadth for a highway,” on Squamscot River between Newfields and Lamprey River, becoming Edward Hilton’s first and adjoining neighbor on the north. The six rods in breadth for a highway was voted April, 1705, to “belong to those now in possession of said marshes lying or butting against said Land.” It seems that half of this 300 acres was given to his son, John, and August 4, 1682, was laid out by Ralph Hall and Moses Leavitt, town lot-layers, to William Vaughan for his daughter, Mary, as a gift from her Grandfather Cutt, coming to him from John Wedgewood, nephew of John Smart, Jr., through Edward Hilton. John Smart, Jr., had a son, Robert, and a daughter who became the mother of John Wedgewood.

16. Humphrey Wilson was the son of Thomas Wilson, who came to America in June, 1633, and to Exeter with Mr. Wheelwright in 1638, where, in the first division of lands, he was allotted uplands towards Mr. Hilton’s and marsh at “Lamp: Riuer;” joined the combination, April 2, 1640; erected the first mill at Squamscot Falls, the town regulating “the millers toll,” November 2, 1640; was elected “ruler” October 20, 1642; and died in the summer of 1643.

After the death of his father, Humphrey Wilson became proprietor of the gristmill; petitioned the governor, deputies and magistrates, May 3, 1643, “to appoint the bounds of our town,” and also “that we may still enjoy peaceably small quantities of marshes which are at Lamprell river;” and that Exeter be joined to Massachusetts, May, 1643; is first mentioned in Exeter records, 1645; with John Legat bought land of the sagamore, May 8, 1646; was on the committee to agree with Mr. Dudley respecting his settlement, May 13, 1650; on the jury of trials at Salisbury Court, 1651, and one of a committee appointed to make an agreement with Hampton and Dover, and, if they could not agree, to apply by petition to the General Court; rated on his sawmill for the support of the ministry, April 28, 1656; was forewarned not to set his dam over the highway, October 25, 1670; granted 400 acres of land by the town, 1674; signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts, 1677; juror for the trial of Edward Gove, 1683; was sued by heirs of Capt. John Mason, 1684; and on committee to purchase house and land for Rev. John Clark, April 20, 1694. A place for a pew was assigned February 3, 1698, "To Mr. Wilson and his wife, and his son Thomas, and two daughters, Martha and Mary Wilson, and Elizabeth Gilman, joining to Richard Hilton's pew on the east side of the meeting house." Humphrey Wilson married, December 21, 1665, Judith, daughter of Willian Hersey, Sr. Their son, Deacon Francis Wilson, was born May 20, 1672.

17. Valentine Hill, called deacon, was granted by the town of Dover, June 7, 1652, "the whole accommodations of Lamprell Riuer for the erectinge & settinge up saw mill or mills, Poushasicke graunt excepted." He was of Boston in 1636, where he was made freeman, May 13, 1640. He was one of the most enterprising of the proprietors of Oyster River as early as 1646. The falls at Oyster River and 500 acres of land was granted him November 19, 1649, where he had set up a sawmill by July, 1652, which his son Nathaniel conveyed to others, September 13, 1697. Reference is made to "Mr Hill's works" which "stood at high water mark below Lamper Eel Riuer falls." In behalf of the town these grants were made subject to rates for the support of worship to provide for "the erection of a meeting house upon the hill neer Elder Nutters," December 5, 1652. He was deputy for Dover, 1652-55; appointed one of a committee to arrange with Dover Point for the ministry at Oyster River, April 1, 1657; was appointed, with Edward Hilton "to settle the line" between Dover and Exeter, April 14, 1657; resided at Oyster River Point, near the mouth of Oyster River, where a meeting house was built in 1655, with Edward or Seth Fletcher, minister up to 1657; and was taxed at Oyster River precinct November 20, 1659. He married (1), Frances ——— and (2), Mary, daughter of Gov. Theophilus Eaton of New Haven, and died in 1661.

18. Robert Wadleigh, son of John Wadleigh of Saco, Me., was granted by Dover, May 3, 1669, "accommodations for the erecting and setting up of a Sawmill or Mills at the vppermost falls uppon Lamperele riuer comonly called by the name of ye Ileand falls;—he to pay vnto the Towne of douer the some of ten pounds per an: in Marchanta: pine bords at price Currant at the ordinary Landing place by Lamperele riuer lower falls." He was of Wells, Me., and bought land at Island Falls in 1666, and received a grant of ten acres from Exeter, March 16, 1668, both possessions divided with Nicholas Listen. He had a sawmill at the falls as early as April 21, 1668, and Dover confirmed his right May 3, 1669. He was accepted as an inhabitant of Exeter, September 20, 1676, and received large grants, January 31, 1681, 200 acres March 14, 1682, and 120 acres of it laid out at "Spocasoick" December 28, 1688, and March 14, 1689, 200 acres about Lamprey River. He excused himself for having spoken against the President and council, March 9, 1681. He was sued by Capt. John Mason in 1683, but won the verdict of the jury, from which Mason appealed to the king, and Wadleigh himself visited England in 1683. Robert Tufton Mason, as Lord proprietor, February 14, 1683, issued writs of ejectment against Richard Waldron and other land holders. Walter Barefoote, Mason's agent, was put in possession of Wadleigh's land and sawmill at Lamprey River, and by will October 9, 1688, conveyed the estate to his sister, Sarah, wife of Thomas Wiggin. He was nominated by Edward Cranfield for commissioner of the peace, January 6, 1684; delegate from Exeter to the convention which decided it best for New Hampshire to return to the union with Massachusetts, January, 1690; and appointed justice March, 1690. He was on the committee to treat with Rev. John Clark respecting the terms of his settlement, September 18, 1693, and to buy house and land for Rev. Mr. Clark, April 20, 1694. A place for pew in the meeting house was assigned, February 3, 1697 "to Capt. Robert Wadleigh and his wife and his son Jonathan Wadleigh, at the south side of the meeting house, Joining to the wumins staires." He was delegate in 1690, justice in 1693, and judge, 1693–97. He died about 1700.

Three of his sons, Joseph, John and Robert, were indicted for high treason in connection with Edward Gove, February, 1682. His grandson, Philip Wadleigh, was tithing-man in 1732.

19. John Gilman, son of Edward Gilman, was born at Hingham, England, January 10, 1624, and appears first on the Exeter records, January 12, 1649. He received large grants and also bought lands at Squamscot Falls, Newfields, Piscassic, Washucke, Great Oak Hill and the Plains; was chosen to oversee the work on the meeting house, October 23, 1652; to make a new agreement with Mr. Dudley, June 13, 1665; signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts, 1677; built the "log house" opposite to Great Bridge, Exeter, which is still standing; was selectman, 1652, and fourteen subsequent years to 1680; on committee to settle the bounds between Exeter and Dover, 1657, and to run the line between Exeter and Hampton, March 29, 1668; captain of Exeter Military Company, October 12, 1669; on committee to run the line between Exeter and Dover, July 10, 1671, and to adjust all difficulties between Exeter and Hampton concerning bounds, April 29, 1672; councillor, 1680-82; judge of court of common pleas, 1682; relieved of both offices by Governor Cranfield, 1683; petitions for the government and protection of Massachusetts as formerly, February 20, 1690; on committee to assess the expenses of the Indian War about 1692; representative, and speaker of the House, 1693; chosen to purchase house and land for parsonage, April 20, 1694; representative, 1697; joined the church in covenant and confession of faith, September 21, 1698; was captain, selectman, representative, counsellor and judge; town measurer of land, 1700; received December 1, 1664, 600 acres, laid out June 22, 1703, beyond the Piscassic between the road from Lamprey River landing to Wadleigh's and Lamprey River on the Plains; also ten acres, September 20, 1673, between Hilton's creek and Griffin Montague's lot and between the Exeter road and Squamscot River known as "Gilman's pasture" and perhaps a portion of "Nicholas Gilman's farm," the south line of which formed the boundary between Newmarket parish and first parish of Exeter, October 9, 1727; also 600 acres for a farm at Washucke, March 30, 1674, willed July 16, 1700, with upper mill to sons, John and Nicholas, but liberty was granted April, 1703, to lay out this grant at the Great Oak Hill — said Gilman to relinquish "the land formerly laid out at Washucke ye bounds not to be found;" also 50 acres of swamp at Washucke, February 3, 1698; and 100 acres, April, 1702. Capt. John Gilman and William Moor, town measurers of Exeter, certify, May 8, 1705, to their laying out 600 acres of land of Moses Gilman.

John Gilman died July 24, 1708. His will dated July 16, 1700, gives son Nicholas one half of the 600 acres at Washucke and one half of all his meadow flats at Lamprey River; gives son John interest in upper sawmill, and half of the 600 acres at Washucke, with "half of my land at Lamprey river;" and makes his wife, Elizabeth, sole executor.

Administration on the estate was granted his sons, John and Nicholas, May 2, 1709, inventory ordered July 1, and taken July 9, 1709. It mentions land and marsh at Lamprey River, salt marsh at Bray's, Temple meadow, and 700 acres granted by the town.

20. William Badger, son of William and Abigail, was born in 1752. Sold land in Portsmouth for £6,300 to Nathaniel Melcher, boatbuilder, November 11, 1780; became an eminent shipbuilder at Newfields and on Badger's Island in Pascataqua River, the island having previously been called Langdon's and Governor's Island. Tradition places his shipyard and that of William Shute on the Stratham side of the Squamscot. The island had been previously used exclusively by the government for naval purposes, 1775-1800, when the present navy yard was established. At the two places in time Mr. Badger launched a fleet of 100 ships, giving to the last one his own name.

He bought, February 8, 1785, of Nathaniel Lord, feltmaker, for £95, 1 1-4 acres and 15 square rods of land on the highway leading to Newfields Landing, with the buildings thereon, which estate Lord had purchased February 26, 1771, of William Odiorne; also, October 24, 1786, for £60 of Zebulon, son of John Neal, 1-8 acre of land, together with the mansion house thereon, on the highway from Durham to Exeter, and sold the same, January 14, 1790, to Ebenezer Wilson of Newmarket, mariner; petitioned the selectmen, March 10, 1791, with reference to the location of the new meeting house, and bid off gallery pew No. 36; was approbated by the selectmen, November 7, 1801, as a retailer of spirituous liquors.

In 1804 William Badger of Kittery, shipwright, bought of John Badger of Portsmouth, tin plate worker, land there, and also, 1809, house and land in Deerfield, of Samuel Badger; took a mortgage deed from William Shute, shipwright, April 6, 1810, of land at Newfields Landing set off to the heirs of William Shute, deceased.

21. Moses Gilman, son of Edward Gilman, was baptized at Hingham, England, March 11, 1630. He is mentioned first on Exeter town books, February 10, 1648; accepted, with his father, to be an inhabitant, May 10, 1652; was selectman, 1653, 1660, 1673, 1677 and 1693; committee on boundary, 1668 and 1671; juror for the trial of Edward Gove, 1683; received important grants of land running from 1652 to March 28, 1698, the grant of March 30, 1674 of 600 acres being known as "Moses' Farm" and was laid out between "the upper corner tree of Mr. Hiltons farm," and "ye teaille of Mr. Hilton's mill at pascasick." A part of this grant was sold by his sons in 1715, and became the Bennett homestead. He was one of a committee to purchase house and land for parsonage, April 20, 1694. His will was dated January 12, 1691, and probated August 6, 1702. His house is mentioned October 10, 1664. Tradition says it stood about 20 or 30 rods northwesterly from the residence of Joseph Furnald. He was active in town affairs and often elected to posts of trust; was selectman, 1653, 1660, 1673-74, 1677 and 1693, and was succeeded in this office by his son, Moses, 1694; was chosen to run a line between the two meeting houses of Exeter and Hampton, also between Exeter and Hampton, March 29, 1668; also between Exeter and Dover, July 10, 1671; in connection with his father, brother, John, and brother-in-law, John Leavitt, received July 8, 1652, 200 acres of swamp; October 10, 1664, 50 acres; was taxed among 66 persons in Exeter, April 20, 1680, and with others petitioned for the government and protection of Massachusetts, February 20, 1690; granted 50 acres of land where he can find it clear of other grants, March 28, 1698, "the said Gilman to give up a grant he had of fifty acres formerly at grass Swamp to the town again." In 1684 his wife gave Thomas Thurston, Governor Cranfield's provost marshal, to understand that she had kettles of boiling water for him, if he came to her house to demand rates.

Intimately associated with the Gilman family in the ownership of land and mills, were their kindred of the Folsom family.

22. John Folsom, son of Lieut. Peter, and grandson of John Folsom, lived in Piscassic near the Exeter line, where the old cellar still remains. He administered on his father's estate and returned an inventory, April 18, 1718; petitioned for a bridge over Squamscot River, November 21, 1746; and for a lottery in aid of bridge, 1759-60, and 1768. In his will dated February 1, 1756, he gave "the mill &c to Joshua, and the land on the line of Newmarket and Exeter to Peter." Peter was the eldest son, and settled on the homestead. Joshua had built a gristmill at West Epping about 1746. He was a preacher among the Friends.

23. Benjamin Folsom, brother of John, was born in 1696, and lived at Piscassic west of Mackesill Brook; was tithingman, March 29, 1725; petitioned to be governed by Massachusetts in 1739; was a soldier, 1746; and died March, 1752, aged 56. He married Rachel, daughter of James, and granddaughter of Moses, Gilman. She was born in 1699, and died March 16, 1785.

24. Lieut. Ralph Hall, son of John Hall of Dover, was born in England in 1618. Tradition locates him on the east side of Salt River at the falls of the Squamscot, near Wheelwright's creek, earlier even than the arrival of Wheelwright's company in 1638. He joined the Exeter combination October 4, 1639, and April 2, 1640; petitioned the governor, deputies and magistrates, May 3, 1643, "to appoint the bounds of our town," and also "that we may still peaceably enjoy those small quantities of marshes at Lamperel River;" granted 50 acres of land, and a marsh he had found, January 21, 1644, 20 acres February 10, 1648, March 21, 1650, September 30, 1655, 10 acres near Stony Brook, sold later to Cornelius Leary, 1664, 1670 and 1674; was on committee on boundaries in 1668 and 1671; commissioned lieutenant in 1656; selectman in 1674, 1676 and 1677; selectman and lot-layer in 1680; was sued by the heirs of John Mason, 1684; is supposed to have gone to Dover for a time where he was taxed in 1659, but returned and was admitted an inhabitant of Exeter, October 10, 1664. The town voted him, March 15, 1668, "full power to arrest and sue any inhabitants who refuse to pay the rate of the ministry;" was on a committee of Dover April 1, 1657, to arrange with Dover Point for the ministry at Oyster River; to run line between Hampton and Exeter meeting houses, May 29, 1668; and to lay out the line between the Shrewsbury patent and Exeter, March 30, 1668; with his wife, Mary Chesley, was put under bonds to appear at court on a charge of witchcraft, from which they were released by the governor of New York, August 21, 1668; received a grant of 50 acres October 25, 1670; on a committee to consider difficulties between Hampton and Exeter about conveying lands, April 29, 1672; was granted 400 acres of land at Newfields, February 9, 1674, which was laid out the same year on the west side of the Exeter road adjoining the Edward Hilton estate; selectman, 1674 and 1676-77; signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts, 1677; lot-layer, 1679; deputy from Exeter, 1680 and was sued on behalf of Mason's claims, 1684. He died March, 1701, leaving sons, Joseph Kinsley and Edward.

25. Joseph Hall, son of Lieut. Ralph Hall, and grandson of John Hall, is first mentioned on the town records October 10, 1664, when he received a grant of fifteen acres of land. Perhaps he first settled at Newfields. Another grant of fifty acres, January 31, 1681, was laid out in September, 1702,—“he having lately deceased”—to his two sons, Joseph and Edward, on “the west side of pascasick riuer at the head of the Land that was their father's the boue s^d Joseph Hall.” These sons were large land owners at Newfields and at the falls of Piscassie on which they probably built “Hall's mill.” Joseph Hall married Mary, daughter of the second Edward Hilton.

26. Kinsley Hall, brother of Joseph, was born in 1652. He received land, February 9, 1674, 10 acres August 27, 1677, 100 acres January 31, 1681 and 1702; took the oath of allegiance and fidelity November 30, 1677; was sued by the heirs of Capt. John Mason, 1684; signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts in 1677; selectman, 1681, 1690 and 1693; was complained of before the court of assistants by Attorney-General Edward Randolph, February 14, 1682, for assembling in a riotous manner at the house of Gov. Edward Cranfield and declaring his abhorrence of the “known practice of the Laws of England in the matter of taking oaths;” was on committee, October 6, 1690, to treat with Elder William Wentworth “for his continuance with us in the work of the ministry;” administered on the estate of his brother, Samuel, March 28, 1692; assembly-man in 1693-94 and 1698; councillor in place of Richard Waldron in 1696-98; declined the position of associate judge, May 26, 1697; was judge of the superior court, 1697-99; captain of a garrison at Exeter from August 31 to September 28, 1696; and was on committee, February 3, 1698, to seat the new meeting house, when a place for a pew was assigned "to Kingsley Hall and his wife and five children at the west dore;" was chosen, August 26, 1698, to make provision that a church be gathered and Mr. John Clark ordained September 21, 1698, on which day he joined the church in covenant and profession of faith; was moderator, 1700 and 1704; on committee to call the selectmen to account April, 1702; town clerk, 1720-22, and 1724-25; and ordered by a vote of the town to deliver the town books to Josiah Hall, town clerk, 1726; sold a grant of 100 acres of land, and had it laid out to his sons, Josiah and Paul, "on the north side of the mast way leading from Gilman's mill at Piscassic into the country," February 15, 1725; and 10 acres laid out westward of Piscassic River, March 11, 1725; was apportioned 200 acres of common land, 1725. He died in 1736, no son surviving.

27. Edward Hilton, Jr., son of Edward Hilton, was an adherent of royalty and of the established church. He was appointed, July 8, 1652, one of the "overseers to build the meeting house forthwith, twenty feet square each inhabitant to do work" "and every man shall come forth to work upon it as they are called out by the surueyor;" was relieved of this service, October 23, 1652, because of the pressure of his private business. With others he petitioned for meadow land, May 24, and received a grant November 6, 1652. He received a deed of Washucke "about six miles square between the branches of Lampy Riuier" from Sachem Wadononamin in 1660, "y^e Indian Sagamore of Washuck and Pascataqua," "now living at Washuck." He was among the petitioners to King Charles II, July 15, 1665, to be taken from the Bay government which has "denyed us in our publique meeting the common prayer, sacram^{ts} and decent buriall of the dead contrary to the Laws of England." He sold, June 13, 1681, to John Folsom, Jr., two pieces of land, containing 12 acres of upland and four of marsh, "ye upland beginning at the water side in the field commonly called W^m Hilton new field and so running up to a small white oak by the way-side y^t goeth down to W^m Smarts and so running on a square line to John Wedgewood's land between which said line & ye water side.—four acres of marsh joining at the east end with ye land of Mr. John Cutt and so running up a creek commonly called Mr. Hilton's first creek;" by the will of Walter Barefoote, October 3, 1688, was released from the payment of a debt of his father due to Barefoote; gave name to a garrison, 1690; was reinforced by two men from Hampton, April 24, 1693. Mr. Hilton was an amiable and hospitable man, but not ambitious of public honors. He kept up the reputation of his place as the house of those who needed homes, furnished work for those able to work, and bread and cheese for those who needed a support, which from age or infirmity or misfortune they were unable to earn. He married Ann, born October 16, 1641, daughter of Rev. Samuel Dudley of Exeter, and granddaughter of Gov. Thomas Dudley. Her mother was Mary, daughter of Governor Winthrop of Massachusetts. His children were Winthrop, Dudley and Joseph, and several daughters. He died April 28, 1699.

28. Col. Winthrop Hilton, son of Edward, Jr., and grandson of Edward, Sr., was a man above the medium size, muscular, active, well-formed, among the most fearless of the brave, the most adventurous of the daring; had a garrison on his farm, and his neighbors looked to him for counsel in difficulty and protection in danger; became after the death of Col. Richard Waldron, the leading military man in the province, and had chief command in several expeditions against the Eastern Indians; was commissioned by Governor Allen, May 17, 1689, Lieutenant of the Troop of Horse. Was selectman, 1696; assigned seats in the meeting house February 3, 1697; and made surveyor of highways, 1697.

At a town meeting held in Exeter March 29, 1697, "It was voted and agreed upon that Theophilus dudley and David Lawrence and Sam^{el} Thing be a Committy with full power from the Town to make demand or sue m^r Peter Coffin or Richard Hilton or Winthrop Hilton for money due to the town for halling or carrying of masts out of this Township as by said town axts may appear to be dou the town." Accordingly suit was brought against them. He received 100 acres of land, February 3, 1698, and 400 acres the first Monday of April, 1706; and the same day was on a committee "to mark a full agreement With m^r John Odlin for his sallary & other things needful;" was prominent in the Indian wars, and commanded an Exeter expedition; was granted 50 acres of land, February 3, 1698, which was laid out August 10, 1717, and sold by Benjamin Thing to Robert Barlow, March 7, 1757, at Piscassie, 40 rods north of Piscassie River; constable, 1701; is called Major and marched with Colonel Church to the east against the enemy, 1703-04; marched to Norridgewock, 1704-05; was granted 200 acres of the common land by the town of Exeter, April, 1706, cornering on the land of Theophilus Dudley, running parallel with land of James Gilman and the town commons, and along Piscassie River. A main way was laid out December 4, 1707, between his dwelling house and that of Dudley Hilton's, from Newfield landing to the extent of the town's lands by Gilman's sawmill; justice of the Court of Common Pleas, April 15, 1707, retaining the office till his death; was out as a scout to Amesbury with 64 men, 1707; his farmers attacked in the hayfield, with four killed, one wounded and three captured, July, 1707; commissioned colonel of the new forces raised by Gov. Joseph Dudley, 1707; proceeded to Port Royal, May 26, 1707; marched to Pigwacket, 1709; counsellor, 1710; and was killed, with his brother Dudley and others, by the Indians "up the mast way," June 23, 1710.

29. William Hilton, son of Edward Hilton, Sr., was styled "Captain;" had a mill at Lamprey River, and was granted sixty acres of land, April 14, 1657; received land of Symmes, February 18, 1667; had a grant made out to him by the town measurers, April 3, 1671, "bounded southeast upon the river, upon the Towne's land northwest with Robert Smarts land North east with the creek next to his house and the Towns land southwest, and this land being a mile and forty eight rod square;" sold sixty acres on Exeter River adjoining land of Robert Smart, to William Perkins of Oyster River, July 25, 1675; received his share of his father's estate, the northern portion extending from George Norton's shipyard to first marsh point, January 1, 1677; paid province rates at Exeter, April 20, 1680; was grand juror in 1681; juryman, 1683-85; provost marshal, September 20, 1684; petitioned for the government of Massachusetts, as formerly, February 20, 1690; was selectman, 1690; made his will in 1684, and died about 1690. He married Rebecca Symmes of Kittery.

30. Richard Hilton was the son of Capt. William and Rebecca (Symmes) Hilton, and grandson of Edward Hilton, Sr. He was commissioned lieutenant, 1692; bought mills and marsh at Piscassic River of John Folsom, August 2, 1693; was on a committee April 20, 1694, to purchase house and land near the meeting house to be improved by the town for the use and benefit of the minister. A place for a pew was assigned February 3, 1698, "to Richard Hilton" and family "on the north side of the meeting house Joyning to the parsonage pew;" received with his brother Winthrop a grant of 100 acres joining to their mill in Piscassic, February 3, 1698; and 20 acres of meadow land "up pascasick river," February 21, 1698; was commissioned justice of the Superior Court, March 13, 1699; purchased a salt marsh and flats at Lamprey River, May 24, 1699; received a grant of 20 acres, April 17, 1700; was granted the privilege of a ferry over Squamscot River for fifty years, June 12, 1700, which privilege was granted to Jonathan Wiggin for 29 1-2 years, July 13, 1721; selectman, 1701 and 1707-08. In 1703 we find there was "y^e Schoulmaster to keep scoul at Richard Hiltons" he "to provide s^d schoul master with hous rome & fire wood convainent." He was on a committee to collect Mason's claims due to Samuel Allen, June 4, 1704; also to call the selectmen to account 1704; and to provide preaching for three months, September 3, 1705; sold 21 acres of land lying near his house to Robert Barber, April 17, 1705; was on a committee April, 1706, "to mak a full agreement with M^r John Odlin for his sallary & other things needful," which was signed June 6, 1706; bought land of Joseph Hilton, January 23, 1710; mortgaged 50 acres to George Jaffrey, 1713; sold land to Richard Hilton, Jr., 1715; with George Jaffrey mortgaged 284 acres, reserving 12 acres for Jonathan Hilton, to Mrs. Mary Plaisted, January, 1717; deeded land to his son, Samuel, 1719; and all his estate, subject to incumbrances, to Edward Hall, December 28, 1721; was apportioned 150 acres of common land, 1725; deeded to his sons, William and Samuel, 900 acres in Newmarket, October 12, 1732; assigned 10 acres laid out to Samuel Hilton, August 9, 1738; deeded buildings and 30 acres of land to Josiah Burley, 1739. He finally removed to Portsmouth.

His descendants were numerous. One of his granddaughters, a girl of fine face and form, but wanting in fortune, was a housemaid in the family of Gov. Benning Wentworth during his widowhood, and struck his excellency's fancy, as also that of a joiner in the neighborhood. The governor saw danger in such a rival, and a press gang swept him out of the way and carried him on board of a 74-gun ship. The governor's courtship was short. He had the gout and wanted a nurse. Martha handled his gouty foot with discretion, and convinced him that nothing should be wanting on her part to keep his excellency comfortable. So one day he had a large party to dinner, and before the feast conducted Martha into the room and invited the minister to marry them. He did so and Martha Hilton, the maid, became the governor's lady and took her seat at the head of the table.

It is fitting to note here the agreement of the Hilton brothers, Winthrop, Dudley and Joseph, for dividing the estate left them.

Whereas our Honored ffather Edward Hilton Late of Exeter Deseased hath given and bequeathed unto us Lands Meddows and Interests in Mills,

JOSEPH HILTON (Seal)

This was signed in presence of Kinsley Hall and Biley Dudley before Moses Leavitt, Justice of the Peace.¹

On June 18 following, the three brothers signed the accompanying document in the presence of the same witnesses:

unto our Sister Jane Matoon . . . all the right title and Interest that we or either of us haue or ought to haue in ffive acres of Land allotted to her by our father Edward Hilton late of Exeter deseased.²

From the first settlement of Newfields till 1710, the Hiltons stood high in society and gathered around them the mass of the community. They were generous and hospitable. Their houses were as taverns in everything but the payment of bills, and a hurrah for the last was received as satisfaction in full for all favors. Such a family could not grow rich. The grants made to Edward Hilton have been divided among the community. A small portion thereof has come down to his posterity and still remains in their hands. George E. Hilton has still in possession a portion of the patrimony, and has in him a respectable portion of the modified and corrected characteristics of his ancestors. The homestead of the progenitor curtailed by many alienations, with the graveyard of the family where the remains of eight generations repose in peace, is still in possession of a descendant.

met, took possession of 640 acres "on Lamper Eele Riuer, at Island falls," now Wadleigh's. His will is dated February 16, 1673.

When the Gilman and Folsom families arrived at Hingham, Mass., they found the family of Hersey already there. Several members of these families intermarried and came to Exeter.

32. William Hersie, Sr., one of the original planters of Hingham, Mass., received a grant of land, June, 1635; was made a freeman, 1638; member of the artillery company, 1652; and died March 24, 1658.

33. Robert Hersey petitioned the governor, deputies and magistrates May 3, 1643 "to appoint the bounds of our town," and also "that we may still peaceably enjoy those small quantities of marshes which are at Lamperel Riuer." He also "petitioned that Exeter might be joined to Massachusetts, May, 1643, and received a grant of meadow, January 27, 1645."

34. Thomas Hersey belonged to Exeter, 1650.

35. Peter Hersey married Elizabeth, daughter of James, and granddaughter of Moses Gilman, and settled at "Hersey Lane," where sixty acres of his estate were "within y^e Tract of Land Comonly Called & knowne by y^e name of Moses Gilman's six hundred acre grant." Here he died in 1722. A son, Peter, Jr., served his time as a farmer with his grandfather, James Gilman, who gave him land and mill at Piscassic where he built the Hersey house in 1740 to 1742. A daughter, Polly, married Col. Jeremiah Folsom of the brick house. They were devout followers of Whitefield.

36. Capt. Jeremiah Gilman, son of Moses Gilman and grandson of the first Edward Hilton, was born August 31, 1660. The Gilmans, who early came to Exeter, branched off into that part of the town which is now Newfields. He petitioned to be governed by Massachusetts as formerly, February 20, 1690; was a soldier in garrison in 1696. His wife was admitted to the church at Hampton, April 4, 1697, as there was then no minister at Exeter. A place for a pew in the meeting house was assigned, February 3, 1698 "to Jeremiah Gilman and his family joining to the south door." On same date he received a grant of land at Piscassic; had mill at Piscassic, 1706, and land there, 1721; was one of the proprietors of Gilmanton, May 20, 1727; gave a deed to his son, Ezekiel, December 10, 1729; was apportioned 100 acres of land "over Piscassic river" August 9, 1738; and petitioned for the formation of a parish at Brentwood, in 1743.

37, 38. Peter and Robert Coffin were sons of Hon. Peter and Abigail (Starbuck) Coffin of Dover and of Exeter. Peter was taxed in Dover in 1659, and was deputy for Dover in 1672, 1673 and 1679; was authorized to build a turret and hang the bell, February 15, 1665, in the second house of worship at Dover Point; and also a fortification around it, May 4, 1667. Peter and Robert inherited Elder Edward Starbuck's interests in land and mill rights at Lamprey River.

Capt. Peter Coffin was born in Brixham, England, in 1630; came to this country and resided in Dover until late in life when he removed to Exeter; lived in the present location of Phillips Exeter Academy; sold to John Hall of Greenland, 1662, land granted to Elder Starbuck; was selectman, 1668 and 1675; judge of the Court of Common Pleas, 1670-74; representative, 1672-73 and 1679-80; counsellor, 1688; was a member of the court that tried and condemned Rev. Joshua Moody of Portsmouth; bought of the town of Dover, June 25, 1675, all its "Right in Lamper-Eel River Neck both Land and timber from the head of John Goddards Creek so far as the tide flows upon a strait Line to the Cove at high water mark below Lamper-Eel River fall where Mr Hills works stood, for the sum of one hundred and Fifty Pounds and upon the said Coffins procuring the said Waldrons note for so much accepted In part of what the Town doth owe him that the Selectmen shall Confirm to the said Coffin, or his order the Neck of Land;"¹ encouraged many to stick to the government of Massachusetts, 1677.

Under date of June 25, 1675, the selectmen, Job Clements, Peter Coffin and Timothy Nutter, make known the fact "that the said Peter Coffin doth make over the said Neck of Land with all Towns Rights to the same which the said Coffin bought of the Town unto the said Capt. Richard Waldron, his heirs and assigns forever & whereas the Selectmen upon the Discounting of one hundred & fifty pounds Due to Cap^t Richard Waldron from the town of Dover Due in Behalf of the towns assign and set over and Grant unto the said Richard Waldron his heirs & assigns forever the above said Neck of land, with all Rights and Privileges Belonging to the Town upon the said Neck at the time of the sale thereof." His garrison was attacked in the Indian massacre at Dover, January 27, 1689.

The town granted to Capt. Peter Coffin, February 21, 1698, "Liberty to Lay Logs in the Eddy and creek afore his mill att Lamperill river.;" also at the same time 200 acres of land on "the north side of Lamperill river saw mill above Mr Wadleighs mill for the Land the new meeting house stands upon not to preiudice any former grant nor highway."

The town measurers, Biley Dudley and Robert Coffin, August 22, 1698, laid out 100 acres according to this grant, "bounded by Lamperell riuer opposite Nicholas Doe . . . near the path that leads to ye Seacon fall." He presented a claim for entertaining soldiers in garrison at Oyster River, May 15, 1694, and of Exeter for soldiers at Oyster River, November 30, 1694; was commissioned Justice by William III, August 16, 1699; and agent of Richard Waldron of Portsmouth in renewing the bounds of Squamscot with the lot-layers of Exeter, Moses Leavitt and Robert Coffin, 1697. In March, 1702, the governor and council ordered him to send two men to scout from Exeter to Pickpocket mill, thence to Kingston and so back to Exeter; also to send two men to Lamprey River to the house of John Smith and so back to Exeter; had 200 acres of land granted him, April, 1702; acted as justice of the peace, Exeter, 1704-05 and 1713; on committee of the parish, 1706; had an account against the estate of Col. Winthrop Hilton, 1711. He died at Exeter, March 21, 1715.

39. Peter Coffin, Jr., was born August 20, 1660; was appointed September 18, 1693 "to agree with Rev. John Clark to come to this town to be our minister;" in 1695, "to keep the account of the work done on the meeting house;" January 1, 1696, "to build the meeting house;" and petitioned in 1697 for the renewal of the bonds of Squamscot.

He was chosen August 26, 1698, to make provision for the gathering of a church and the ordination of Mr. John Clark September 21, 1698, when he and Deborah Coffin, his wife, joined the church in covenant and profession of faith. The first parish voted November 16, 1728, that a new meeting house should be built and set on "some part of that land which the present meeting house standeth on, which land the town purchased of Captain Peter Coffin for that use." Mr. Coffin was a contributor to the building of the high steeple, April 4, 1739; petitioned to be joined to Massachusetts, 1739; was trader in Exeter previous to the Revolution, and major in Col. David Gilman's regiment.

40. Robert Coffin, son of Peter Coffin, Sr., was born in 1667, and married Joanna, twin daughter of John and Elizabeth (Treworgie) Gilman, who was born April 30, 1679. He was town measurer in 1697-98, 1700 and 1703; received, September 9, 1701, "all ye right ye town of Exeter hath or had in ye Lower falls att Lamperell riuer with all ye priueleg of ye flats 20 rods below s^d falls," . . . he "to pay fiue pounds per annum a yer yearly to the town or ministry by way of rent." "Fiue Aykers" of the 100 granted him in April, 1702, were laid out August 9, 1713, with bounds, "a p^ckit Rock which Layes in Lamperill Riuer Lower falls . . . Douer Line, . . . Goddards Creek, . . . Lamperill Riuer Lowwater mark." A place for a pew in the meeting house was assigned February 3, 1698 "to Robert Coffin and his Wif and Elizabeth Coffin, and the widda Coffin, and his children, joining to Captain Wadleighs pew." He died May 19, 1710.

41. William Moore received lands in the first allotment at Exeter, December 4, 1639, 22 acres and 110 poles upland and 2 acres 40 poles marsh "this side Mr. Hiltons," and 120 poles at Lamprey River. He petitioned the governor, deputies and magistrates, May 3, 1643 "to appoint the bounds of our town," and also "that we may still peacably enjoy these small quantities of marshes which are at Lamperel riuer;" received grants of land January 16, 1645, November 4, 1647, 10 acres, December 15, 1647, 30 acres, January 21, 1666, 36 acres, March 3, 1674, 12 acres, and April 2, 1675, 300 acres, which was laid out with Robert Smart's 300 acres, April 22, 1698, at the "Head of m^r Edward Hilton's Land and to Pascasick Riuer and joyning to Lieut Hall's four hundred acres;" was also granted 60 acres, February 21, 1680; was on a committee to run the line between Exeter and Hampton, March 29, 1668, between Exeter and Dover, July 10, 1671; and to equalize the distribution of land, March 11, 1679; signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts in 1677; was on a committee to make a new agreement with Rev. Mr. Dudley, June 13, 1655, and to seat the new meeting house, February 3, 1698; was a delegate for Exeter to the convention which decided it best that New Hampshire return to its former union with Massachusetts, January, 1690; was commissioned captain, March, 1690; joined the church in covenant and confession of faith, September 21, 1698. His name appears last upon the town records as moderator, in 1699.

42. Andrew Burley, son of Giles Burley, was born at Ipswich, Mass.; married Mary, daughter of Roger Conant, March 14, 1681; was granted liberty to burn a kiln of brick at Jeffries Neck, March 20, 1687; purchased lands at Bayside, Newfields, January 18, 1695, of Samuel Cutt, Richard Waldron and Samuel Penhallow; subscribed for "a bigger bell," 1699, and January 16, 1700, was assigned a seat in the new meeting house at Ipswich; divided land with his brother, James, at Newmarket, 1715, and died, Ipswich, February 1, 1718.

43. James Burley, his brother, was born in Ipswich; bought 150 acres of upland and meadow at Bayside of Daniel King, January 31, 1685; settled there, 1699; was surveyor of highways, 1704; bought marsh of Stephen Minot, 1712, and land of Joseph Hilton, 1714; divided land with his nephew, son of Andrew, May 22, 1718; was appraiser of the estate of Robert Smart, May 22, 1718; conveyed lands to his sons, Joseph, James and Giles, 1719; and died at Bayside about 1721.

44. Josiah Burley, son of James, and grandson of Giles Burley, was born in 1701; chosen tithing-man, March 29, 1725; married Hannah, daughter of Andrew and Abigail (Follett) Wiggins, and died in 1756.

45. Richard Glidden, probably son of Charles, was of Portsmouth in 1665, and of Exeter in 1677, in which year he signed in favor of continuing with Massachusetts. He received grants of land in 1698 and 1725; joined the church in covenant and profession of faith, September 21, 1698; was administrator of his brother John's estate, January 4, 1710. His will, dated October 18, 1727, and probated December 4, 1728, mentions wife Sarah and seven sons and three daughters. The family lived in the vicinity of Wadleigh's falls. His heirs had 10 acres of land assigned them, August 9, 1738.

46. John Wedgewood, son of John and Mary Wedgewood of Hampton, received from his uncle, John Smart, one half of the 300 acres of land which was granted to Goodman John Smart May 25, 1646, and re-surveyed July 21, 1780; received by his father's will, November 24, 1654, a dwelling house and other estate in Exeter. He is first mentioned on Exeter records, March 3, 1673, when he was chosen to look after the manufacturers of pipe staves with reference to their ministerial rates; was one of 62 persons taxed in Exeter, April 20, 1680, and was landowner at Newfields, June 13, 1681; was commissioned to lay out lands, 1698; of Exeter, 1700; was with Hampton men at Fort William and Mary from May 18 to June 1, 1708; taken captive by the Indians, June 1710, carried to Canada, but escaped and returned with two other men; enlisted from Major Smith's company with the scout of Capt. James Davis, 1712. Wedgewood Point, lying between Shute's Point and the Fowler place, locates his residence.

The name appears here for more than a century and a half and represented an orthodox faith. "Mr. John Wedgewood died March 6, 1828, aged 95." "Mrs. Mary Wedgewood died August 20, 1824 aged 79."¹

47. Capt. Eliphalet Coffin was apportioned 100 acres of common lands, April 12, 1725; bid off pew No. 30 on the main floor for £18 10s. March, 1731; was on committee to call the selectmen to account in 1732; sold to Stephen Pendergast 84 acres of land with the garrison house at Lamprey River second falls, now known as the Pendergast Garrison, October 9, 1735. Captain Coffin died August 16, 1736. His will dated January 15, 1735, and probated September 13, 1736, gives to his wife "my mulatto girl named Tinne and my negro girl named Peg, and my negro man Jack," and to his son, Peter, lands in Exeter, Stratham and Dover with the orchard upon it, including 100 acres at Lamprey River and "my negro man Jack after his mother has done with him."

48. Philip Chesley, son of Philip, and grandson of Philip, bought of Thomas Packer, December 1, 1711, 50 acres of land adjoining Lamprey River together "with ye privilege of erecting a mill or mills upon ye said riuer." Samuel, his brother, sold to Samuel Lindsey, March 1, 1728, one eighth of the sawmill at the falls in Lamprey River "commonly called Packers falls." The falls were so named from Thomas Packers who received from Dover a grant in this region, April 11, 1694.

49. Joseph Chesley, son of Thomas, and grandson of Philip, acquired land, March 26, 1707, on Lubberland shore, where his garrison stood, purchasing of Sampson Doe all the land between John Goddard's and Richard York's. He also secured at the same time six acres, and two islands, since called Chesley's and now Channell's Islands.

50. Jonathan Wadleigh, son of Captain Robert, and grandson of John, styled Lieutenant and Captain, married Ann, daughter of Humphrey Wilson, and widow of Col. Winthrop Hilton. He was assigned a seat in the pew of his father, February 3, 1698; received a grant of 50 acres of land, February 21, 1698; was appointed by General Sessions to run lines between town and town throughout the province, December 3, 1701, March 6, 1711, and December 24, 1715; witness for Samuel Allen in his entry upon Mason's claims, December 22 and 23, 1707; on a committee of Exeter to locate roads in the province March 16, 1711; with his wife petitioned the council board for a re-hearing of the case between them and George Jaffrey, and John Brown and wife Mary, October 11, 1718; received 200 acres in the distribution of common lands, 1725; was selectman, 1727-28; on the committee to build a new meeting house, October, 1729; paid £15 for pew No. 22 in the new meeting house, March, 1731; on committee to secure and deliver the town books to the newly elected clerk, March 1738; petitioned to be joined to Massachusetts in 1739; and against a township in the southwest of Exeter, 1642.

51. William Ardell was a merchant at Boston in 1684, at Portsmouth about 1686, and resident of Lamprey River in 1700, where an inventory of his estate was returned June 5, 1710, by Richard Hilton. A writ of attachment was served upon him by Robert Tufton Mason, May 22, 1684, "for entering &c the half part of Hilton's mill at Lamprey river;" complained of the exorbitant taxation by Governor Cranfield, November 6, 1684; had timber and boards attached at Hilton's mill at Piscassic, July 15, 1685, or his body seized by writ of Walter Barefoote; had account with Mr. Hilton, January 24, 1686, to July 8, 1689, which was allowed against the estate November 14, 1701; was sheriff of the province, 1697-99; received a grant of 100 acres of land February 21, 1698, which was laid out March 12, 1699, near his sawmill at Piscassic River; mortgaged all his lands, houses and mill or mills on Piscassic River to George Jaffrey, July 26, 1700, and gave him possession September 3, 1701; brought action against B. Young in 1707 to recover a book account; had account with Col. Winthrop Hilton in 1710; his house, barn and sawmill were given in possession to Mr. Culton about 1710. He died, and an inventory of his estate was returned by Richard Hilton, June 5, 1710.

52. Archibald McPheadris of Scotland was an opulent merchant at Portsmouth and a leading projector of iron manufacture in America. He was at the head of a company which established the Lamprey River Iron Works in 1719. The general court encouraged the enterprise by granting them a strip of land two miles wide at the head of Dover line. The company endeavored to procure workmen from Europe.

53. John Doe, son of Nicholas and Martha Doe, was born August 25, 1669, and lived in the garrison house on the Neck, where he joined in asking for 15 or 20 soldiers to defend Lubberland, 1694; petitioned, November 11, 1715, that a ministerial tax be assessed in Oyster River; and for the incorporation of Durham, May 15, 1732. He died intestate about 1742, leaving his wife, Elizabeth, and children.

54. Sampson Doe, brother of John, was born April 6, 1671; served ten days in Capt. James Davis's Scout, 1712; petitioned for a parish at Oyster River November 11, 1715, which was incorporated May 4, 1716; selectman, and committee of the parish in 1717; and became a member of the church at Oyster River at its organization March 26, 1718; was mentioned in the records, 1720; apportioned 20 acres of land by the committee of Exeter, 1725, and 80 acres, 1738; petitioned for the incorporation of Durham, May 15, 1732; for a bridge over Squamscot River, 1746; and with Nicholas, Joseph and John Doe, Jr., and others, "having endured the brunt and hardships of the late war," for a township anywhere.

Chapter VII.

SOME OF THE EARLIEST SETTLERS.

55. Joseph Hall was the son of Joseph and Mary (Hilton) Hall. He married (1) Mary Moody of Newbury, who died April 1, 1755, aged 73 years, and (2) Eunice —, who died his widow March 27, 1790, aged 97 years. He was among his Uncle Col. John Moody, February 9, 1730, and on the parish committee to convey to Rev. John Moody the land voted him in settlement. The committee bought twelve acres of Jonathan Hilton which they deeded to Mr. Moody August 7, 1730, for the pastor's home. He protested against the proceedings of a town meeting as illegal, June 17, 1738; was moderator, 1745; justice, 1746; petitioned the general assembly for a bridge over Squamscot River, November 21, 1746; for a lottery to aid in building the bridge, 1759-60, and for its location at Newfields in 1766. In 1769 Joseph Hall had died leaving a widow and six daughters.

56. Edward Hall, brother of Joseph, married (1) Mary, daughter of Humphrey and Judith (Hersey) Wilson, who died December 2, 1737, aged 57; and (2) Hannah, daughter of Robert Lord, and widow (1) of John Light, and (2) of Josiah Hall. He was captured by the Indians among Col. Winthrop Hilton's haymakers July 1, 1706, and suffered greatly in making his escape after several months' captivity; his experience as captive and surveyor was valuable and he was consulted about the Indian troubles by the governor's council in 1716; was surveyor of his majesty's woods in 1715; on important committees in town and Legislature in 1713, 1722, 1724, 1726-27, 1729, 1732 and 1740; selectman, 1718, 1720, 1722, 1726-27; took a mortgage of Richard Hilton's estate subject to previous incumbrances, December 28, 1721; appointed to cut a highway to "Lake Winnispeesogee," 1722; was an original proprietor of Nottingham, May 10, 1722, where he was on a committee, 1724, 1726-27 and 1729; lot-layer, 1730 and 1732, and received in the second division of lands, November 4, 1730, Lots No. 29 Range 9, and No. 1 Range 8; was "Essessor for the parish of new-market," 1723, 1728, 1732, 1734-35 and 1738; apportioned 150 acres of land in 1725; overseer to go with the chainmen to keep tally and give just allowance in running the line between Chester and Londonderry, January 6, 1726, making return to the General Court, October 18, 1726; also between Exeter and Chester, 1727; to regulate the streets of Nottingham, October 12, 1727; selectman of Nottingham, 1728-31; empowered "to Gitt a horseway cutt to Amuskeige as Chepe as he can gitt it done and as Low as possible he can," December 10, 1729; lot-layer, 1726, 1732, 1736-39; he headed the petition to the general assembly, December 14, 1727, for the formation of Newmarket parish, and was named in the act of incorporation, December 15, 1727, as one of the parish officers till others should be chosen; and appointed to take the census of Newmarket in 1731. He gave quitclaim deeds, March 26, 1734, to Rev. John Moody, of the twelve acres in settlement, and to the parish of the one acre for a burying ground. He was captain in 1736; representative, 1736, 1738-40, 1748, and 1752-53; commissioner of the peace, 1738; certified in the quaint petition of Rev. Hugh Adams to Gov. Jonathan Belcher, May 3, 1738, to be "exemplary in Church communion and attendance on the other ordinances of the Gospel of CHRIST;" was among the 263 petitioners to be joined to Massachusetts in 1739; on a committee of the House to draw up and act relating to the admission of "Town Inhabitants," February 19, 1740; petitioned for Squamscot bridge, November 21, 1746, and for a lottery in aid of bridge at Newfields, 1759-60 and 1766. He died about 1767, leaving no son, but several daughters. The eldest, Ann, was the wife of Rev. John Moody, and another daughter married Rev. Mr. Page.

57. Andrew Glidden, son of Richard and Sarah Glidden, had the old homestead of fifty acres laid out to him March 22, 1716, by the heirs of Moses Gilman's grant of 600 acres; was tithing-man, 1721; constable, 1722; assigned March 27, 1725, by virtue of the town order in 1681, ten acres of meadow at the Sand Banks, but afterwards laid out to his heirs "at the head of Hilton's Grant line," August 9, 1738; was apportioned 100 acres of common land, 1725; named executor of his father's will, October 18, 1727; named in the act of parish incorporation as "selectman" till others should be chosen; and died before the close of 1730. Edward Hilton, son of Richard, January 5, 1731, caused the arrest and fine for profanity and personal assault of "a negro man called Sambo who was formerly servant to Andrew Glidden dece^d. & belongs now to the Widdow of said Glidden or her son-in-law Joseph Smith."

58. William Perkins, born in Cornwall County, England, in 1616, was one of Oliver Cromwell's old soldiers, and was visited, May, 1729, by William Burnet, the accomplished governor of New Hampshire, in the summer of 1729 to talk over the stirring events during the civil wars of the Commonwealth. He was in Dover, 1662; took the oath of allegiance, 1669; and died at Newfields, 1732, at the age of 116 years, the greatest age ever attained by any resident in New Hampshire. His son died in 1757 aged 87, and several of his children lived to be more than 70.

William Perkins' family came here from Oyster River, and purchased of William Hilton, July 28, 1675, sixty acres by the First Creek in Squamscot River near the old centre.

59. William Perkins, Jr., held claims against the state of William Hilton, November 14, 1701, and of Col. Winthrop Hilton October 3, 1717; was apportioned forty acres of land in 1725; named in the act of parish incorporation, December 15, 1727, "selectman" until other parish officers should be chosen; committee of the parish to agree with Mr. John Moody respecting his settlement, February 9, 1730; elected on parish committee, June 29, 1730, to convey to Rev. John Moody the land voted him in settlement, and assigned, August 7, 1730, twelve of the twenty acres voted, which became the home of Mr. Moody; "constable to some in the parish of New-market," 1734. Ten acres of land were assigned his heirs, August 9, 1738. He died intestate and Mary Perkins, "Widdow & Relict," administered on the estate.

60. Samuel Doe, son of Sampson Doe, was baptized at Lubberland by Rev. Hugh Adams, March 21, 1718; apportioned by the town of Exeter twenty acres of land in 1725, and twenty acres in 1738; committee of parish on the settlement of Mr. John Moody, February 9, 1730; petitioned for a bridge over Squamscot River, 1746; bought of John Boreman his right as a soldier to Louisburg, 1746; sold to Stephen Bordman, May 1, 1754, for £7,000 old tenor, land with edifices on Doe's Neck; petitioned for a lottery in aid of Squamscot bridge, 1746; joined the church in Durham, December 31, 1780. He married Abigail, daughter of Judge Andrew Wiggin, who is mentioned in the settlement of her father's estate, November 24, 1757.

61. Thomas Young was a cordwainer; petitioned, February 20, 1690, for the government and protection of Massachusetts "as formerly"; was counted, April 25, 1715, among the "householders and inhabitants that live nearer the old meeting house on Dover Neck than the new one at Coheco"; presented his claim against the estate of Col. Winthrop Hilton, October 3, 1717; was of Exeter and purchased part of the 600 acres granted to Moses Gilman of his sons, Jeremiah, James and Caleb, September 4, 1720; bought John Willey's proprietor rights in the township of Canterbury, March 16, 1730; committee of Newmarket parish on the settlement of Mr. Moody, February 9, 1730; justice, 1744; representative "unduly elected" and superseded, 1745; petitioned for bridge, November 21, 1746; bought a portion of the homestead estate of Benjamin York "over against Lamprey river landing place," November 9, 1749; with widow Eliza Young was rated for parish dues at Dover, 1753. His will was dated May 2, 1767, but not signed. He died May 11, 1767, aged 76.

His wife Sarah, daughter of Ephraim Folsom, died May 13, 1768, aged 76.

62. Jeremy Folsom, son of Dea. John, and cousin of John at Piscassie, settled about 1712 on the hill south of Lamprey River village, where in 1719 he built the two-story brick house which stood till 1874; was highway surveyor, 1725, and 1727; on parish committee, 1730; bought fifty acres of land of Richard Hilton on the west side of Hilton's mill grant at Piscassie River, on south side of Wadleigh's mill grant, January 4, 1730. His father's will, dated November 24, 1715, has the following:

"Item. I give to my son Jeremiah Folsom one hundred acres of land at Lamperele River where he lives."

In 1720 he was chosen tithing-man; in 1725, apportioned fifty acres of common land; on the parish committee June 29, 1730, which conveyed to Rev. John Moody, August 7, 1730, twelve of the twenty acres voted him in settlement. He had eight children, and died in 1757. His wife, Mary, died October 8, 1744, aged 57 years.

The descendants of the Folsom family have resided in the vicinity for more than 200 years.

63. Robert Pike, son of Robert, who died August 22, 1690, aged 35, grandson of Major Robert, and great-grandson of John, was born September 3, 1687. Edward Hall in 1721, which Mrs. Plaisted,—in 1728 Mrs. Brown,—sold to Jacob and Jacob sold to Fowler. This transferred from the mortgagees to the Fowlers a tedious and celebrated lawsuit of fourteen years with the Hiltons. In 1768 the Fowlers were ejected, and Edward Hilton moved on the estate. Mrs. Fowler, then a widow, carrying her silver porringer with her, went to Rev. John Moody's where she found refuge.

99. Philip Fowler, son of the above, was born June 21, 1719; with Robert Smart gave land for road from the country road to the bridge, January 7, 1760; was credited with labor of men and oxen on fire rafts at Newington, October 22, 1775; signed the Association Test, July 12, 1776; mustered as drummer, with Capt. Nathan Brown's company, Col. David Gilman's regiment, April 1, 1776; also with Capt. William Stillson's company, Col. Isaac Wyman's regiment, July 4, 1776; returned with Capt. Smith Emerson's company, Col. Thomas Tash's regiment, September 16, 1776; as drummer, was mustered with Capt. Daniel Gordon's company, Col. David Gilman's regiment, and on its pay roll from January 5 to March 15, 1777; enlisted for two years in Captain Drew's company, Col. John McClary's regiment, February 3, 1778; when the family was dispossessed he was lodged in jail at Portsmouth till the Revolution in 1778 put him into possession again. He was credited with labor of men and oxen on fire rafts for Pascataqua Bay October 22, 1775; signed the Association Test, July 12, 1776; committee of parish for the dismissal of Mr. Moody, April 28, 1777; was active in parish affairs in 1791, 1793-94, 1797-99; bid off pew No. 29, and gallery pew No. 1, October 24, 1791; and died "a professor of Christianity" September 18, 1811. He was a man of sound sense and uncompromising Christian integrity.

100. Gideon Colcord, son of Jonathan, married Rachel Parsons; settled his father's estate; petitioned for bridge January 4, 1760 and 1772; and for a lottery in aid of bridge, 1760.

101. Dea. Samuel Pease, was son of Nathaniel and Phebe (Sanborn), and grandson of Samuel, who came from Martha's Vineyard; settled on 50 acres of land granted February 4, 1698, and laid out October 26, 1700, at Piscassie, and was killed by the Indians July 1, 1706. He was born December 14, 1727; received bounty on wolf, 1744; was a soldier, 1745; petitioned for Hall's mill road, July 3, 1765; selectman, 1776; and signed the Association Test, July 12, 1776; removed to Parsonsfield, Me., prior to 1780, where he was one of the original settlers; and died January 6, 1805.

102. Samuel Chapman, son of Samuel, Jr., and Phebe (Balch), of Hampton, and Greenland, where she united with the church in 1716, was born at Hampton, December 7, 1706; baptized at Greenland, 1717; and taxed in Newmarket, 1732; petitioned for a bridge over Squamscot River, November 21, 1746, and lottery in aid of bridge, 1760; was returned as member of Capt. Nathaniel Hobb's company on Pierce's Island November 5, 1775; and died at Danville, Vt., aged nearly 90.

103. Daniel Ames bought or sold lands in 1714, 1720, 1731, 1740, 1744 and 1746-47. The Ames homestead was on the Piscassie River near the corner of Hall's Mill and Lee road. He purchased 30 acres of this homestead of the family of Joseph Hilton, June 25, 1714; mortgaged this messuage and the dwelling house upon it, August 19, 1720, to William Hooke of Salisbury. As a free-holder of the parish of Newmarket, September 6, 1731, sold to Richard Perryman of Exeter, 30 acres of common lands, apportioned to him by a committee of the town of Exeter; sold 150 acres of land on Piscassie River, May 3, 1740, to Nathaniel Ames, his son, for "one thousand & two Hund^d pounds in passable Bills or Credit of ye Province"; received, January 4, 1744, a quitclaim deed from Edward Hilton's "old lot" being part of the Piscassic mill grant; with his sons, Simon and Nathaniel, conveyed to Edward Hilton, June 3, 1746, a portion of the Piscassic mill grant; sold to Edward Hilton, November 22, 1747, "certain strips or points of land Joyning to ye s^d Ames home Place." He died about 1754.

104. Roger Racklif petitioned for lottery in aid of bridge and its location at Newfields, 1760; had his son, Roger, baptized at Stratham, January 31, 1762, and daughter, Sarah, September 5, 1764; refused to sign the Association Test, 1776.

105. Samuel Brackett, son of Joshua and Mary (Weeks) Brackett of Greenland, was baptized, 1712; had a dwelling house in 1730, near the bridge over Piscassic, and bought land of Joseph Smith on the river, on the south side of the way to Wadleigh's mills; bought marsh land, 1732, at "Lamperel river creek" of William and Samuel Hilton; bought of James Goodin, December 20, 1734, land on the north side of the highway leading to Wadleigh's mill; of Ephraim Folsom, July 18, 1740, eight acres near the "Pontoon Bridge;" of Joshua Brackett, 1741, and of Nathaniel Gilman, 1743; of Robert Perkins, June 3, 1745, his dwelling house, barn and three acres of land on the country road; with others, quitclaimed to John and James Brackett, and others, February 18, 1751, land one mile square at Wadleigh's falls, known as the Symonds grant; bought of Robert Perkins, June 3, 1755, for 462 pounds, land, dwelling house and barn; sold to his son, Ichabod, June 1, 1763, for 2,000 pounds, part of his homestead estate at the bridge over Piscassic River; and to his son, Joshua, blacksmith, land in Newmarket and Durham, December 17, 1764.

106. Rev. Elipheny Chapen Brackett, son of Samuel, was born March 7, 1750; settled at Madbury, 1770-73, and later at Methuen, Mass., and Bethel, Me. He married (2) Hannah Jackman of Newbury, Mass.; and died January 20, 1814. His widow died December 15, 1839, aged 92.

107. Col. Jeremiah Folsom, son of Jeremy, was born July 25, 1719, and married, March 28, 1742, Mary, daughter of Peter Hersey. He petitioned for a lottery in aid of bridge, 1760; was innholder, 1767. He was an elder in the church, 1774; delegate to the Provincial Congress, Exeter, April 21 and May 17, 1775; and lieutenant-colonel of the Fourth Regiment of militia, August 24, 1775; on committee to procure firearms, July, 1775; signed the Association Test, 1776; was dismissed from office on petition of the North Company of Newmarket, September, 1776; called himself a Presbyterian in 1794 and 1798; died in 1802. He and his wife were enthusiastic followers of George Whitefield, and used to drive long distances with their span of horses to attend his preaching.

108. James Cram married Mary, daughter of William, and granddaughter of Ephraim Folsom; was a blacksmith, and lived in the large house, later the Messer Tavern and Simeon Locke house; was a soldier, 1758 and 1760; petitioned for bridge and lottery, 1760, 1766 and 1768, and for a road from Lamprey River to Durham, February 11, 1768; was credited with labor on fire rafts at Newington, October 22, 1775; signed the Association Test July 12, 1776, and as selectman returned it to the New Hampshire Committee of Safety; tithingman, 1789; with his son, James, demanded the polls respecting the location of the new meeting house, May 30, 1791; was active in parish, 1794 and 1798-99, and was called "Deacon."

Chapter VIII.

SOME OF THE EARLIEST SETTLERS.

109. Rev. Nathaniel Ewer was the son of Nathaniel and Mary (Stuart) Ewer, and born at Barnstable, Mass., April 11, 1726. He became the second minister of Newmarket, his ministry overlapping that of Rev. John Moody by several years; and is generally thought, without sufficient reason, however, to have been a colleague. He was a member of the first church of Barnstable, Mass., but not a college graduate. He became a follower of Whitefield and a New Light preacher; was ordained, according to a list of "Separatist Ordinations" compiled by Rev. Isaac Backus, at Barnstable, May 17, 1750, as a separatist minister. It appears in his itineracy he came to Durham, Lee and Newmarket, and gathered a congregation at the Plains, where we find him as early as 1772. It is a matter of history that the family left Barnstable on account of the French and Indian War of 1756-63. It is supposed they were induced to come to Newmarket from the fact that Rev. Mr. Ewer was already established there. The dwelling house of Daniel Wiggin now stands near the spot where his meeting house stood. The graves to the north and west were about the church. Mr. Ewer was undoubtedly buried here, though no stone has ever marked the spot.

Rev. Mr. Ewer joined the Presbytery of which Rev. John Murray of Newburyport was moderator at Topsham, Me., May 31, 1774. At the same time the church was received under the care of the Presbytery, and remained there "until its combination with the Associate Reformed Presbytery of Londonderry in 1794." Col. Jeremiah Folsom was an elder in his church, who, with his wife, was a devout follower of Whitefield, driving here and there to hear him preach. Mr. Ewer left a list of marriages solemnized by him, 1774-96, which are the earliest church records extant. He was signer of the Association Test July 12, 1776. The inhabitants of Newmarket, "being divided in Religious Sentiments," met November 3, 1777, and "mutually agreed upon a Division between the Congregational & Presbyterian Societies by Poll." They chose Jeremiah Folsom, Josiah Adams and Wentworth Cheswell their agents to "petition the Hon^{ble} Court for Leave to Bring in a Bill to recognize & establish said Division: and enable said Societies respectively to transact the Prudential Affairs of their Ministry seperately in the same Manner the Town might do if united." The agents appeared before the Legislature, November 27, 1777, and their petition was granted the same day. Sixty-two persons entered their names as members of the Western Society, January 10, 1778; thirty-two others, April 12, 1779; one other March 31, 1782; another April 5, 1782; and six more March 2, 1784. But the people seemed to have reached a point in religious matters where they could not be easily satisfied whether they worshipped separately or together. The old parish voted June 29, 1789, "to Receive & Except the Rev. Mr Ewer for the Ministry of the whole Town provided the two Societies in said Town shall unite." Mr. Ewer preached at least one Sabbath in the old meeting house which stood in the burying ground at the Centre. The building was now in a delapidated condition. In 1792 proprietors from the two societies built their stately new edifice near the present railroad junction. The old meeting house at the Centre was sold and removed, and Mr. Ewer's meeting house at the Plains was for a time abandoned.

At adjourned meetings of the East and West Societies at the new meeting house, May 29, 1793, a united committee was chosen consisting of Ichabod Hilton, Dr. Nathaniel Kidder and Capt. Andrew Gilman "to petition the General Court for a Repeal of an Act passed the 27th Day of November 1777, dividing the Town into Two Societies." The committee presented the petition to the Legislature June 5, 1793. They say referring to the act of division, "The Operation of which from Experience has been found to be very in convenient & prejudicial to the Interest of the parties concerned." Their prayer was granted June 13, 1793.

An effort to secure a colleague with Rev. Mr. Ewer commenced in 1793. Rev. Jonathan Brown, born at Madbury in 1757, a graduate of Dartmouth College, 1789, and student in theology with Rev. John Murray, was "hired to assist the Rev.

Mr. Ewer in supplying the Desk'' January 7, 1793. The Pascataqua Association met at Rev. Mr. Gray's, Dover, June 12, 1793, "On which occasion M.^r Brown Candidate at Newmarket opened the public exercise." The parish invited Mr. Brown "to settle as a colleague with the Rev. Mr. Ewer in the Ministry," July 8, 1793, but he declined the invitation December 21, 1793, and was ordained at Derry, May, 1795. The following items of parish expenses, dated in 1795, show how candidates were secured.

To Ichabod Hilton for boarding Mr. Jonathan Brown seven weeks & a third, £3-6-0.

To Majr. Hill for time & Expence himself & horse to Newbury after Mr. Brown, 0-13-6.

To Daniel Hilton Jr. for horse & Expense carrying Mr. Brown to Newbury, 0-10-6.

Rev. Samuel Tomb was ordained and settled as a colleague with Mr. Ewer October 22, 1794. After a short, but stormy, ministry, Mr. Tomb was dismissed, and Mr. Ewer's salary discontinued, July 10, 1797.

Mr. Ewer was slightly affected with paralysis some years before his death, but his interest in the religious welfare of the church and parish continued unabated. He was highly esteemed as long as he lived, and is remembered with great respect and affection. He died April, 1806. His widow died in 1810, aged 83. They were undoubtedly buried at the Plains close by the meeting house, near which they lived and in which he had so long preached. It is sad that this resting place of the fathers should remain in neglect. At the burning of the Ewer homestead it is supposed the records of the church were consumed.

By the year 1787 several of the Presbyterian churches had adopted, as they say, "some material alterations in our ecclesiastical policy making nearer approaches to the Presbyterian form, for the honor of Christ and the edification of our Chh^s." Through the influence of Rev. Mr. Ewer, doubtless, the church of which he was pastor came under the care of Presbytery.

110. Col. John Folsom, son of Col. Jeremiah, was born October 12, 1745; married, Elizabeth Smith; signed the Association Test July 12, 1776; was an officer in the Revolution, 1777-80; on committee of the parish, 1789; active in parish affairs, 1787-89; and died, 1820. A monument was erected to his memory on his farm half a mile east of Wadleigh's Falls. Their daughter, Betsey, married Elder Israel Chesley.

111. Jonathan Roberson was born in 1745; married (1) Constance Covill, a sister of Rev. Nathaniel Ewer's wife, and (2) September 16, 1784, Elizabeth Goodsoe. He was on the roll of Capt. Samuel Gilman's company, June 6, 1775; signed the Association Test July 12, 1776; tithingman, 1778, 1784 and 1792; bought land of Rev. Mr. Ewer, 1794; active in parish affairs; and an Osbornite, 1800.

112. Joseph Smart, son of Joseph at the Plains, was a soldier, 1756-57; bid off pew No. 31, in the meeting house, October 24, 1791; and was active in parish, 1794 and 1797-99. He died January 14, 1820.

113. David Wiggin, son of Simon, was born June 17, 1769; deeded the Rev. Samuel Tomb place to the committee of the parish for a parsonage, May 30, 1803. He married Mehitable Pike, who was born April 20, 1784, and died September 25, 1861. Rev. J. Henry Wiggin was their grandson.

114. Joshua Brackett, son of Samuel, bought land of his father in Durham and Newmarket, December 17, 1764; petitioned for lottery in aid of bridge, 1768; was credited with labor of men and oxen on military rafts at Newington, October 22, 1775; signed the Association Test July 12, 1776; sold to John Bennett and John, Jr., 1782, a house formerly owned by William Simpson, was tithing-man, 1785; and collector for parish, 1815. He married Mary, widow of Adon Nye, and sister of Mrs. Levi Folsom and Mrs. Rev. Jacob Bailey.

115. Nicholas Hartford, from Captain Tebbet's company, served on the scout of James Davis from May 15 to October 12, 1712; was a householder and inhabitant of Dover, April 25, 1715, living nearer to the old meeting house on Dover Neck than the new one at Cocheco; selectman of Dover, 1723; representative, 1732; and sent a remonstrance to the General Court against the division of Dover, May 13, 1729. Administration on his estate was granted to Matthew Severance — intestate, insolvent —; inventory taken July 21, 1737, and claims adjusted October 29, 1737.

116. Nicholas Hartford, perhaps son of above, petitioned the House for a revision relating to a judgment by default in the Supreme Court, August 27, 1747; entered Capt. Samuel Gerish's company, May 1, 1756, for the Crown Point expedition under Col. Nathaniel Meserve; for the same expedition, was in the service with Capt. John Titcomb from March 5 to November 5, 1757; petitioned for a lottery in aid of bridge, 1768; signed the Association Test, 1776; was of Middleton, February 10, 1790.

117. Smith Chapman, son of Joseph, married Sarah Burley. He was mustered with Capt. Joseph Parson's company, November 22, 1775; active to secure a candidate to preach, 1793; active in parish affairs, 1797-99; and tithing-man, 1810. He was brought up by Thomas Bennett and given the old Chapman place.

118. Thomas Wiggin, son of Cornet Thomas, with his son, Thomas, petitioned for a bridge, 1746; was representative for Stratham, 1752, 1755 and 1760; with his son, Thomas, signed the Association Test at Epping, 1776; was a soldier, 1775 and 1812; and sexton, Congregational Society, 1836. His wife, Elizabeth, died December 1, 1837, aged 88.

119. Joseph Gilman, son of Joseph and Elizabeth, and grandson of Capt. Jeremiah, petitioned for a bridge November 2, 1746; and signed the Association Test, July 12, 1776.

120. Josiah Hilton, older brother of Capt. Edward, petitioned for a bridge across Squamscot River, November 21, 1746; and for a lottery in aid of bridge, 1760. As lessee of Edward Hilton, he sued Philip Fowler for 56 acres of land, including homestead, 1760; petitioned for a bridge at Newfields, 1766; Hall's mill road passed through his land, 1766; was credited with labor on rafts at Newington, October 22, 1775; signed the Association Test, July 12, 1776; was on committee of parish to dismiss Rev. John Moody, April 28, 1777; constable, 1784 and 1786; bid off pew No. 21, in the meeting house, October 24, 1791; active in parish affairs, 1791, 1793-94, 1797 and 1799; lived at the "Four Corners;" owned a sawmill at Haine's Falls or below, and "used to come home to dinner while his saw made a run."

121. William Renton married Elizabeth Mason, March 2, 1775; was ensign in the army, July 4, 1776; and signed the Association Test, October 12, 1776.

122. Zabulon Neal, son of John, refused to sign the Association Test July 12, 1776; sold house and land to William Badger, October 24, 1786; which Badger sold to Ebenezer Wilson, January 14, 1790, and petitioned the selectmen with reference to the location of the new meeting house March 10, 1791. His wife's name was Comfort.

123. Dr. John Marsters petitioned for bridge, 1766 and 1772; refused to sign the Association Test, 1776; was arrested as a Tory, 1777; petitioned the New Hampshire Committee of Safety for release from jail, September 5, 1777; active in parish affairs, 1797 and 1799; petitioned the selectmen in reference to the location of the new meeting house, March 10, 1791; his bill for doctoring Eliphalet Colcord allowed April 1, 1799. He lived by the river. The railroad near the station passes over the cellar of his house. He was buried in the Hilton field. He had a wife, Mary, in 1769.

124. Michael Shute, son of Michael and Welthea Shute, was a ship-builder; petitioned for bridge, 1760 and 1772; refused to sign the Association Test, 1776; was received to membership in the West Religious Society, April 12, 1779; sold pew in Stratham meeting house to Theophilus Smith, June 28, 1782; and died December 18, 1784. His wife, Elizabeth, and son, Benjamin, were baptized at Stratham May 6, 1759, and daughters, Anna and Mary, September 6, 1767.

Chapter X.

INDIAN WARS.

On November 21, 1632, a letter from Capt. Walter Neal to the governor of Massachusetts gave the information that Dixy Bull and fifteen other Englishmen had turned pirates and taken several boats and rifled Pemaquid. Later on December 5, Captain Neal and Mr. Hilton by letters certified "that they had sent out all the forces they could make against the pirates, viz. four pumaces and shallops and about forty men who coming to Pemaquid were there wind-bound three weeks." Bull was finally executed in England.

In 1641 Richard Bullgar was commissioned lieutenant, and Thomas Wardell sergeant of the "band of souldiers at Exeter, to be installed and confirmed by the freemen the next training day."

On October 18, 1669, the General Court in session at Boston, understanding there were about 60 soldiers in Exeter with no "common officer" over them, appointed John Gilman a lieutenant to take command and "exercise the Company as the Law requires."

King Philip's War, 1675-78. King Philip's War was the first serious trouble New Hampshire had with the Indians. The Pascataqua planters paid the Indians a valuable compensation and fair equivalent, in coats, cloths, kettles, hatchets and kinos, for untrodden forests and untilled lands, while the aborigines retained unmolested possession of all occupied planting, hunting, fowling and fishing grounds. Both dwelt side by side in neighborly good will for more than half a century. Passaconway, the statesman-sagamore of all the Merrimac tribes, lived a Christian life, and died in the faith of the true God. The Rev. William Hubbard bears this testimony: "The Indians always carried it fair, and held good correspondence with the English until the news came of Philip's rebellion, and rising against the inhabitants of Plimouth colony in the end of June, 1675."

The Wampanoag sachem, like Sassacus of the Pequots 40 years before, was ambitious to exterminate the English, and was able to engage most of the New England tribes in his enterprise. Thousands of praying Indians remained neutral, the Penacooks still continued friendly, the Squamscots had emigrated about 1672 to the Hudson; but the Ossipees, the Pequakets and the Tarateens of Maine ardently joined Philip's hostile confederacy.

In September, 1675, the frontier invasion swept down upon the Pascataqua settlers. The enemy appeared upon both sides of the river, burning houses and killing all who fell in their way. All the settlers were now filled with alarm, those on the Kennebec withdrawing to the Pascataqua and Merrimac, and business was suspended. A day of public fasting and prayer was observed by the New Hampshire towns, October 7, 1675. This month another party of Indians "got over or beyond the other branches of the Pascataqua river, towards Exeter and Lamprey Elele river, where they killed one man. Many of them were in the woods about Exeter, and between Hampton and Exeter, where they killed one or two men in the woods as they were traveling homeward, occasioning the people of those towns to stand continually upon their guard, which proved a great annoyance to the inhabitants."

Before winter set in sixty were killed in this vicinity, and nearly as many buildings burned. The following account without date from the letter of Maj. Robert Pike to the governor and council belongs to this period, 1675-76.

At Hampton on Saturday last about 9 at night seeing an Indian coming from goodman Sleeper's barn toward his dwelling house having fire in his right hand and straw under his other arm, they shot at him about four rod from the house, and he tumbled down and the straw fell afire and blazed up. They saw another run away between the fire and the barn, but no hurt was done. In the morning they saw pieces of birch bark where the fire was, but found no Indian.

When the first house was built in Kensington by Stephen Green, it is said there was not another dwelling between it and Canada, except the wigwams of the savages. People used a ladder to enter the house and at night drew in the ladder to prevent the intrusion of Indians.

The following summer, June 13, 1677, four persons at North

Hampton, Edward Colcord, Jr., Abraham Perkins, Jr., Benjamin Hilliard and Caleb Towle, fell victims to savage cruelty. In July, 1677, Capt. Benjamin Swett of Hampton went to Kennebec with 200 Indians and 40 English soldiers, but was defeated and slain with 60 of his men.

A formal treaty of peace was concluded with Squando and other chiefs at Saco, April 12, 1678, which put an end to this harrowing three years' war. But the New Hampshire settlers had learned to distrust their savage neighbors and kept themselves on the defensive. They palisaded their houses, gathered themselves into garrisons, carried their guns afield and stacked arms at the church door, while a sentry kept watch during divine worship.

In 1680 Robert Pike was commander of a troop of horse which was divided by the cutting off of Hampton and Exeter from old Norfolk County. In 1684, by order of, Lieut. Gov. Edward Cranfield, the meeting houses in Hampton, Exeter, Portsmouth and Dover were fortified for garrisons. In 1687, the town of Hampton "ordered by vote that the selectmen shall take care to build a convenient watchhouse according to law, and to sett it where the ould watch-house stood, and to provide Powder, bullets, machflints, or what els the Law requires for a Perm. stock for the soldiers, and to make a rate for the same upon the inhabitants not exceeding £10."

King William's War, 1689-97, between England and France. French emissaries now taught the Indians to call the English heretics, and incited them to hostilities and to find profit in the sale of scalps and prisoners in Canada. The inhabitants of New Hampshire in their danger and distress were on the point of abandoning the province, and in 1690 sought the government and protection of Massachusetts. Hampton and Portsmouth being less exposed than Exeter and Dover suffered least in the common calamities.

On July 30, 1689, Capt. Samuel Sherburne of Hampton wrote to Maj. Robert Pike respecting the burning of houses by the Indians at Oyster River, who sent men to help; Major Pike wrote June 23, 1691, "Many Hampton men were out in the woods after the Indians, to release a person captured at Salisbury, with little hope of recovering him. On Sunday last Capt. Greenleaf with 34 horses went to Hampton.

P. S. Hampton men are not gone out against the enemy as we heard they had."

On July 4, 1690, eight persons were killed as they were mowing in a field near Lamprey River, and a lad was carried away captive. The next day Capt. William Hilton's garrison on Fowler's Hill at Newfields was assaulted, and relieved by Lieutenant Bancroft with a loss of eight or nine men¹ who were buried in one grave on the hillside southwest of the garrison. Simon Stone, afterwards of Groton, Mass., received nine wounds and two cuts with hatchets, and was thought dead, but recovered. In the course of a week forty persons were killed between Lamprey River and Amesbury, Mass.

Edward Walker, with others, was killed by the Indians at Lamprey River, July 6, 1690.

August 4, 1691, Capt. Samuel Sherburne and James Dolloff, both of Hampton, were killed by the Indians at Casco Bay.

The following letter from Henry Dow to Major Pike, dated September 29 or 30, 1691, will give some idea of the situation :

Sir. We have received intelligence from Sandybeach — Rye — that since 12 o'clock this day the enemy have killed or carried away sixteen persons of which old Goodman Bracket's and Goodman Rand's families have the greatest blow. The messengers that brought this news, on their returning home about the time the moon did rise this night, at a place called Raggy Neck, about half a mile this side of Sandybeach garrison, they do affirm to me they saw, as they adjudged, about forty enemies coming toward Hampton with five or six canoes on their heads, which caused them to come back to Hampton again, and brought us word of it; which we have thought it convenient to signify to your worship, lest they should come along with their canoes in the night and do damage to houses near the sea. We are in a sad condition, the enemy is so violent. The Lord give us all wisdom to teach us what we ought to do.

So with my respects presented to you, I remain your loving friend and servant,

HENRY DOW.

¹ Bancroft was a civil engineer with Sir William Phipps in erecting the new fort at Pemaquid in 1692. It was now rebuilt with stone, called William Henry, and believed to be impregnable. Mather says it was the finest fortress that had been seen in those parts of America. Some primitive defensive works had existed here as early as 1630, and rifled in 1632 by Dixy Bull.

At a meeting of the town of Hampton, October 26, 1691, Nathaniel Weare, Henry Dow and Joseph Smith were sent to Portsmouth, "as a committee to Advize what is most requisite & needful to be done in our defense against the common Enemy."

Hampton voted May 17, 1692, "that liberty is given to so many as are willing to remove the Fortification from about the Meeting House and to Sett it between the Minister's House, the Prison and the Meeting House in some convenient place, that there may be liberty for any concerned in it, to build Houses in it according to custom in other Forts."

Voted that there shall be a House builded in said Fort at the Town's charge, of 14 feet wide and 16 feet long, and finished for the use of it; it shall be improved for a Scout House, or the Watch House removed and made habitable.

The General Court at Goat Island, April 24, 1693, required Hampton to impress ten able bodied men with arms and ammunition to be posted at the several frontier garrisons. Two of these men were stationed at Edward Hilton's garrison, Newfields, and two at Lubberland garrison.

Oyster River was attacked July 17, 1694, by 250 Indians who burned five of the twelve garrisons, and twenty-one houses. Ninety-four persons were lost. Rev. John Buss was killed and his house and valuable library destroyed. The garrisons of Smith and David Davis at Lubberland were defeated, and Thomas Edgerly's destroyed.

The Council at New Castle, July 24, 1694, "Ordered, That warrants be issued for detaching 100 men, viz. out of Hampton 50, out of Exeter 20, out of Portm. 30. Ordered, That they rendezvous at Exeter with four days provision, to range the woods head the towns and rivers from thence to Newiehawanick—Salmon Falls—river."

On May 20, 1695, it was ordered that "the selectmen in each town to provide Bread by an assessment upon the inhabitants to be ready for four days march of those men that are impressed." These 50 Hampton men were placed under the command of Capt. Joseph Smith who in 1695 succeeded Maj. William Vaughan in command of the increased militia of the state.

The following men were on Capt. Kinsley Hall's pay roll in 1696. They were "prest men in Exeter" who served in Exeter and Oyster River from November 4, 1695.

John Young, Sr., and Job Judkins, serving from November 4 to December 2, 1695; Thomas Rollins, John Sinkler and John Judkins, serving from November 14 to December 12, 1695; Edward Dyer serving from December 2 to 30, 1695; John Beane, James Beane and Stephen Gilman serving from December 30, 1695, to January 27, 1696; Freeman Lyford, Biley Dudley serving from February 6 to March 5, 1696; James Young serving from February 24, to March 23, 1696; Peter Folsom serving from March 5 to April 2, 1696.

Jonathan Thing served in the garrison at Oyster River from April 2, 1696, being still there when the pay roll was made up, as certified by Capts. Kinsley Hall and John Woodman, April 8, 1696.

The "billetting" of Andrew Wiggins, Edward Hilton and Richard Hilton, was appended, the expense amounting to £18, 12s., 4d.

Capt. John Woodman April 8, 1696, certifies that the following soldiers were boarded at Oyster River from November 2, 1695 to March 6, 1696, at an expense of £51.

Joseph Smith	Thomas Bickford	Thomas Edgerly
William Durgin	Jeremiah Burman	Stephen Jones
Joseph Meder	James Bunker	Lieut. Davis
David Davis	John Woodman

On December 2, 1695, Capt. Henry Dow of Hampton stationed four men with Captain Hall of Exeter, and seven with Captain Woodman of Oyster River, and his other seven went home. The men of Newfields in garrison service in 1695 were John Young, Sr., Jacob Smith, Job Judkins, Ebenezer Dwyer and John Beane.

On March 5, 1696, Capt. Joseph Smith had two men at Exeter and two at Oyster River. In July the men in garrison service at Newfields were Francis Lyford, Biley Dudley, Job Judkins, Ephraim Folsom, William Taylor, Philip Dudy, Jacob Smith, John Beane, Sr., and Cornelius Leary.

The following is the account of "Exitors Charge of Clames" for soldiers serving in the Exeter garrisons, from April 13 to November 9, 1696:

“Ephraim Folsom, Samuel Dudley and David Roberson, serving from August 3 to August 31, wages and subsistence, £20. Charles Glidden, William Taylor and Jonathan “wodlash,” serving from August 31 to September 28, 1696, wages and subsistence, £20. James Gilman, Theophilus Smith and Jeremiah Gilman, serving from September 28 to October 26, 1696, for wages and subsistence, £20. For John Gilman and Nathaniel Stevens going to Haverhill by the Lieutenant Governor’s order two days, 10s. James Godfrey for riding the Governor’s horse from Exeter to “y^e Bank” 3s. To subsistence of two Hampton men at Mr. Wiggin’s six days each from April 7 to 13, 1696, 8s. To subsistence of two Hampton men at Mr. Hilton’s from April 9 to 12 or 13, 4s.”

The account was presented by Capt. Kinsley Hall.

November 3, 1696, the Council “Ordered that Maj. Smith & Cap. Hall dismiss the soldiers posted at Hampton and Exeter on Monday next, untill farther orders.”

A treaty of peace between England and France was signed at Ryswick, Germany, December 10, 1697, occasioning the burying of the hatchet and returning of the captives.

Queen Anne’s War, 1702-13—England against France and Spain. Massachusetts and New Hampshire bore the chief calamities of the war. The government now offered a bounty of thirty-two pounds for every Indian scalp. In 1702 Hilton’s scout was between John Smith’s, Lubberland, on the north and Pickpocket on the south.

A party of thirty Indians August 17, 1703, under Captain Tom, made a descent on Hampton Village, now Seabrook, and killed five persons. The first person slain was the Widow Muzzy, a talented speaker among the Friends and much honored by them. She was passing by a swamp when seized, dragged into the woods and her brains beaten out with a tomahawk. Thomas Lancaster, another Quaker, was next killed on his way to mill. Jonathan Green was slain, beaten on the head with the butts of guns and mangled in a horrible manner. Nicholas Bond was killed and scalped in his own house. The widow of William Hinckley had left her boy in the care of two girls and gone into the field to pull flax. When the Indians came to the house, the girls fled, and the lad, endeavoring to follow, was seized and his head dashed against a plough standing near.

These outrages coming to Governor Dudley's ears, he soon issued the following command:

Hampton, 11 Oct. 1703.

I hereby Direct that you forthwith order a convenient Number of Garrisons for the Town of Hampton, particularly one in the body of the Town, Near the Church, to be of large Contents, where the women and children may repayr in Case of Danger, that your soldiers may the better defend the place, and that you command all the soldiers of your Towns to attend thereof till they be finished. Given under my hand the day and year above written.

J. DUDLEY.

On January 27, 1704, Major Hilton undertook an expedition with three companies, 360 volunteers, on snowshoes to Pequacket, —Conway— which resulted in taking no scalps, and receiving no bounty, but his service was deemed honorable and a handsome gratuity of 12 pounds was awarded him, and his captains were given five pounds each. Hilton, however, did excellent service in an expedition sent to Port Royal the following May and lasting all summer. Col. Benjamin Church with 550 men accompanied him. Prisoners were taken and some French settlements destroyed.

On March 27, 1704, the Council "Ordered that the Secretary give notice with all possible expedition to Capt. Henry Dow and Capt. Jacob Green of Hampton that they muster their several Companies under their respective Commands on Monday next, being the third of April, by ten of the clock in the forenoon, and that Major Winthrop Hilton, or such as he shall employ, may have liberty of listing Volunteers for the service aforesaid." On September 18, following, the Council ordered that "from all the towns 36 laborers and 12 carpenters be impressed to labor on the fort at Hampton."

On April 25, 1704, Edward Taylor was killed and his wife and son captured at Lamprey River.

In 1705 a nightly patrol watched the seashore from Hampton to Portsmouth to prevent any surprise by sea.

January 8, 1705, Colonel Hilton with 270 men started on an expedition to Norridgewock, Me., where he burned wigwams and the chapel of Sebastian Rasle. On June 5, he was ordered to send men to the fort, and beginning with September 5, reduced his scout from twenty to ten men every ten days.

February 25, 1706, he made another expedition to Norridge-week.

On June 17, 1706, the Council acting upon a letter from the governor, "Ordered that in case the Selectmen of Hampton and Exeter have not their stock of provisions for scouting ready in four days time from the date hereof, to be delivered to the Cpts. of the several Towns when called for, that they may be sent for to the next Council Board in order to be proceeded against as they shall deserve."

On July 6, Colonel Hilton was called before the Council Board and answered that "as to the little scout, Province scout, he was forced to leave it off, there being eight of the souldjers from Hampton, and the town of Hampton had no provisions for them as the law directs."

Early in July, 1706, notice was received that a large body of French Mohawks were on their way towards Pascataqua. Colonel Hilton with 64 men marched from Exeter to intercept them, but was obliged to return, for want of provisions, without meeting them.

About 20 of these Mohawks lurked around the house of Colonel Hilton intending to destroy this brave and energetic officer. On the morning of July 6, observing ten men going out into the field with their scythes to mow, the Indians crept stealthily between them and the weapons which they had laid aside, thus intercepting their return to the garrison, and suddenly fell upon them, killing Richard Matoon, his son, Hubartus, Robert Barber and Samuel Pease, and taking captive Edward Hall, Samuel Mighill, and a mulatto. Joseph Hall, John Taylor and one other escaped. Hall, a nephew of Colonel Hilton, and Mighill were carried to Canada, where Hall built a sawmill and obtained much favor from the French and Indians therefor, so that they were allowed to go into the woods to hunt. Taking advantage of this they made their escape, and after traversing the forest for three weeks on foot, subsisting on lily roots and the rind of trees, Mighill became so exhausted that he lay down to die. Hall made all possible provision for his comfort and left him. Reaching Deerfield, Mass., he sent out a relief party, which found Mighill alive and brought him to the fort where he recovered his strength, and they returned home.

There is a family tradition that Robert Barber was killed in his own cornfield between the schoolhouse and the river at Piscassic. One Indian made an assault, and while Mr. Barber, though a small man, was defending himself successfully, another Indian appeared, and the two were too much for the brave man.

On July 9, 1706, the Council "Ordered that the Secretary summons the Selectmen of Hampton to appear before the Council to-morrow by ten of the clock in the forenoon, to answer to the complaint of Lieut. Col. Hilton, in not having their Town stock of provisions ready to supply the souldjers of the town in Scouting &c." On the following day it was "Ordered that the Selectmen of the town of Hampton do forthwith send a Barrel of pork to Lieut. Col. Hilton's house, out of their Town stock of provisions for Scouting as he shall see meet, and that the Secretary issue forth his warr.^t to the Selectmen accordingly."

The same day sixty men with provisions were ordered to Colonel Hilton's house, and on July 20, more provisions to be furnished him.

Colonel Hilton made a horseback trip to Boston, December 21, 1706, to consult with Governor Dudley, and as a result was off to the east January 21, 1707, with 220 New Hampshire and 90 Massachusetts troops. On his return to Black Point he captured a squaw and papoose, and by her assistance surprised and slew eighteen of the enemy.

In 1707, the government commanded the captains of Exeter and Hampton to arrest the deserters from Kingston and cause them to return to the defense of the settlement, or to do duty at Fort William and Mary.

Colonel Hilton commanded the Second Regiment on an expedition to Port Royal. With 1,000 men he left Nantasket May 13, 1707, reaching Port Royal May 26, returning on June 5. July 16, on the eve of a second departure, he writes his wife from Casco. By August the expedition had proved a total failure.

In the following September eight young men with Capt. Samuel Chesley were killed in the woods at Oyster River. Colonel Hilton pursued the Indians to Cocheco with 54 men, and to Ossipee and Pequacket with 360 men, but "made only a few discoveries."

On September 23, 1707, Colonel Hilton sent out on a scout towards "Winnepissauke pond, fifty six fresh men from Hampton, on Monday morning last, who was [were] to tarry out five days." In October of that year "£175-1-0 is allowed and ordered to be paid to Colonel Hilton for himself and the Exeter, Hampton, Portsmouth and Dover men."

Throughout the summer of 1708, an additional force from Hampton and Portsmouth was stationed at Fort William and Mary.

On February 19, 1708, Hilton was out with a scout of 20 men, and made an expedition to Pequacket with 270 men.

On August 2, 1708, it was ordered that Colonel Hilton "for the future send but sixteen men out of Portsmouth and Hampton in proportion, to her Majesty's Fort Wm. and Mary, to make up the standing souldjers there twenty persons and noe more." And on August 15, it was "Ordered that Lieut. Colonel Hilton imediately draw out twenty proper souldjers from Hampton, Exeter and Dover as a Scout to march to Winnepissiacoe pursuant to his Excellency's letter."

Winthrop Hilton of Newfields, born in 1761, was a distinguished officer in the wars with the Indians and killed by them June 23, 1710. He was appointed Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1706 and Councillor just before his death, but he never took his seat before the council board.

February 21, 1709, Biley Dudley certifies to the committee "seting at Portsmouth to examine the province depts" that he "subsisted" one of Lieutenant Bancroft's soldiers about five months, Lieutenant Bancroft being commander-in-chief at Exeter in 1690. Lieutenant Peter and Susanna Folsom attest the fact.

Also a blanket "prest by the order of Peter Coffin esquire for the Cuntry sarves when the soldiers went to pigwockit under the Command of Capn John Gilman," the blanket having been appraised at 16 shillings.

On June 11, 1709, as Ephraim Folsom was riding home from Exeter to Newfields on horseback with a grist of corn, about nightfall, he was fired on by an Indian and killed.

February 21, 1710, Francis Lyford of Exeter presents his bill to the committee of disbursements for boarding soldiers during the Indian War: namely two men at Captain Kinsley's garrison under the command of Captain Bancroft, eight weeks, and ten men at Mr. Moses Gilman's garrison, five months.

The following is the muster roll of soldiers at Colonel Hilton's garrison July 3, 1710, which were in the detachment under command of Captain Gilman, the last three serving 14 days, and the rest 7 days.

Daniel Eames	Bartholemew Thing
Jonathan Young	Jeremiah Arringotine
Samuel Bean	John Munsey
Cornelius Lary	Samuel Lovering
Thomas Lowel	Armstrong Horn
John York	Thomas Lary

They were paid at the rate of six shillings for seven days.

Col. Winthrop Hilton was slain by the Indians July 23, 1710. Accompanied by a party of 17 men he had gone out to peel some hemlock logs he had cut for masts the previous winter and which were liable to be injured by worms unless stript of their bark. They were lying several miles to the westward of his house on what is now known as the mast road in Piscassic. The day had been stormy, and while busy about their work they were fired on by a body of Indians in ambush and Colonel Hilton and two others were killed. Two others were taken captive, and the rest, intimidated by their loss and finding their wet guns unserviceable, fled.

The next day 100 men marched in pursuit of the Indians, but discovered only the bodies of the fallen. The enemy in their triumph had struck their hatchets into the brain of Colonel Hilton and left a lance sticking in his heart. His body was brought to his home, and buried with every mark of respect and honor.

The party were under the command of Capt. Nicholas Gilman, and the place of the ambush was between Piscassic and Washucke. Besides the three killed, Dudley Hilton and John Lougee were captured. Lougee was carried to Canada, then to England, and afterwards returned to Exeter. The same day John Wedgewood was captured with three daughters of Richard Dolloff, and John Magoon killed in the very place where he dreamed, a short time previously, he would be slain by the Indians.

On May 5, 1711, additional soldiers were ordered to Richard Hilton's garrison.

News having arrived July 27, 1711, of "a Great fleet from France likely to make their Impression upon this Coast," Governor Dudley "judged it necessary that the fort be strengthened with forty men, and the halfe of the Militia be drawn and made ready for a march from Hampton, Exeter and Dover to the Bank and New Castle at a minutes warning."

The golden news of peace was proclaimed at Portsmouth, October 29, 1712, and a treaty was made with the belligerent tribes July 11, 1713. New Hampshire and Massachusetts had lost hitherto 6,000 young men killed, and boys captured without being recovered.

The following is a list of the soldiers in a scouting party under the command of Capt. James Davis in 1712, with the number of days' service of each, at one shilling per day.

The account was allowed May 9, 1713.

The Council learning that the Indians were planning a new attack upon some point in New England, another scout was ordered March 20, 1716, to set out eight days hence into the woods under pretence of hunting to "see what discovery might be made of the Ind^{ns} & their motives," each soldier to be allowed four shillings per day for their service, they furnishing their own provisions.

Lovewell's War, 1723-25. By July, 1722, another war with the Indians began, and continued to disturb the Pascataqua settlements for three years. The enemy now attacked the coast in shallops, sloops and schooners which they had seized. The bounty on Indian scalps was increased to £100 each.

The previous June Captain Tilton and his brother, while fishing from a boat at Damaris Cove, were boarded by Indians under Captain Samuel. The Tilttons were bound, but cutting themselves loose overcame the five Indians on board, and, a light breeze springing up, sailed away. Captain Tilton used to tell the story at Newfields about 1750.

In the spring of 1723 eighteen Indians fell upon the family of Aaron Rollins in their home, they having neglected to retire to the garrison for greater security, resulting in the killing of Mr. Rollins and his eldest daughter, and the carrying away captive of Mrs. Rollins, a son and the other daughter, to Canada. Mrs. Rollins was redeemed after a few years.

In September, 1724, Peter Colcord was captured and carried to Canada. In the spring of the following year Capt. John Lovewell and 46 men were ambushed. Sixteen were killed and eighteen escaped. Paugus was slain.

In June, 1725, hostilities ceased, and articles of peace were signed December 15, 1725, at Casco. Peter Weare of Hampton Falls was one of the commissioners on the part of the New Hampshire House of Representatives to ratify this treaty with the Indians, at Exeter, August 5, 1726.

The Council, September 2, 1726, ordered that "Hampton, Exeter, Kingston, Dover and Derry be served wth a copy of a Proclam.^a of Peace, to be sent to ye chief Military officer in each town to be proclaimed by beat of Drum." And on October 31, 1726, it was ordered that a Thanksgiving Proclamation "be issued out for a Thanksgiving day y^e 10th November next; and y^e Gen.¹ Assembly be prorogued till ye 21st 9^{br}."

On July 12, 1731, Governor Belcher issued a captain's commission to Peter Gilman and Samuel Gilman, and a lieutenant's to Israel Gilman.

King George's War, 1744-48. France joined with Spain against Great Britain, and consequently involved the colonies in the conflict, but the frontier settlements were removed further inland. The Pascataqua forces performed signal service in the reduction of Louisburg, the Gibraltar of America, which capitulated June 17, 1745. Thirty years after, Pepperill's engineer, Colonel Gridley, laid out the entrenchments on Bunker Hill and the same old drums beat again on June 17, 1775.

William Hilton was in the expedition to Louisburg, and died during the winter of 1745. His name by mistake was omitted from the muster roll, but his widow, Joanna, was by vote of the government paid an allowance of seven pounds and ten shillings.

The Spanish Armada was destroyed in 1746. The same year Capt. Nathaniel Drake of Hampton, with a squad of 14 of his troopers, went on a scout of 10 days into the woods of Nottingham.

Preliminaries of peace were signed at Aix La Chapelle April, 1748, and the Definitive Treaty was ratified in October, 1748. Hostilities ceased, prisoners were released without ransom, and all conquests were mutually restored.

We give below a muster roll of men that enlisted in his Majesty's service in 1744 out of the "Second foot Company" under the command of Capt. Theo. Smith.

Robert Barber of Newmarket was taken by the Indians at Bakerstown and sold to a Frenchman near St. Francis, Canada, in 1754, and the Legislature voted £150 for his release and that of others.

The French and Indian War, 1756-63. England formally declared war against France, May 18, 1756. Hostilities, however, began much earlier, again throwing the colonies into anxiety and distress. The scene of the conflict was now transferred to the Connecticut, Champlain and St. Lawrence waters. When Fort William Henry capitulated to the French, August 3, 1757, the New Hampshire battalion suffered severely in this bloody Indian massacre consequent on the perfidy of the French general, Louis Joseph Montcalm. Amid the general consternation that followed, Jeremiah Marston of Hampton enlisted as lieutenant from August 19 to October 30, 1757, in Capt. John Ladd's company, Maj. Thomas Tash's battalion, stationed at No. 4 [Charlestown, N. H.].

Edward Fox of Newmarket was in the service of the Province in 1756, under the command of Capt. Abraham Perry, and as by some mistake he was not credited on the roll with the full time of his service, he petitioned for the balance of pay due him, and received it.

Chase Wiggin of Newmarket was at Fort Edward under Colonel Meserve in 1756, and on his return home from the army where he had been all summer, he was taken sick of smallpox about December 3, of that year. His bill for expense of sickness amounted to £198, 10s., old tenor, and he was allowed £7, 18s., 9 1-2d., sterling.

In 1758 Jonathan Blunt of Chester presented to the General Court a bill for the care of Benjamin York who was a soldier in Colonel Meserve's regiment, and was allowed £271, 10s., old tenor.

In 1758 Capt. Thomas Tash was in Col. John Hart's regiment in the Canada expedition to Crown Point.

Maj. John Gilman of Colonel Meserve's regiment, in behalf of the soldiers of the regiment under Lieut. Col. Goffe at Fort Edward, petitioned the General Assembly June 20, 1757, as follows:

Shews, That the said Troops were ordered to March from No. 4, (where with much fatigue they had arrived) to Fort Edward and in their Way rested a while at Albany Flatts from which by order of Said Colonel & the Request of the Captains Emery Moony & Bayley your Petitioner Came to Represent the Condition & Circumstances of said Troops which are greatly Fatigued & Dispirited by Such a Long & unexpected March & want of Necessary Supplies—That there is need of a Tent for the Officers of Each Company & one for Every Six Soldiers—Kettles, Canteens, & Beds for the Sick—An allowance of Rum & Sugar—Store of Shirts, Waste Coats Shoes Stockings—Some farther allowance for fresh Provisions—Provision for their Relief in Case the Small Pox Should Prevail & Spread among them it being very General at Albany & in all Probability at Fort Edward whither they are Bound—Billeting from the time of Enlisting till they Marched—An Armourer a Doctor a Chaplain—A Baker An allowance for the Officers Table—Money to pay the Extraordinary Charges in Marching up to Fort Edward & other Incidental & contingent Charges—These being the most Material Articles of which the Said Troops stand in Great Necessity Your Petitioner Humbly Prays Pursuant to his order That the Premises may be Considered that Speedy Relief therein may be Provided that the Said Troops may not be Dispirited and their Present uneasiness & Discontent may be Removed—And your Petitioner Shall Ever Pray, &c.

In 1759 Ticonderoga, Niagara and Crown Point surrendered to the English. Captain Marston was again in command of a company drafted out of Col. Meshech Weare's 3d regiment of militia. The several companies rendezvoused at Dunstable and marched by way of Worcester, May 25, and Springfield, where they were mustered, and Albany, to serve at the reduction of Fort Niagara. Governor Wentworth's order to Captain Marston is preserved.

Province of New Hampshire.

To Capt. Jeremiah Marston:

You are hereby directed to assemble the company of foot, raised for the Canada expedition, and under your command, without loss of time, and march them to Dunstable, where you will receive orders from Col. Lovewell for your further proceeding towards Albany. If your whole company can not be got together at once and the same time you are to have a prudent and careful person to collect them and follow you to Dunstable.

Josiah Wiggin of Newmarket was a soldier in Capt. George March's company, Colonel Goffe's regiment, in 1760, came home and had the smallpox, and petitioned for payment of his bill of expense amounting to £188 old tenor, and was allowed £7, 10s., 5d., sterling.

On February 18, 1761, the selectmen of Newmarket, Hubartus Neal, John Burleigh and Peter Folsom, petitioned the governor and General Assembly for reimbursement of the expense incurred in the sickness and death from smallpox of Lieut. Samuel Baldwin and David Doe, amounting to £394, 12s., 6d., and £128, 3s., old tenor. This request was granted and the town was allowed £20, 8s., 2 1-2d., sterling.

The same year Maj. Thomas Tash petitioned for payment for the use of a horse of Trueworthy Ladd impressed to send a courier to inform the government of the condition of the forces under his command at No. 4 on Connecticut River, many of the men having deserted. On the return by hard riding the horse fell lame, and was left at a tavern in Peterboro, the whole expense amounting to £38 old tenor. This petition seems to have been dismissed June 18, 1761.

Gen. James Wolfe met Montcalm on the Heights of Abraham, September 13, 1759. Both generals fell in battle, but victory rested with the English. Five days after, Quebec, the strongest city in America, surrendered.

Jeremiah Marston was again captain in the regiment of Col. John Goffe of Derryfield in the campaign of 1760, and was present at the surrender of Montreal. With that surrender, hostilities ended. The war was now transferred to Europe much to the relief of America. A treaty of peace was signed at Paris, February 10, 1763, by which Nova Scotia, Canada and the islands in the gulf and river of St. Lawrence were ceded to Great Britain. Great and universal joy spread throughout the colonies. From this time may be dated the flourishing condition of New Hampshire. Population and cultivation progressed with unprecedented rapidity. The people made themselves ready for the War of the Revolution a decade later.¹

Attacks were made by the Indians upon Oyster River as follows: 1675; 1675; August 18, 1690; 1693; July 17, 1694; August, 1703; April 25, 1704; May—July, 1704; August 11, 1706; April 27, 1707; May 22, 1707; July 8, 1707; September 15, 1707; June 30, 1709; 1711; spring of 1711; 1712; April, 1724; 1724. For some reason that place was made to suffer more than any other in the vicinity from the invasion of the savages.

Capt. Robert Clark had a brother who swam the Hudson river from buoy to buoy along the chain stretched across, tapped a barrel of rum on the wharf watched by a sentry, filled his canteens, and swam back again unobserved.

As Mrs. Fanny Shute spent the last years of her life at Newfields it may interest some to learn the particulars of her captivity. She was the daughter of Lazarus Noble who lived with his father-in-law, James Whidden, on Swan's Island in the Kennebec River. The Indians used to visit Mr. Whidden at the garrison for the purpose of trading. One morning shortly after daybreak two boys went out of the garrison leaving the gate open. Upon this 90 Indians lurking in the vicinity entered the garrison and took Noble, his wife and seven children prisoners. Mr. Whidden and wife concealed themselves and escaped capture. The Indians with their prisoners and plunder immediately started for Canada, and all but one child arrived there safely.

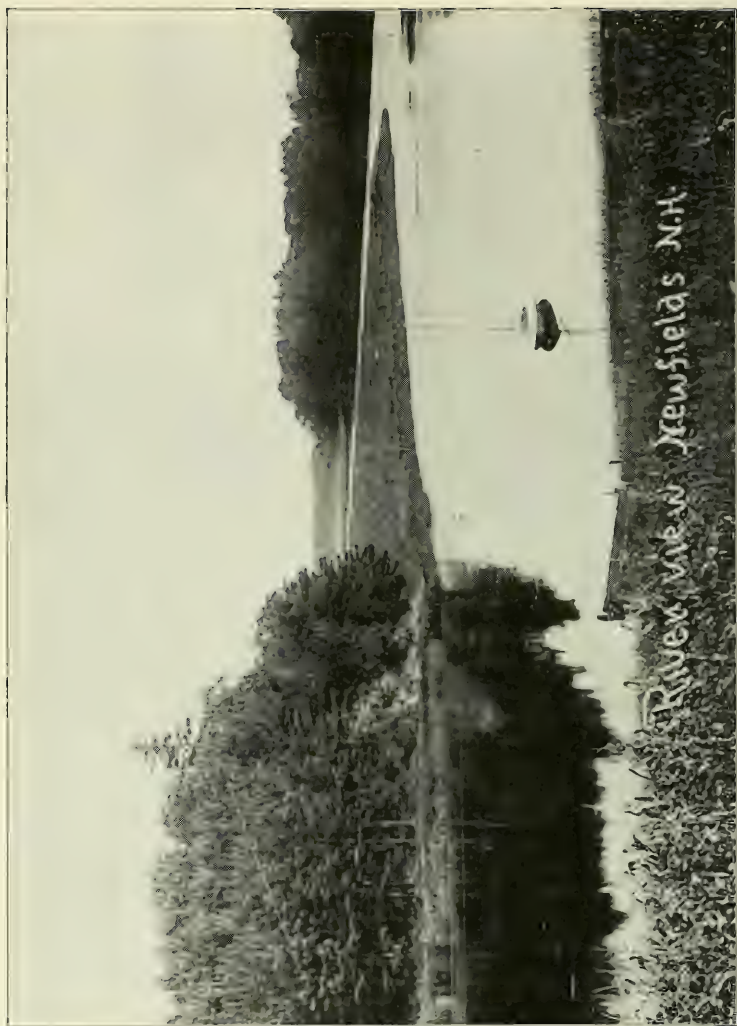

¹ Lists of Exeter men engaged in these various Indian wars may be found in Bell's History of Exeter, pp. 218-19, 224-31, 233-34.

Fanny Noble, afterwards Mrs. Shute, was then about 13 months old. She was taken to the house of Mons. St. Auge Charles, a French merchant. His wife going into the kitchen found Fanny crawling on the floor in dirt and rags, and picking apple parings out of the cracks. The child caught hold of her dress and burst into tears. Madam St. Auge had lately lost a child by death, was touched by her cries, and at length bought her of the Indians, and cared for her as kindly as for an own child. She had her baptized by the name of Eleanor, and brought her up a Catholic.

When four or five years old she was enticed to Three Rivers and taken back to the Indians by the old squaw who had at first sold her to Mr. St. Auge. Lamenting her separation from her French parents she was at last restored to them in Montreal, and kept secreted from the English who were searching for captives to redeem them. Her own father returned to Montreal to seek those of his children who remained there, and saw her through the window. She withdrew from his gaze, and he returned home without seeing her again.

She was put into a school attached to a nunnery and remained several years and was taught geography, needlework, painting, etc. At the age of 11 or 12 she was sent to Quebec to a school of Ursuline nuns to complete her education. She did not like the strict discipline and was taken back to the school at Montreal.

In her fourteenth year she was demanded by an agent of her father to be restored to her home. Her French parents tried to keep her, and she herself resisted the removal, making the enforced parting affecting and painful. She was taken to Quebec and thence sailed for Boston, arriving there just before she was fourteen. Her father died soon after her return, and she went to Newbury to live with a relative of her father's. She became a teacher for a time at Hampton, and there met Mr. Jonathan Tilton and married him about 1776. He died in 1798, and in 1801 she married John Shute of Newmarket, and lived in Newfields till her death, September, 1819. She was highly respected and lived and died a Christian.

Chapter XI.

FERRY AND BRIDGE OVER SQUAMSCOT RIVER.

Previous to the year 1700 the crossing of Squamscot River at Newfields was probably by fording at low tide, or transient ferriage. This often doubtless occasioned inconvenience and delay, and led Richard Hilton, June 12, 1700, to petition the General Assembly and Council for the privilege of establishing a permanent ferry, as follows:

Humbly Sheweth

That there being a great occasion for travellers and other persons Liveing neare yor petitioner to transport themselves & horses over the River from Swamscott to the other side opposite to yor Petitioner's House; for the cutting the way by sever^{ll} miles short to Lamperell River and other parts, and there being noe ffery settled; yor petitioner Humbly prays that yor Hon^r would be pleased to Grant unto him Liberty for keeping a ffery betwixt Swamscott and his owne House for the tearme of fifty years and that he have Liberty to keep a public House as is accustomed to all fferyes.

RICHARD HILTON.

This request was promptly granted for the term of fifty years, "Provided there be a convenient way on both sides the river laid out to said ferry, without making it a Province charge; every man and horse to pay 6^d a time, and a single person two pence."

Richard Hilton was the son of Capt. William Hilton, and grandson of Edward Hilton, Sr., all residents of Newfields.

There was a "boom" or floating bridge across Lamprey River in early times. December 15, 1712, Dover voted to give twenty-five pounds for building a boom over "Lamperel" River.¹

Nine years after, April 22, 1721, Jonathan Wiggin, son of Andrew, and grandson of Capt. Thomas Wiggin, of Stratham, petitioned Gov. Samuel Shute, "Council and Representatives convened in General Assembly" for a fferry on the southerly side of the river, on the ground that Mr. Hilton had failed to fulfil the conditions of his grant, as follows:

most humbly Sheweth:

That Capt. Rich. Hilton of Exeter was formerly favored by the Genl Assembly in this his Majesties Province with a Grant of the ferry over Exeter river, which Grant was attended with a particular condition that he should procure a way to the Ferry, so that the Publick should not be charged therewith; but tho he has had the improvement of the Ferry for the space of near Thirty years yet never procured any way thereto on the southerly side of the sd river, but all Travellers have trespassed on yor Petitioner by passing over his pastures, meadows and fields, for the space of one full mile in one part of his farm & almost halfe a mile in another part thereof, extremely to yor Petitioners damage, who cannot obtain any redress from the sd Hilton, altho his Grant is thereby forfeited to the Government.

And the aforesd Capt. Hilton doth live at so great a distance from the river that Travellers are oftentimes hindered in getting over and necessitated to burden your Petitioner with themselves and horses for entertainment in the night, which is expensive to yor Petitioner and an hindrance to them in their journey, many of whom have often times put your Petitioner upon praying for the Ferry on that side of the river adjoining to his land. And if your Petitioner should stop up the afore sd ways, Travellers would be extremely prejudiced.

Your Petitioner therefore most humbly prays that your Excellency and this Honorable Assembly will please to grant to him the privilege of the Ferry on the southerly side of the sd river; with the liberty of Keeping or hanging Gates through his own farm, & the liberty of the Ferryman keeping an house of entertainment for Travellers free of Excise: So yor Petitioner shall ever pray as in duty bound &c. & subscribes,

JONATHAN WIGGIN.

Three days after, the petition was "read at y^r Board, and ordered that the hearing and consideration of said petition be suspended till the next session of General Assembly, and that in the mean time the said Wiggin serve Rich^d Hilton, Esq., with a copy of the said petition and this order."

Accordingly Richard Hilton was duly summoned to appear at the hearing, July 12, 1721, but it does not appear that he was present. Mr. Wiggin, however, was there to prosecute his petition. The next day the General Assembly voted that he should have the ferry and "the improvement hereof, for the space of twenty nine years and half from y^e date hereof; he finding and providing a sufficient boat and canoe for transportation of travellers, taking for each horse and rider six pence and no more, and for each single person two pence and no more; providing that the said Wiggin allow to all travellers sufficient ways or passage from the King's road down to the ferry as the ways now go, he having the liberty of hanging Gates where needful in said ways, he always keeping his bridge and cosway in repair at his own cost and charge, and to have liberty to sell beer and Cyder free of Exeise, and to give due attendance."

This term of 29½ years fills out the 50 years of Hilton's original grant. It is supposed that Hall's ferry crossed the river at Newfields Landing, while Hilton's and Wiggin's ferry crossed just below the present bridge. So in 1772, half a century later, when the time drew near for a bridge to take the place of the ferry, we read of "the New Market Lower Ferry place" and of "the upper ferry place called Newfields."

On June 9, 1742, as the time grew near when Jonathan Wiggin's grant would expire, and a movement had been started to petition for a new one about a mile above, we find Andrew Wiggin, Jr., petitioning for an extension, as follows:

Shews that for many Years past a Ferry has been kept from the Land now belonging to Your petitioner over Exeter River to New Market and a Way kept open thro' his Land to come down to the said Ferry Place and a Tavern has been kept in a House belonging to him near the said Ferry place—That your petitioner understands that the privilege was formerly Granted by the General Court (or otherways) for a Term of Years now near Expired and that a petition is now preferred or about to be preferred to have a Ferry kept a Cross the said River about a mile Higher up—That your petitioner humbly Conceives there is the same Reason for keeping the same at the usual place now as there was for fixing it there at first and that this Court will see Cause to Renew the Grant to him and his Heirs and Assigns in Consideration that his Ancestor was at the Charge of opening a way keeping a Boat and hands to tend the same when the profit was Inconsiderable—

That if another Ferry place should be settled so near neither of them would be worth attending and there is no Necessity for it with Respect to Conveniency of Travellers or any other Consideration whatsoever

Wherefore Your petitioner Humbly prays that a new Grant of a Ferry may be made to Your petitioner to be kept at his Landing place where it has been usually, to hold to him his Heirs and assigns that he may have the sole privilege of keeping it there and that there may none be Established Els'where over the said River that will be prejudicial to him without such an Advantage to the Public as will Counterbalance the damage to him and your petitioner as in duty Bound shall ever pray &c.

ANDREW WIGGIN Junr

Wiggin's prayer for the renewal of his grant was presumably availing, and the movement for a new ferry for the time suspended, for we find him eight years later remonstrating against the granting of the following petition, dated September 24, 1750:

The Petition of Sundry of the Inhabitants of Newmarket in Said province and others most humbly Sheweth—That there is a Country Road Laid out by the general Court Several Years Ago from Nottingham to Exeter River in the upper part of Newmarkett and there is no Established ferry over Exeter River in the upper part of Newmarkett that if there was it would be of great service and benefit for Travellers That Travell to and from Nottingham Ipsum Bow and Pennecook and other places to Portsmouth Wherefore Your petitioners most humbly Pray Your Excellency and Honours to Establish a ferry over said River near the Late house of Nathan Presberry at the new field so called in the upper end of Newmarkett aforesaid and that he Joseph Hall Esqr may have the benefit of said ferry and Your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever Pray &c.

James Marston, Edward Hall, Ebeneser Bean, David Lyford, Edward ———, Jacob Tilton, John Perl, Charles Hilton, Andru Burly, James Hinson, James Sinkler, Joseph metcalf, Fitz Wm. Sargent, Daniel Lad, Joseph ———, John Mattoon, Jonathan Folsom, Rich^d Mattoon, Winthrop Hilton, Isaac marston, Samuel nel, Samuel Mighell, John Wedgewood, peer harsee, Joseph merrill, Hubartes Mattoon, Israel Gilman, Richard Clark, Robert Pike, Edward Colcord.

The following is Andrew Wiggin, Jr's., remonstrance to the foregoing:

Humbly shews Andrew Wiggin Junr of Stratham in sd Province That he is informed that Joseph Hall of Newmarket in sd Province Esqr (with others) hath Petitioned your Excellency and Honours that there may be a Ferry over Exeter River so called at some Distance above the Ferry over said River, at a place call'd Hiltons Ferry And that it will affect your Petitioners Interest very much in Case the Prayer of the said Joseph Hall and others should be granted—

Wherefore your Petitioner Most humbly prays your Excellency and Honours that the Prayer of the said Petition of Joseph Hall Esqr and others may not be granted untill your Petitioner can be heard in opposition thereto which your Petitioner prays may be granted him—and your Petitioner as in duty bound shall ever pray—

ANDREW WIGGIN Junr

Descr 25th 1750.

Hall's ferry was finally granted notwithstanding the remonstrance of Mr. Wiggin, doubtless with the thought that one man's personal interests should not block the way to the greater good of the general public.

As early as 1746 measures were taken to secure a permanent and substantial bridge across the river between Stratham and Newmarket. Experience had shown that in late autumn and the weakening and breaking up of the ice in the spring, the operating of ferries was attended with great inconvenience and difficulty. For this reason and others the following petition for such a bridge, of the date, November 21, 1746, was addressed to the Governor and the General Court:

We the subscribers Conceiving it will be for the great advantage of this Province in general as well as for our own particular Interest and for the benefit of the Inhabitants of the Several Towns to which we respectively belong that there should be a bridge over the river which Divides Stratham from New Market where the ferry is now kept or a little higher up the river at the Place Called the New Field Do humbly Petition this honorable Court for License to build a Strong and Substantial bridge there Sufficient for Teams to pass and repass Laden and if you will Vouchsafe to take the matter under your Consideration and permit us to offer to your Consideration the reasons Inducing us to offer this our petition we doubt not you will readily grant us License for which we hereby make humble request by which grant you will greatly Oblige your most humble Supplicants, the Inhabitants as in Duty bound shall ever pray.

A second petition from Nottingham with 34 signatures, of the same date, was sent in, giving as the reason, "That this and Several other Towns in this Province are exposed to Great Difficulties being Separated from the Metropolis and the Main Body of the Settled Part of this Province by a narrow River Running between Stratham and New Market which Lais us under a Necessity to travel many miles Round the Head or else Cross said River at a Ferry which is often times Not Less Difficult and at Certain Seasons of the year is altogether Impracticable and is always so for Carte and Teams."

A third petition of the same date, signed by Richard Calley and 44 others, adds the following: "We the Subscribers Sign with that reserve that s^d bridge be no hendrance to vesels & Rafts of any kind Passing & Repassing up & down S^d River."

Still another petition, without date, for the same object, is signed by Joshua Brackett and 44 others.

The four petitions were duly read in the Council and House, and January 19, 1747 was fixed as the date of hearing the petitioners, with the proviso that the public be advertised previously three weeks successively "in y^e Post-Boy & Evening Post News Papers (so called) of y^e Ten^r of y^e Prayer of said Petitions, Viz^t that there may Liberty be granted for Building a good sufficient Draw Bridge over Exeter River at Wiggin's Ferry so called, or at y^e New Field at y^e proper Cost & charge of y^e Petitioners that any or every one may have opportunity to shew Cause if any they have why y^e Prayer of s^d Petitioners should not be granted."

At a meeting of the "free holders & Inhabitants" of Exeter held at the town house January 19, 1747, Nicholas Perryman,

Maj. Ezekiel Gilman and Capt. Daniel Gilman were chosen agents of the town "to shew Cause why the Prayer of the petitioners should not be granted."

The hearing was deferred by the House from January 21 to March 3, and again to the first Monday in May. Meanwhile 36 freeholders of Stratham, 64 of Kensington, 62 of Hampton Falls and 60 of Epping, petitioned the General Court "that the prayer of s^d Petition may not be Granted." These petitions were without date. Kingston, March 3, 1747, "Voted unanimously that we are not willing that there should be any Bridge Built over Exeter River any where below the falls at Exeter Town." Jedediah Philbrick was chosen to oppose the building at the General Court.

The parish of East Kingston, March 3, appointed a committee to object. Likewise Brentwood, March 16, 1747, voted against building the bridge.

The parties were finally heard in the House May 13, 1747, by their attorneys for the opponents. The attorney for the petitioners asked leave to lay before the House an answer in writing, which was granted, the House adjourning till the next day.

The Exeter objections were as follows:

Humbly Shews

The Freeholders & Inhabitants of Exeter by their Agents the Subscribers hereof That whereas Notice hath lately been given in the Public Prints That the Towns of Newmarket Stratham & Towns Adjacent have Petitioned your Excellency and this Honble Court Praying Liberty to Build a Strong Substantial Draw Bridge over the river that Divides said Stratham and New Market at the Ferry place in Said Stratham or a Little above, And your Excellency & honrs having ordered said Petitioners a hearing of their Petitions on the Second day of the Sitting of this Court after the Seventeenth day of January then next and that said Petitioners give Public notice Thereof.

Whereupon we the Subscribers agents as aforesaid on behalf of our Constituents as well as for our Selves Most Humbly Crave Leave to offer the Following reasons why the Prayer of said Petitioners Should not be Granted, Viz:

1st For that the building such a Bridge would in a Great measure Stop the Course of the Fish Especially the Bass which Providence has hitherto greatly supplyd us with great Quantitys of to the Great Support of our Selves and Towns above us, and many Poor Familys if the Course of the Fish be Stopped will be Likely thereby to be Great Sufferers.

2^{dly} For that whereas the said river having been free Ever since The settling the Town of Exeter (upwards of one hundred years) for the passing and repassing of Vessels from hence to Portsmouth & Boston and other Ports, and there being Generally water sufficient for the passing and repassing of any Vessel of one hundred Tons Loaden whereby this Town as well as other Towns above it have reaped great advantages By means of Transporting their Lumber and by having return'd to them by the same Vessels The Provisions and Necessaries for the Support of Life & for Commerce and Trade with Each other; Which the building of the aforesaid bridge would greatly hurt if not Totally Stop, & also Prevent Carrying on the building of Vessels in the Town of Exeter which they have as Just a right to do as any other Towns in the Province.

3^{dly} For that the Free use and Privilege of That river to the head thereof was the Principal reason and cause of Peoples settling so far into the Country and Defending their Settlements in such Dangerous & Difficult times as have been since the Settlement of the Same and was also Incouragement to the Inhabitants of Kingston and other Towns to Settle Father into the Country they hoping to Enjoy the Benefit of Transporting their Lumber in this river without such an Incumbrance as the Proposed bridge would be. And now if the Prayer of the Petition should be granted Those invaluable Priviledges which the respondents have so long Enjoyed and so highly Prised (more than any other part of their Estates) would in a great measure if not Totally be cutt off and would be more Damage to the Town of Exeter and other Towns above it Than to Maintain men and Boats forever to carry over the Petitioners and Every thing they have as often as they please to remove, and Cannot be of such Service to the Petitioners as to Equal the Damage that would be consequent upon it. Neither would the Petitioners themselves be willing that any such Incumbrance should be made upon the river below their Landing places to prevent the Free passage of Vessels to them.

Neither is it likely if Possible for the Petitioners to make and maintain & Duly attend Such a Bridge in such manner as to Lett all Vessels pass and repass in said river For Vessels going up & Down swiftly with a strong tide cannot come to anchor and wait for any Persons to come and open the Passage for them without great Difficulty & Danger and Damage more than can be at Present Discerned.

4^{thly} For that the building the aforesaid Bridge would be a great Impediment to the conveying Down to Portsmouth the Mast Trees which are Yearly Procured in & brought to the Town of Exeter for his Majestys use, and would also make it very Dangerous to pass with Vessells rafts & Gundelows in the Narrow Passage of Thirty foot. For the Straitening of the river must of Consequence Cause the Current to run very swift and Rapid and thereby Greatly Endanger the Lives of the People as well as the Loss of their Vessels Lumber and Gundelows.

5^{ly} We humbly Conceive that the Granting the Prayer of the Petition by this hon^{ble} Court will not only be a Depriving of our Constituants as well as the Towns above us, and others, of their Lawfull right & Privilege but also be a Leading Example for other injuries of the like nature and be a much Greater Injury to the Province in Generall Than Benefitt to the Petitioners or others, in That it would cause the People of this Town and the Towns above us Instead of Transporting their Lumber to Portsmouth to convey the Same to Haverhill and Newbury and thereby greatly obstruct the Trade of the Province.

We do therefore Humbly Intreat That your Excellency & this Hon^{ble} Court will duly Consider the foregoing reasons and what we may Further Crave Leave to offer why the Prayer of the said Petitions should not be Granted Considering the many bad Consequences it might be attended with, and humbly hope and Desire That Your Excellency and hon^{rs} will in your great wisdom Prevent the Same by not Granting the Prayer of said Petition.

EZEKIEL GILMAN

DANIEL GILMAN

NICH^l PERYMAN.

Jedediah Philbrick, agent for Kingston, presents the foregoing reasons as expressing Kingston's objections to granting the desired permission.

Exeter's objections led to the following reply of Israel Gilman in behalf of himself and the petitioners:

The Reply of the Petitioners for a Bridge over the River at New Market to the Objections made by the agents of the Town of Exeter.

1st It is objected a bridge would stop the course of the fish &c This is wt the objectors cannot prove, it is Gratis dictum, nor does it carry probability with it that an open Bridge as this is proposed to be should stop the passage of Fish only by having a few Piers stand in the River, it may with almost Equal truth be said that ships & Vessels in the River Stop the Course of the fish, & so there should none of them be Suffer'd to pass, besides the advantage made by fishing at the head of the River is too Inconsiderable to be put in the Scale against the advantage of such a bridge.

2^d their second Objection supposes that the building this bridge would prevent all Trade &c. it is not fair to suppose the case otherways than it Really is, or will be. An open Bridge will not prevent trade, passing & Repassing with Vessels &c. a bridge may be so Contrived as to be very little Impediment to that. Some Inconveniencys allways attend the building of Bridges, and if none was to be built but only where there should be no Inconvency attending there will never be another built, & if that had been the Rule of judging concerning those that have been done, there never would have been one made over a River.

But in Such a Case the Greater Public Benefit is to have the Preference. if the building the bridge will serve 100 People in the Course of a year to the Same Degree it disserves of prejudices 99 the Bridge ought to be built. that a bridge can be so made as to be very little Damage to the passage on the River, we need only to look about us & see what has been done in other places. Vessels of near 100 ton pass & Repass London bridge (as well as many other places) tho' they are forced to strike their Masts, yet the trouble was not tho't Equal to the advantage of the Bridge. As to the Lumber Trade tis well Known it Decreases every year at Exeter. Lumber bro't out of the Country is carry'd to other places more than to Exeter, & if this Bridge is built more will come over it or to it in one year, than come down the River from Exeter in three.

3^d their third objection is but little different from the 2^d. it supposes that there could be no passing the Bridge without Insuperable difficulties, which is only beging the Question. the Petitioners think a Bridge may be so contrived as to be no other Impediment in passing but only a few Minutes time & a little care, and they have the Examples of other places & People to support them in their Opinion. as to what they say about the Inducem^t to settle at Exeter is a great mistake for they settled there as soon as at Portsm^o for the sake of the falls for Grist Mills & not for the Sake of transporting Lumber to Portsm^o whence every man there might cut it at his own door or within a few Rods of the River.

4th their 4th objection is still the Same only to make it a little more formidable. the Mast Trees are bro't in & His Majestys name made use of, and is it more difficult for a Mast tree to Swim under a Bridge than for a Gundeloo of wood or a Raft of Boards, what may easily pass as the bridge may be contrived. But how many mast trees are bro't to the head of Exeter River in a year, & those that are might with as Little Difficulty be hal'd below this Bridge & would be so was the bridge erected. but this objection was made only to fright People with those Potent words his Majestys use, and to carry a more frightful idea they Suggest the Lives of the People would be in danger which is nothing but suggestions.

5th The fifth Objection Relates to the depriving People of their Privilege. this objection operates Equally in all other cases of this nature & if attended to, no bridge had ever been built, nor tyde mills, nor any works upon Rivers which makes the passage more difficult for they are always some disadvantage to those whose Estates lay above such works, and 'tis almost impossible but that every Public work is a prejudice to Particular Persons. the Repair of a Bridge that the Public maintains is a prejudice to the Owners of the Lands adjoining, & yet it shall be done & the Law will give them no Remedy Because Private Right must give way to the Public advantage. and if it is considered that a great advantage this Bridge must be to two thirds of the People in the four old Towns, & all the new settlems above New Market, Durham, Dover &c, both in peace & war, what is the little difficulty of the trading part of Exeter & those concerned with them in comparison of the advantages of such a bridge which are so plain they need not be mentioned. the wisdom of all well ordered Governments have Esteemed such Building a Great advantage. & if it be fact that more of the vessels which fetch Lumber from Exeter Stop at the place proposed for this bridge & Raft it down, which may be easily prov'd, this Lessens the Difficulty to those that object. as to many of the People brot in as objectors it is plain they proceed on this principle, that it will be some charge to them as they fear. upon the whole it is Humbly Submitted whether the advantages will not abundantly over Balance the supposed disadvantages.

On May 14, 1747, after the petitioners and anti-petitioners had been heard by their attorneys and withdrawn, the House after due consideration, "Voted That y^e Petitioners have Liberty at their own Cost to build a Draw Bridge over Exeter River for y^e Publick use," and appointed a committee to join with a similar one chosen by the Council, to go and view the proposed location and report.

On May 18, 1747, this committee reported as follows:

We the Committe Have been and Viewed the places as mentioned in a petition for building a Sufficient Draw bridge over the River between new market and Stratham and we have unanimously agreed that the bridge be built over said River to begin to be built about twenty foote below a white Pine tree Standing about the ferry place on Wigginses land and so to Run as straight over or across said River to Robert Smarts land as it can be built for conveniency of Setting Said Bridge. The Distance between the Peers under the Draw bridge to be twenty-six foote and the Distance between the Pears for Rafts and other Necessary to be forty or fifty foot and the tops of the Caps between these vacancies to be Seven foot above high water mark in a middling tide, the width of the aforesaid bridge to be Eighteen foote wide between the rails of sd bridge from end to end.

This is our Report In this affair of said Bridge

This report was approved with certain amendments which are included in the Act as finally passed, June 4, 1747, by the General Assembly, divested of its formalities, and preliminary details as follows:

Be it therefore Enacted By His Excellency the Governor Council and Representatives in General Assembly Convened and by the Authority of the Same, That the Petitioners aforesaid and Such others as shall join with them therein shall have Liberty to Erect and Build a Good

Strong and Convenient Bridge over the River at New Market and Stratham to run from about Twenty foot below a white pine Tree Standing a Little way above the Ferry place on the land of Andrew Wiggin strait a Cross the River to the Land of Robert Smart on New Market Side, on the following Terms and Directions that is to say that it Run as Strait a Cross the River from and to the Place aforesaid as it may be for the Conveniency of Setting and Laying the foundation thereof in the River, that the Said Bridge be Built on Peers set at Convenient Distances form'd in the Best manner for passage Between them that a Passage for Vessels Gundelos Rafts and other water Carriage be Left where the Deepest water is of forty feet wide Between the Peers, that a part of the said Bridge be made to Draw in the most Convenient manner twenty-eight feet wide for the Passage of Vessels That the said bridge be built with Rails on the Top on Each Side and to be eighteen feet wide between the Rails that the Tops of the Caps between the Vacancies be seven feet above high Water in a Middling Tide and that all the said Bridge be built in a strong workmanlike manner at the Cost of the Petitioners and others as aforesaid and so maintained and Kept in Repair and that they Procure and get Laid out all such Convenient Ways and Passages to and from Said Bridge as shall be wanting and Necessary and that the Draw Part of said Bridge be made so that it may Conveniently be Drawn by two men.¹

For reasons now unknown, the petitioners for the draw bridge neglected to use the liberty given them for more than eight years, making no movement further towards its building, as is shown by the following petition to the General Assembly, dated November 25, 1755. After referring to the Act passed in 1747, it goes on to say:

That a Bridge is not yet Built there nor Ever Begun the More than Eight years are Elapsed—Since the Passing the Said act, That your Petitioners Humbly Conceive that If a Bridge was Built over the river from Stratham to a Place Called the Newfields in New market it would be of Much Greater Benefit & Advantage to the Publick than one Built at the fferry Place aforesaid—

That a Bridge May be much Cheaper & More Easily Built and Maintained at the New ffields than at the ferry Place the Current Not being So Strong at the Newfields as at the ferry Place the Water Being Almost twice as Deep at Lowwater at the Ferry Place as at the Newfields the Bottom of the river at the New ffields Being much more Even than the Rafts Brought from Exeter Generally Get But Little further than the Newfields the first tide So that a Bridge there will be no Hindrance to rafts Passing Down the river that it is a much more Direct Way into the Country than where the other Bridge was Proposed to be Built—That your Petitioners See no Proofs at Present of a

Bridge Being Built at the other Place—That your Petitioners are willing to Build And will Immediately go about Building a Bridge over the river at ye Newfields aforesaid If they may have Liberty So To Do By Act—Wherefore Your Petitioners Most Humbly Pray your Excellency & Honours that they may Have Liberty to Build Such a Bridge over that river att the Newfields aforesaid as Your Excellency & Honours shall Judge Most Suitable and Convenient And your Petitioners as in Duty Bound Shall Ever Pray.

This petition was signed by 304 persons.¹

It seems that a subscription of about two thousand pounds, old tenor, was secured to build the proposed bridge across the river between Stratham and Newmarket near Wiggin's ferry, but on condition that it was not to be paid till the bridge was built, and finding it impossible to complete it on credit, and the sum itself not sufficient, and that future subscribers would expect the same terms, sundry inhabitants of Stratham and other places conceived the idea of establishing a lottery in aid of the project, and January 4, 1760, petition the General Court for permission so to do, urging it on the ground:

That as there are Several Examples of Raising money for such Purposes by Public Lotterys many have tho't it a very feasible method & giving a fair prospect of Success in this Case, and many Persons would contribute in this Way who would Refuse to do it in any other, and as Building said Bridge appears to be a Projection of very Considerable advantage to the Public, and is therefore on that account worthy of Encouragement and much to be wished to be well Executed—

Your Petitioners therefore Humbly Pray that they may have Liberty to Set up a Public Lottery for the End aforesaid and for maintaining said Bridge, all to be under Such Regulations & managed by Such Persons as in your Great Wisdom you shall judge Proper and that the Petitioners may have Leave to bring in a Bill accordingly, and they will as in Duty bound Ever Pray &c.

This petition was signed by Samuel Lane and 167 others.

On January 7, following, Philip Fowler and Robert Smart, over their own signatures bind themselves and their heirs in the sum of £500 when the bridge shall be completed, to give "a good Deed of a Way two rods Wide through each of our Lands for the Benefit of the Publick, to pass & repass in with Liberty of hanging Gate or Gates, the Said Way" to begin at the "southwest end of Mr. Fowler's garden at the country road in New Markit and so running near upon a Streight line to the foot of said Bridge.”

The petition for a lottery fixed the location of the bridge near the Wiggin ferry, but it appearing that the expense of building the bridge there would be much greater than at Newfields, Jonathan Chase and 80 others, January 30, 1760, petitioned the General Court to reconsider their former vote, and grant permission to build at Newfields, alleging the following reasons for the change of location:

For that since the first Grant for building said Bridge at the lower Ferry place, The Country is Largely Settled back so as to make the Trading & Travelling by the said New Fields much more Convenient and Profitable to the People in General than at the other place.

2^{ly} For that the Damage (if any) to the People that Trade in Lumber at Exeter & other places above the New Fields will be much less if the bridge be built at New Fields than if it be built below as the Rafts & Lighters which Come down from thence, Commonly stop at the New Field to make up their Load & Rafts bigger.

3^{ly} For that the River at the New Fields is at bottom Evener and Firmer for making a bridge to stand fast than it is below and Not so wide by Eight rods, so that the Charge of building Said Bridge at New Fields would be Vastly Less than to build it below.

4^{ly} For that there is already a high way laid open from the Country road in New Market to the upper End of the Landing at New Fields, and (if the bridge be built at New Fields) there will be a highway given to the owners of the Land in Stratham on the South side of said River From the said river to the Country road in Stratham which will be more Serviceable & Convenient for People that Travel into the Country than the other way would be as also there will be a highway given from the Lower End of the Landing at New Fields to the Country Road in New Market near the Dwelling house of Hubartus Mattoon to Accommodate the People that live in the lower part of New Market and in Durham, which will make that way as Commodius for that people as if the bridge was to be built below.

5^{ly} For that there is a Great Trade and business Carry'd on at the Said New Fields (Particularly Shipbuilding) which (as People are Frequently Settling there) is likely to Increase very Largely in Case the Said Bridge be built there:

For all which Reasons and many more that may be offered Your Petitioners Most Humbly Hope that your Excellency & Honrs will Take under your wise Consideration the Premises aforesaid and Take Such order Concerning the Same as your Excellency & your Honrs In your Great Wisdom Shall think Most Convenient and proper And Your Petitioners as in Duty Bound Shall Ever Pray &c.

A second petition like the above, January 7, 1766, signed by James Johnston and 190 others, was sent to the General Court, to which the following letter was appended:

Mr. Speaker,

Having seen a Petition which is to be preferd to the General Assembly for a Removeal of the Bridge that was to be maid a Cross Exeter River Near the Lower ferry (so called) between New Market and Stratham and am doubtfull whether Ever a bridge will be built at the place where the act has Proposed tharefore hope the Generall Court will adhear to the Petitioners and another Reson for the bridge to be above is that Merss Shut [e] and Mattoon has Given from under their hands to open a Road from the upper ferry to the main Road which is a Great advantage to the North End of New Market furthermore as the back Settlements Inceas the bridge is much more wanting.

With Submiston I am your Humble Servt

JOSEPH SMITH.

P. S. What cased me to write you is to Let you know the Reson as above why I Incline the upper place.

The original petition for a lottery to aid in building the bridge, it seems, was passed by the House February 22, 1760, but according to Bouton,¹ "it does not appear from the Journal of Council & Assembly the bills for lotteries were concurred."

A hearing was ordered by the House upon these later petitions to be held February 13, 1766, after due notice had been given in the New Hampshire Gazette for three successive weeks, that any opposed to granting the prayer of the petitions may have opportunity to show cause why.

On June 26 following, a motion was made to revise the petition, and it was so voted, and another hearing on the same condition ordered for September 3, 1766.

Again, February 23, 1768, "Sundry of the Inhabitants of Newmarket Stratham & other Places," petition the General Court for the same reasons as formerly expressed in a similar petition, praying "that they may have Liberty to Set up a Public Lottery to raise money to erect and compleat Said Bridge and for the future maintaining of the same, under Such regulations and managed by such Persons as in your great Wisdom you shall Judge proper, And they will as in Duty bound ever pray &c."

The petition met with favor and on March 26, 1768, the House passed an Act giving the required liberty. Omitting the preamble, we give its substance as follows:

Be it therefore enacted by the Governour, Council & Assembly that the persons hereinafter named be & hereby are authorized & permitted to set up & Carry on a publick Lottery to raise Money for the End aforesaid in so many Classes & Drafts as they shall judge proper not exceeding in the whole the Sum of one Thousand Pounds Lawful m^y of said province provided the said Lottery be drawn & finished within the Term of Two Years from the passing of this Act. And Andrew Wiggin & Walter Bryant Esqrs Deacⁿ Stephen Boardman, Cornet Thomas Wiggin, Lieut. Joseph Young & Lieut. John Burley, or the major part of them are hereby appointed to be managers of said Lottery who shall be under oath to be administered by any Justice of the peace to the faithful Discharge of that Trust & shall duly pay all benefit Tickets according to the Tenor & True Meaning of their Scheme & shall refund all sum and sums of Money that shall be paid for Tickets in Case the said Lottery shall not be drawn and compleated within the Terms aforesaid. And the said Managers or the Major part of them are hereby appointed & authorized to apply the Money which they shall so raise by Causing the said bridge to be built agreeable to the Act aforesaid with this Difference, that The Passage of twenty eight feet shall be where the deepest Water is instead of the Passage of forty five feet as mentioned in said Act & the forty five feet to be in the next birth on the side of New Market, and the Passage for Vessels may be made in any manner that shall be more Convenient than that proposed in said Act & they shall Cause the said Bridge to be finished within one year after the said Lottery shall be finished & they shall be allowed their reasonable Demand for their Time & Trouble as the General Assembly shall Judge proper to whom they shall render their Account of their proceedings & all Charges & Demands concerning the Premises & if any money shall remain after the Bridge shall be finished it shall be applied for the Support & Repairs thereof as the General Assembly shall Order.

And be it further enacted, by the authority aforesaid that there be a Convenient high Way each side of said Rivers from the Country Road to said Bridge when built in the Town of Stratham, to begin where the South East end of said Bridge shall be & from thence to run South easterly Thro' the Land of Andrew Wiggin Esqr. to the Country Road as the Road now goes, & in New Market To begin where the North West End of said Bridge shall be & from thence to run North-westerly a Straight Line to the Country Road near the Southerly side of Philip Fowlers garden, the said Road in both Towns to be three Rods wide & to be under the same regulations as tho' it was laid by the quarter Sessions.

The owners of the Land giving the Land for that purpose which they have engaged To do provided they may have Liberty to hang & Maintain Two Gates on each side which Liberty is hereby granted.

After years of the prevalence of lotteries in the Colonies to raise money for public purposes, it was seen by some that the influence was detrimental to the public welfare. A petition, under date of June 30, 1769, was sent to Gov. John Wentworth asking him not to assent to any such Act for raising money without first transmitting a draft of such act to the petitioners, giving as a reason "that such practice doth tend to disengage those who become adventurers therein from that spirit of Industry and attention to their proper callings and occupations, on which the publick welfare so greatly depends," and that lotteries "hath been also extended to the enabling private persons to set up such Lotteries, by means whereof great frauds and abuses have been committed."¹

It seems that Walter Bryent, Andrew Wiggin and Lieut. John Burley, who had charge of building the bridge over Exeter River, found it impossible to do it within the specified time allowed them, so under date of March 29, 1770, they petitioned for an extension of time, and were given "two years longer."

Two years later the bridge had not materialized, though some "material" had been provided, for a petition was sent in to the Governor and General Court convening March 31, 1772, signed by James Hill and 123 others, stating "that they find by experience that the Plan for building a bridge of New Market Lower ferry is not so well suited for that Design as the upper ferry place called the New Fields," adducing as reasons that the "Several points of Land runs so much across the River that the Rafts will almost unavoidably be thrown on to the Piers," occasioning damage "to the Piers or the rafts," and the distance will nearly "double the cost." They also state that they "are at a Loss" as to reason why it was the bridge was ever located as it is, and affirm that if it had not been fixed by "an act," the people concerned would have changed it to the New Fields, and probably would "have finished it there by this time." They state further that with the materials already provided 350 pounds "will be sufficient to finish it," and if the proposed change of location is made they can raise the amount by subscription, and "there will appear a number of Persons to give sufficient Security that the whole work shall be completed within One Year after Liberty shall be granted.” They therefore ask that the change of location be made, and that they may have the materials already provided.

On June 11, 1772, the Governor laid the petition before the Board “recommending that the undertakers to build the same [bridge] be called to acc^t with the Gen.^l Assembly for the monies produced by the Lottery granted by the Gen.^l Assembly for that purpose, & to know what Expenditures have been already made & why the said Bridge is not finish^d.”

The House apointed Mr. Waldron, and the Council, Colonel March, to make the inquiry.¹

On May 20, 1774, the petition of Dea. Stephen Boardman praying that the managers of the Newmarket lottery be called upon “to settle the account of their Proceedings in said Trust &c.” was laid before the House, and it was voted “That the said Managers be Notified forthwith to Lay the accompts of their Proceedings in their said Trust before the General Assembly in order to be adjusted and settled,” with an amendment “that the other managers be notified and a hearing had.”²

The exact date of the finishing of the bridge has not been learned but was probably about 1775, for we find by a petition, dated October 24, 1780, that the bridge already needed repairs as will be seen:

Humbly Shew We the Subscribers, freeholders and Inhabitants of divers towns in the State that Stratham & Newmarket Lottery Bridge, so Called, is now become ruinous and almost impassable, and unless Speedily Repaired the Great Expence of building it & Great Benefit and Convenience the Public might Still Receive therefrom will be entirely Lost—As the Said Bridge was built by Lottery for the Public advantage and as no particular Towns are Chargeable with the Repairs thereof your Petitioners humbly Conceive that a Lottery for the Repair of Said Bridge would be found the most eligible way, Wherefore your Petitioners humbly Pray that your Honors would (as in Some Cases you have) Grant a Lottery for that purpose, or that the same bridge be Supported in future at the Charge of the County of Rockingham or such other manner as your Wisdom may dictate, and your Petitioners as in Duty bound will ever pray &c.

In 1785 the following proposal was made:

The subscribers in behalf of the Petitioners for the removal of Newmarket Bridge beg leave to make the following proposal:

If the Honorable General Court will be pleased to grant the prayer of the Petitioners for the purpose aforesaid We will give sufficient Bonds to build A Bridge at Newfields Two feet higher than it now is the Piers with half Diamonds up & down the River the Ship Passage Thirty One feet wide and keep it in repair Twenty Years.

HENRY WIGGIN.

The following petition signed by Daniel Rindge and 230 others was sent to the General Court convening at Portsmouth, June 1, 1785:

Humbly shews, The subscribers, that, Newmarket Bridge, so called, leading from Stratham to Newmarket, is, and for a long time has been, in a ruinous condition—that unless immediate repairs prevent, the great design of building the same will be defeated, and the public essential injured thereby—

Wherefore, as the continuance of said Bridge would be a public benefit, your petitioners humble pray, that your honors would devise some way, for its speedy Repair, and future support.

A committee appointed to consider the petition reported it was their “opinion that the former Act respecting the Bridge be repealed & that an Act pass enacting that in future the said Bridge be repaired & supported in manner following viz that the end on Newmarket side so far as to the hoist be repaired & supported at the expence of the said Town of Newmarket and the end on Stratham side be repaired and supported at the expence of said Stratham so far as the hoist and that the hoist be repaired & supported at the expence of the Towns of Portsmouth greenland Rye Portsmouth to pay three quarters of said expence greenland & Rye the other quarter for & during the Term of ten years and no longer which is submitted.”

This report was accepted by the House, but the Senate did not concur.

A petition signed by Joseph Cilley and 26 others was addressed to the General Court convening at Concord the third Wednesday of October, 1785, as follows:

Humbly shew the Subscribers, that Newmarket Bridge is impassable and in a ruinous condition, that the Remaining materials of the Bridge will be lost soon unless the Bridge is repaired, or materials removed—that your petitioners conceive there is no prospect of the Bridge being Repaired, and that the remains of the Bridge were they removed to the Newfields, would Serve to build a Bridge across the River there, where the River is narrower and the Tide less rapid than the place where the Bridge Stands, if a Bridge were erected and kept at the Newfields the Public would be better Accommodated and the River less obstructed—And as many Persons are Willing to Subscribe considerable sums of Money to build a Bridge at the Newfields Your petitioners conceive there is a fair prospect of a Sufficient Sum being subscribed for building a Bridge there and keeping the same in repair for ten years from the building thereof in case leave were given to move the Materials of the Old Bridge to help build the new one, before the removal of which Materials Sufficient caution shall be given for building and keeping the new Bridge in Repair as aforesaid and your petitioners as in duty bound &c.

A remonstrance to the foregoing petition was sent into the General Court convening February 1, 1786, by the towns of Durham, Newmarket, Madbury, Lee and Northwood through their committees, urging the following reasons:

1st That a very considerable Part of the Petitioners themselves do not wish the Bridge to be removed: and were only induced to sign the Petition upon a Misrepresentation, that there would not be any Bridge unless it was Removed: the Contrary of which will not so clearly appear; that we presume to hope the hon^{ble} Court will consider the said Petition, as in fact it is a Measure calculated to serve the private Views of a few Persons about the Newfields to the manifest detriment of the Public in general—

2^{dly} Because the principal Reasons therein assigned for Removal of the Bridge are not True, for they say that at the proposed Place the river is narrower & the Tide less Rapid than at the Place where the Bridge Stands. the bare denial of which we presume might be a sufficient Answer—For the River at the Bridge being not only broader but much deeper, consequently the Tide cannot be so rapid—The very Water Courses of the present Bridge by their Width & depth afford a larger Passage for the Water, than the whole wedth of the River at the newfields and from which deducting the Spaces which the Piers & abutments of a Bridge will necessarily take up, the Course of the Water will be so much obstructed as will affect the Navigation to a very great Degree as well as endanger the Bridge it self — They also say that a Bridge at the Newfields would better Accommodate the Public & less obstruct the River — neither of which facts are True, for the Contrary will clearly appear by the Memorials: and also by the Plan (herewith exhibited) it will appear that for all Travellers on the lower Road leading over said Bridge the way by the Proposed Bridge is a Mile & three quarters further than by the Present Bridge and a much worse road especially for Carriages — And even the Western Road thro' Epping Nottingham Deerfield, Epsom &c the lower Road is 154 Rods nearer — so that upon the very moderate computation of only 50 Persons a Day passing said Bridge by each of said Roads such Removal will Occasion the Public more than 6,000 miles Travel in a Year; besides more than a quarter of a Days work for every Team passing to and from Ports' mouth that Way; which will be a Cost far exceeding the Repair of the Bridge; so that the Public cannot (with any Propriety) be said to be Accommodated by a Measure which will be detrimental to more thousands than it can really Benefit single Persons — The same we must still object & say with Respect to the Obstruction of the River, untill we hear upon what new Principles they will prove That, the Smaller the Passage the same Body of Water passes through in the same Time the less rapid the Stream—

3dly Because a Work of such Importance as a Bridge over a Navigable River, in its own Nature ever is should be done not only in such manner & Place as would best Accommodate the Public in passing over the same, but also be the least detrimental to the Water Carriage; and which in that River is of considerable Consequence And accordingly the Place where the Bridge now is was fixed upon for that purpose by a Committee of both Branches of the Legislature, accompanied by an approved Engeneer, sent on Purpose to view & examine the River before the Bridge was built and now many Years tryal clearly shows that the place was well chosen: Whereas it is uncertain whether a Bridge could be made to stand at the proposed Place where the current is quicker and the Botom sandy—

4thly Because there has been more than a Mile of Road laid out on purpose to accommodate the Present Bridge, which upon Removal there of, if continued open will be a needless burden on the Public: and if shut up, will leave those Persons who upon Confidence in the public Faith have purchased or divided their Estates in Conformity thereto, to purchase Roads for themselves: some of them thro' the same Land, which their Ancestors generously gave the Public: And several Miles more of New Road, must be purchased by the Public—

5thly We object & Answer that all the other Reasons by them assigned for the Removal of the Bridge; either operate as forcibly for the repair of the same where it now is; or are mere Suggestions without the least Foundation—

All which we are ready to Prove to the hon^{le} Court on Trial and for which among other Reasons, We humbly pray that the Prayer of said Petition may not be granted—

And that Leave may be given to bring in a Bill to regulate the Repair of the Present Bridge & prescribing the Method in which the Same shall be supported in future by Subscription, or otherways as to your Hon^{rs} in Wisdom shall seem meet: And your Memorialists as in Duty bound shall pray—

Lee, 30th January 1786.

This remonstrance was signed by the committees of the several towns. Samuel Gilman, Joseph Young and Wentworth Cheswell were the committee of Newmarket.

Eighteen citizens of Epping also remonstrated against the removal of the bridge.

Hubartus Neal, for the remonstrants, makes deposition relative to the bridge as follows:

The Deposition of Capt Hubartus Neal of Lawful Age Testifies and says, that he the Deponent has been well acquainted with Exeter River for many years, more particularly with them Parts of said River, where both the Ferries were formerly kept between Stratham & Newmarket, and say that at the lower place where the Bridge is now built the Bottom is very hard, & firm, and about Ten feet depth of Water in the Channel at low Water, and the River is about four hundred feet wide— the Deponent also says that at the Newfields Landing the River is about Two hundred and ninty-five feet wide, & from three to Six & half feet Deep and the Bottom, Sand & loose Bottom—

And the Deponent further saith, that he viewed the said Bridge last week & upon Examination the Deponent found the Stone Abutments of said Bridge which extend about two hundred & fifty feet to remain almost intirely firm and good as when first built, and also all them parts of the Piers below half Tide.

HUBARTUS NEAL.

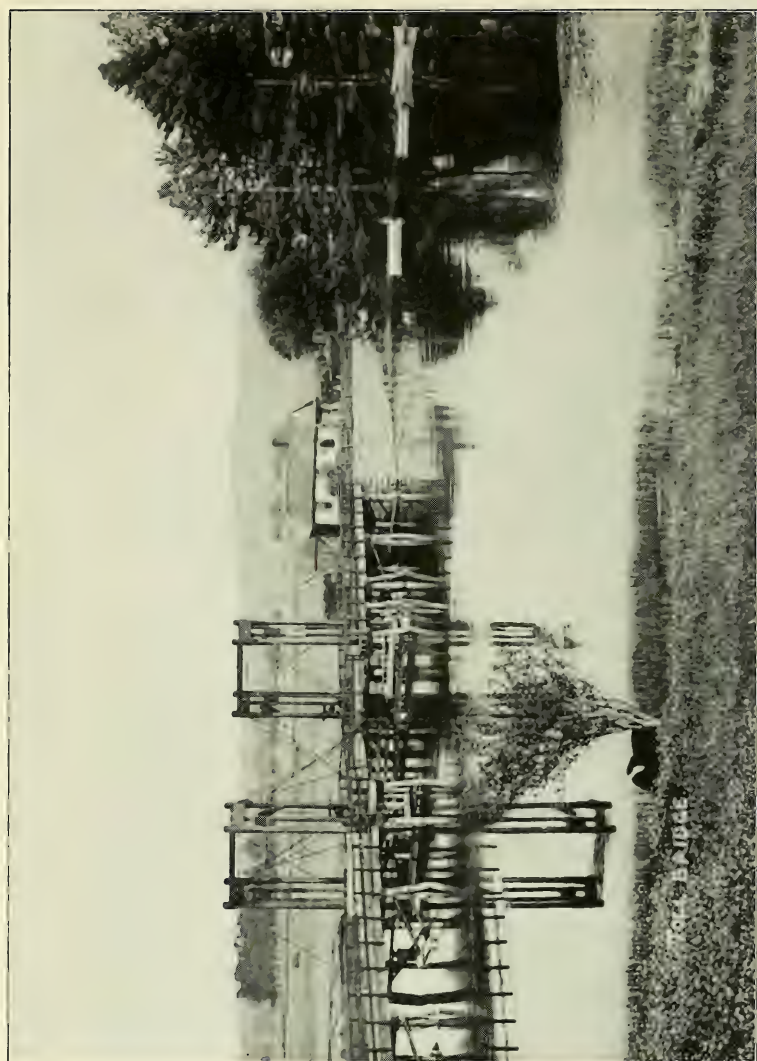

Feb. 6, 1786.¹

Capt. Archelaus Woodman and Walter Bryent also made depositions of substantially the same import.

That the bridge between Stratham and Newmarket was built with money raised by a lottery sanctioned by the state is an established fact. It was generally known as the “Lottery Bridge.”

of the bridge, and we give herewith a fac-simile of an original now in possession of Dr. Charles F. Hussey of Portsmouth.

Bridge Lottery, No. 11. THIS TICKET [No. 24] entitles the Possessor thereof, to any Prize drawn against its Number, in the SECOND CLASS of a LOTTERY granted by the General Court of the State of New Hampshire, 9th November 1780, for repairing and supporting Stratham and Newmarket LOTTERY BRIDGE, (so called) in said State.

E HABATTUS NEAL.

The Town Records of 1792 show that "The Public Bridge had been supported a long time by subscription." It was now "given to a few private persons to have a toll thereon, which we 102 inhabitants of Newmarket presume will amount to more than ten times as much as will keep the Bridge in repair."

The act making it a toll-bridge was passed by the Legislature, June 21, 1792.

In 1806 a chartered company was organized to rebuild and care for the bridge. The charter was signed by Gov. John Langdon June 18, 1807, and the bridge built by Henry Wiggin of Newfields by contract for $4,900. Its formal opening occurred December 10, 1807. The bridge was again rebuilt about 1838, and in 1884 the "draw" was repaired.

In 1892 the selectmen of Stratham and Newfields, acting as proprietors of the bridge, took up the stock of the bridge, issuing promissory notes therefor.

The Legislature, March 21, 1901, provided:

That the proprietors of the Stratham and Newmarket bridge are hereby authorized and empowered to sell and convey all the property and franchises of said corporation, upon such terms and to such person or corporation, as it may, by vote of a legal meeting, direct: provided that all obligations of said corporation, existing at the time of such sale, shall be first paid and discharged.

The bridge has now been placed by deed in full possession of Rockingham County, authority having been given by the Legislature April 10, 1907, and accepted by both Stratham and Newmarket at their annual meetings, March, 1908. The outstanding debt of $7,000 is assumed by the two towns equally. The entire expense of maintenance will hereafter devolve upon the county. The care of the "draw" will be the most expensive item. H. F. Marden was the last toll-collector.

Concerning bridges of the early times it should be added that in 1722 in consideration of the heavy burden laid upon the citizens of Dover "in building and renewing the many bridges in The said town, over and above the ordinary annual repairs of Highways through the same," occasioning a "much greater and more grievous tax than any other Town in the province, more especially for the Erecting and maintaining Two very large Bridges over the river of Cocheco and Lamprey river," through their committee consisting of Richard Waldron, Stephen Jones and Paul Gerrish, they petition Governor Shute and the General Assembly "that the bridging of The Said Two rivers may be made a province Charge to be defrayed out of the public Treasury," believing they "are more than even wth the Inhabitants of any Neighboring town in y^e Costs of bridging," exclusive of the two large bridges. They were spurred to such action at this time from the fact that a freshet the year preceding had "floated away the boom at Cocheco with 3 piers and the Standing bridge at Lamprel river" and they were now to be rebuilt.

This petition was duly considered, and the House voted £60 in aid of the town, but the Council did not concur, and the endeavor failed.

On June 1, 1723, the selectmen of Dover again petition, but this time for the appointment of a committee "to view the said river and the landings on Each side in order to finding a more convenient place to build anew so as to prevent the like Misfortune wth y^e former, and Make a report of their doings at y^e next Sessions." They preface their petition with the fact that the bridge over Lamprey River had been carried away "for want of firm foundation."

This petition resulted in a vote "That Six Indifferent Persons be chosen a Committee to Survey Lamprey River and Report .

. . . y^e Most commodious place for building a bridge across Said River, and That Col. Walton, Mr. Edw^r Ayres & Mr. Benj^a Thomas be three of y^e Committee to joyn" with the same number appointed by the House, consisting of Col. Peter Weare, Col.

John Plaisted and William Moor. A proviso was added that "y^e Petitioners pay y^e Charges of the Committee."

On July 12, 1723, Thomas Walton, Edward Ayers and John Plaisted, "being the Maj.^r Part of s^d Committee," reported "that met at time and place appointed did view and find out a place which in our best Judgment is at the Picked rock so called a little above y^e first Dam on s^d River w^{ch} wee according to our understanding think the most proper place to erect the Bridge."

Benjamin Thomas on the above committee, not receiving seasonable notice of the time fixed for the action of the committee, afterwards made investigation and concurred in the judgment of the reporting members.

In the General Assembly, July 22, 1723, it was ordered that copies of the committee's report be sent to the selectmen of Dover and Exeter and they be given to understand that the Governor and Council "expect that a suitable bridge be built as soon as possible at the place mentioned in y^e s^d Report, w^{ch} they have accepted, and that they communicate the same to the selectmen of Exeter, in order to that town's bearing their proportionable part of the charge of said bridge, as to right and justice doth appertain."

The letter commanded to be sent to the selectmen of the two towns with the copies of the report expresses the expectation "that you will improve every opportunity in forwarding so necessary a work and that there be no failure on any part or by any means in Complying with this order."

Pascataqua bridge was erected in 1794, and the Concord turnpike built.

Chapter XII.

ROADS AND MILLS.

Roads in the colonies were hardly ever laid out, but were left where Indian trail or chance cart tracks in the woods had marked them. The footpath was blazed by cutting the bark from trees on the right and left every 10, 20, or 30 yards.

Our ancestors were content to travel on horseback and so had but indifferent roads. Such roads as there were usually hugged the streams. Remote planters were satisfied if they kept open a track by which their houses could be reached on horseback.

As the settlers increased in number and spread out through the town and into adjoining towns, public highways became essential for intercommunication, to take the place of the earlier bridle paths, and in the records they are often mentioned. We have not been able to determine when the first one was laid out, but in 1645, on the "last day of the 10th month" John Legat received half an acre of land "by the river side before his houses for the sittin of a cowhouse" on condition that "the highway" be kept the usual breadth of three rods.

On June 3, 1645, Goodman Smart received a grant of land "Reseruing six Rod In bredth for A highway between m^r Hilton's march and this say^d land."

The lot layers assign to John Gilman, September 29, 1648, land south of Mr. Hilton's "begining at the highway."

The selectmen in 1652, "23 day 10 mon." give liberty to any man receiving land grants between Mr. Hilton's and Thomas Biggs' to fence it in provided they make gates for the country highway, or any necessary highway for carting.

In 1657 were "conveniente carte waies" from the upper to the lower fall of Lamprey River.

March 16, 1660, we learn that John Hilton's 29 acres of land was "on the left hand of the path betwixt the Great hill and the little brooke going into m^r Nutters creeke" and his one acre "between the cart way & the brooke."

John Gilman received land, April 3, 1665, "lying on the left hand of the way going to Pascasack joyning upon Dover lyne."

April 4, 1666, Charles Gilman received land at Lamprey River "provided there may be a highway through it to m^r Hiltons saw mill."

Moses Gilman and others were appointed, March 29, 1668, to run the line [bridle path] between the two meeting houses of Hampton and Exeter, and Robert Smart and others to do the same between Dover and Exeter, and July 10, 1671, a committee was appointed to run the line between Exeter Falls and Lamprey River Falls.

March 30, 1675, several persons received grants of land that were to have been laid out ten years earlier. The one to John Gilman mentions the "highway going to Wadleighs upon a pine plaine to an Indian field," and also "an Indian path that leads to Teaghaquell." The grant to Moses Gilman mentions "Lamprey river path being the old path," and makes allowance for "highways."

April 1, 1678, Moses Gilman was "surveyor of highways for the west syde of the river."

In 1680 we find that Goodman Smart's 300 acres on the south east "runs by the highway between the said land & the marshes."

The sale of a portion of "m^r Hiltons newfield" in 1681, mentions "ye waye side y^t goeth down to m^r Smarts."

Peter Folsom and Richard Hilton were chosen, August 15, 1692, "surveyors of ye hy ways."

Capt. Peter Coffin received, October 10, 1693, a grant of land "joyneing to douer line on the north side and upon ye hy waye to Pascaset mille."

The main way was laid out, December 4, 1707, between Cornet Winthrop Hilton and Dudley Hilton's dwelling houses from Newfield Landing to the extent of the town's lands by Gilman's sawmill.

At a meeting of the Council held at Portsmouth, April 30, 1719, it was voted that lands "be appropriated to the encouragement of the iron works building at Lamprill river for cole, wood, & for settling people thereon, to be imported for that service, & settled in such order as a Committee appointed for that purpose shall direct."

The General Assembly, May 2, 1719, passed a vote "respecting lands on either side of the line between Exeter and Dover, always excepting highways through any lotts granted as abovesaid, & land sufficient to mills or works sett up on Lamprile river."

In 1721 a "mast way" was made leading from Colonel Hilton's "to patuckawaye mills."

A petition of the selectmen of Dover, dated May 4, 1722, mentions a line to run "northerly two miles for the depth of the Land granted to the Iron works."

Edward Hall and others were appointed, May 5, 1722, to survey and make highways from Dover and from Exeter "to Winu-pissokee Pond."

It seems that the people of Nottingham labored under great difficulties and disadvantages for want of a suitable road to a convenient landing place. One had already been laid out at great expense for clearing and bridging, but was longer than necessary, and except at low water in the rivers was impassable for loaded carts. A "pretty good cart way" commonly called "Hall's way" only four or five miles from the landing place at Newmarket "towards Nottingham" had already been made, "which if continued thro' that part of Exeter which is between Nottingham and y^e Parish of New Market would be above three miles nearer, & on every other acc't more convenient," and the town through its committee petitions Governor Belcher and the Legislature for a continuance of this highway through Exeter and Newmarket, September 23, 1731. Interested parties having been duly notified, a public hearing was had upon the petition, and on March 6, 1733, the prayer of the petition was granted, and the town of Exeter required to "lay out the said Highway forthwith, as Commodiously as may be for the Town of Nottingham."

In 1731 the following persons give land for this road: Joseph Hall, Moses Coffin, Robert Barber, Christopher Robinson, Samuel Sinclair, Samuel Stevens, Benjamin Sanborn, Theophilus Hardy, Jonathan Colcord, Stephen Lyford, Richard Mellon, James Marston, Samuel Hilton, Robert Pike, Samuel Mighell, Richard Clark, Isaac Marston, Winthrop Hilton, John Perkins, Richard Sinkler, Fitz W. Sargent, James Gilman, Jonathan Gilman, Thomas Gilman, Walter Neal, Nathaniel Taylor and Nathaniel Pease "being interested in the Land thro' which it is supposed the Highway" will pass, and expressing their desire that the highway be laid out as a public highway. This highway passed through the land of Robert Barber, Jonathan Colcord, Steven Lyford, Robert Pike, Samuel Mighell, Isaac Marston, Winthrop Hilton, John Perkins, James Gilman, Walter Neal and Nathaniel Pease, as it is recorded that they gave land for it.

Hall's Mill Road was laid out by a committee of the General Assembly, 1763-66.

The selectmen of Newmarket laid out, August 18, 1763, a highway two rods wide in Newmarket through the land of several persons to the general satisfaction, but afterwards it was discovered that through inadvertency of the surveyor a mistake was made in several of the courses between the "Gate near Piscassick Bridge and Josiah Hilton's South West Corner" so that instead of the "Returns Directing it in such convenient Places as was intended and agreed on it directs it to such Places as are very Inconvenient and almost Inaccessible to the damage of some and the great Dissatisfaction of others." The selectmen, John Burleigh, Israel Gilman, Jr., and Walter Bryent, and 23 others, petition the governor and "Hon^{rs}" to interfere, appoint, send a committee to investigate and provide a remedy. The petition is dated July 3, 1765. A hearing was ordered, and afterwards, November 28, 1765, the Legislature appointed Col. John Wentworth, Andrew Wiggin and Richard Jenness, a committee to investigate and report. March 20, 1766, this committee viewed the said highway, heard the parties, and reported:

That the Highway above Mentioned ought to be & Remain as follows. Beginning at a Gate about twelve Rods to the North West of Piscasuk Bridge then Running Northerly as the Way was formerly Laid out and as it now goes through the land of Joseph Hall Esq. and through the Land of Edward Colcorde as it now Goes to Joseph Lovering's Land then Beginning by Lovering's Land on the west side of Said way and Running through the Same as followeth North ten degrees West thirty two rods then north fourteen degrees west twenty two rods to Jacob Ames Land then North forty degrees West thirty rods to a Stone Bridge, over a small Brook the way to be two Rods wide and on the North Easterly side of said Line through Lovering's land to the stone bridge then north eight degrees east fifty eight rods to Stephen Lyfords land the way to be on the westerly side of said line then North nineteen degrees East thirty four Rods as the way is now fenced out then North forty two Degrees East twenty four Rods then North forty nine Degrees East thirty five Rods to Nath Ames his Land then North forty five Degrees East Sixteen Rods then North Sixty Seven Degrees East thirty Rods then North twenty two Degrees East twenty two Rods as the way is now fenced out to Jacob Ames Land then through Said Ames his Land North twenty two Degrees East ten Rods then North thirty one Degrees East Sixteen Rods then North fourteen Degrees west twenty Rods on a Strate Line to Josiah Hilton's South Corner Keeping the way as it now goes till it comes to a High way formerly Laid out the way to be on the Westerly side of said Line throw Said Ames' Last mentioned Land.

Never-the-Less since the Said Jacob Ames has by an agreement with the Select men Partly fenced the Road from Said Last mentioned Bridge on the Westerly Side of his orchard up a steep hill if the Said Jacob Ames will within thirty days from the tenth of July next Cause the Said way on the Westerly Side of his orchard to be made Passable in the Judgment of the Selectmen of Said New Market then we think it ought to go on the west side and if not to go through his Land as above said.

And also that there be paid unto the Person whose names here after mentioned for their Lands by the Select men of the above Said New Market.

This report was accepted, allowed and confirmed.

A road was laid out, in 1768, from Lamprey River to Oyster River.

Benjamin Coe, in 1854, was chairman of the Board of County Road Commissioners, and laid out a new road from South Deerfield to Candia.

Turnpikes were never popular in New Hampshire, as the people looked upon them as monopolies. The toll gates set up were in great disfavor. The turnpike continued its exactions at the gates till 1841 when the pressure of public opinion forced the owners to cease their demands and the roads became free.

The town made grants of mill sites with the right to cut timber in specified tracts, the occupants paying annual rents for the rights thus conferred. These rents were set apart for the support of the ministry at Dover. Sawed lumber was floated to Portsmouth in rafts and then transported to the West Indies. The extensive forests became a source of wealth and the various water-falls were rapidly improved.

The early settlers on the Pascataqua were compelled to secure most of their bread from England and Virginia. There was no grain mill nearer than Boston, and even that was a wind-mill.

In May, 1631, Thomas Eyre wrote to Ambrose Gibbons, "I will now put on the sending of you the modell of a saw mill that you may have one going."

In 1632, Stephen Dean, who came to Plymouth in 1621, in the Fortune, built the first corn mill in New England on Copps Hill, Boston. This was a wind mill. On "October 18 Captain Camock and one Mr. Godfrey a merchant came from Piscataquack in Captain Neal his pumace and brought sixteen hogsheads of corne to mill. They went away in November."

In 1634 Capt. John Mason sent eight Danes to Pascataqua to make potash and build mills. The saw mill they erected at the falls of Newichewanock was sold in September, 1635. Mason wrote, May 5, 1634, "Those people I have sent with Mr Jocelyne are to sett up two mills." At this time he sent with the Danes 22 women.

Miller's toll was established by law in 1640.

At a town meeting held in Dover, October 7, 1647, it was ordered "That Mr Ambrose Gibbons, Mr Richard Walderne, Thomas Dayton, Anthony Emr^{ey}, William Pomfrett, are to treat with Elder Nutter & Elder Starbucke about the accommodation of a saw mill at Lamprell Riuer & as these men shall agree it shall be the acte of the towne."

The following agreement was made November 4, 1647, between the inhabitants of Exeter and Edward Gilman, Jr.:

Imprimes, That We doe accept of Edward Gillman the younger to be a tounsman amongst vs and doe give and grant hime liberty to set vp a Sawmill or mills in any River within the liberty of Exeter, and to have the priuclg of the Riuer for the use of the miles and of the pines, for Sauing or masts, or any other timber for sauinge to have the priuclg of it within the liberty of Exeter.

2^d The afores^d Edw^d Gilman do engage himself to come and live as a townsman among you and to sett up a mill by the last of March next Ensueing if he can or at the farthest by the last of August next Ensueing.

3^{ly} the say^d Gillman doe ingage himself to let the tounsmen have what bords they stand in ned of for ther oun vse in the toune at three shillings a hundrd and what towe inche planks they shall ned for Floering at the same prise, and to take contery pay at prise curent if the mill shall saue it.

4^{ly} the sayd Gillman doe engag himself that what masts he make vse of to giue them as mutch as if he saued them into bords, and to allow half a hundered in eueri 2000 to the towne.

5^{ly} It is Agreed that Anthony Stanion shall have the liberty to put in a quarter part for a saw mill, provided he doe make good his proportion or quarter part in every respect of charges as a partner so that the work be not hindered by him, if he doe so forfeit his share to the afores^d Gillman, and to pay w^{ch} damage he shall sustain by it, for the true and sure performance of w^{ch} we do bind our selves in fortie pounds Sterling.

In Witness whereunto we haue sett our hands —

On November 19, 1647, the following record is made:

Wee the Townsmen in aboue mentioned haue accordinge to the order given us by the Towne agreed with Elder Nutter & Elder Starbucke as followeth: That is to say wee haue granted unto them accommodation of the upper or lower ffalls of Lamprill Riuer for the erectinge or settinge up a sawmill & likewise for what Timber They shall make use of for sawinge by the said mill, Oake or Pine, They shall pay for euery Tree six pounds to the Towne, this is to be paid in board or Plancke at price curreant. They haue Liberty to fall their Timber where they shall see most fitt w^{thin} our Bounds.

At a town meeting held in May, 1649, Edward Hilton, James Wall, John and Robert Smart, and Thomas Biggs, had the same liberty granted them to set up a sawmill upon "Pascasoke Rioure which Runs Into Lampell Rioure," on the same terms as was granted Mr. Gilman. It was added that "the bords or planke w^{ch} the Inhabitants of the towne shall have for there one vse Are by the oners of the mill to be brought to the water side att 3s the hundred."

At the same meeting liberty was granted George Barlow, Nicholas Leeson, Francis Swain, Nicholas Swain and John Warren "to set vp A Saw-mill att Lamperell Riuer att the falls A lit-tle Aboue the Wigwams, And to haue there libertey of felling timber and of payments to the towne According to the two gnts Above writtene."

May 8, 1652, Thomas Biggs of Exeter conveys to John Gilman of Exeter his interest in a gristmill for a sawmill at "Pascasuck" river, and also land at the mouth of "Lamprell" river granted to him.

At a town meeting held May 10, 1652, Edward Gilman, Sr., Edward Gilman, Jr., Edward Colcord and Humphrey Wilson were given permission to erect a sawmill at the lower fall "att Lamperell Riuer by the bredge, and timber on the Comons there for there mill, paying 5^{ld} A yeare to the Towne for the priuelage After the mill is built."

Also the same permission was given to Thomas Petet, Nicholas Leeson, Thomas Cornish, John Warren and Francis Swain to build a sawmill "at Lamprell Riuer on the next great fall Aboue the fall that som of them haue Already taken posesion of paying 5^{ld} a yeare for the priuiledg beginning presently after next micklemas."

Other grants on the same river were August 7, 1652:

Giuen and Granted to Mr Valentine Hill, his Heires & Assignes of Dover; the whole accommodations of Lamprill Riuer for the erectinge & settinge up a sawmill or mills wth all the Timber upon the South side of the said Riuer, w^{ch} doth ly within our Line a mile in breadth or thereabouts (Poushasicke Graunt excepted) as also all our Timber upon the North side of the aforesaid Riuer one mile in breadth, & so all our Land in Length; And in Consideration of this grant, Mr. Valentine Hill aforementioned is to pay to the Towne of Douer the summe of twenty pounds pr yeare in Board or Planke at price Currant & this pay toe be paid yearely by the said Valentine Hill.

In 1656 mention is made of the "saw-mills in Piscataqua River" of Capt. Thomas Wiggin.

was granted fifty acres of pine swamp "adjoyning to m^r Hiltons lot, for to make vse of solely for that mill he intends to set vp vpon the falls of Exeter opposite to the new mill, with liberty to set vp the said mill as granted to him, and for which he is to pay five pound annually & is to begin to pay it by next mick-almas halfe of the sune and the other halfe the midsmer following, but vpon this proviso that he is not to prejdice the new mill any way in respect to water, if John Gilman & the rest be willing that he should hav liberty vpon the comon to fel timber, then this grant is to be relinquis^d, but if in case he keeps this grant then he is to make no vse of timber vpon the comons."

On June 3, 1669, a similar grant as that to Valentine Hill, and on similar conditions, was made to Robert Wadleigh, on Lamprey River a place "Commonly called by the name of y^e Ileland falls," "provided it doth not Intrench, upon any former grant either in pt: or the whole." In case there was such intrenchment the town was to abate the rent proportionally.

In April, 1734, David Dunbar, lieutenant-governor of New Hampshire and surveyor of the "King's woods," twice sent his assistant, Charles Gorwood, in a boat up the river to Exeter to secure and remove what he chose to call the King's tribute lying about the Squamscot, especially to visit Gilman's mill at Lamprey River and mark for his majesty's use all such lumber as he found sawn from mast trees.

Also at Piscassic mill, and Wadleigh's mill.¹

The boat arrived at Exeter late in the afternoon. The tavern of Samuel Gilman was guarded by "Indians" which frightened the men who spent the night in the alders and the next morning run for shelter to Portsmouth.²

Chapter XIII.

EARLY CIVIL AFFAIRS.

At the annual town meeting of Exeter, March 26, 1722, a vote was taken giving "the Inhabitants of Lamperel River below Cap. Jeremiah Gilmans house. . . . Leave to build a pound for the use of said town at thair one Cost and charge." This pound appears to be the first public institution in what was afterward the township of Newmarket.

On September 22, 1723, Robert Achmuty preferred a petition in behalf of Richard Hilton praying for a special act to enable Mr. Hilton to bring forward an action before the governor and council against Mrs. Mary Brown. On December 14, both houses voted that the consideration of the petition "be deferred till y^e Session of General Assembly in May next."

On February 13, 1724, King George delivered into the hands of the sheriff of the Province of New Hampshire the following writ:

GREETING.

We command you that you summon Richard Hilton of the town of Exeter within our said Province, Esq.^r Jonathan Hilton, Natha.^l Pease and William Perkins Jun.^r all of Exeter afores.^d Husbandmen if they may be found in your Precinct, to appear before our Justices of our inferiour Court of Common Pleas next to be holden at Portsmouth within and for our said Province of New Hampshire on the first Thursday next following the first Tuesday in March next, then & there in our said Court to answer unto Mary Brown of Portsmouth afores.^d Widow Lately Mary Plaisted of Portsmo^e afores.^d Widow, in a Plea of Trespass & Ejectment for unjustly withholding from the Plaintiff the Possession of one messuage & three hundred acres of Land be it more or less thereunto adjoining with the appurtenances, all lying and being in Exeter afores.^d & bounded on Exeter river on the Southeast on the Land of John Wedgwood and Land in the Possession of Rob.^t Smart on the Southwest the Land of William Moor and Land in the Possession of the s^d Rob^t Smart on the northwest & on the Land of William Perkins, John Perkins & Rob^t Smart on the northeast, for that whereas the s.^d Rich.^d Hilton Esq. on the first day of Jan. anno Domini Seventeen hundred and Sixteen Seventeen being Seized of the Premises Demanded in his demesne as of fee among other Tenaments by his deed of conveyance of the Same date (with whom George Jaffrey Esqr therein Joyned for Confirmation thereof in court to be produced) bargained sold and conveyed the Same to the Plaintiff, in fee and so ought to be in the possession thereof, yet the Defendants have entered into the Premises and tho' often Requested refuse to Deliver the possession thereof to the Plaintiff but Still unjustly with hold the Same from her to the damage of the said Mary Brown (as she Saith) the Sum of two thousand pounds which Shall then and there be made to appear with other due Damages, and have you there this writ with your doings therein. Witness Richard Waldron Esq.^r at Portsmouth this thirteenth day of Feby in the Eleventh year of our Reign annoq Domini 1724.¹

Errors having been detected in the writ by the defendant, on the request of the plaintiff the court ordered an amendment. The case was afterwards given to the jury which rendered a verdict for the defendant with costs. On request of Mrs. Brown an appeal to the Superior Court was granted.

The case was finally decided in favor of the plaintiff as we find under date of May 10, 1728, that "Dame Mary Brown of Berwick . . . in consideration of £1618, 16s., current money of New England paid by Joseph Jacobs of Newbury, Joyner sold a Messuage in ye Parish of Newmarket . . . 284 acres,"—excepting certain small reserves—"which premises is part of the Estate which the said Mary Brown Recov^d of Richard Hilton of Exeter, Esq^r & was put in the possession of by Benjamin Gambling Esq. high Sheriff of ye province of N. Hampshire by virtue of an Execution & writ of Possession."

Under date of November 22, 1734, it seems that Joseph Jacob of Stratham sold certain land and a dwelling house to Jonathan Hoag for £440 saying "it is part of ye Land I ye s^d Jacob Bo:^t of Mad:^m Mary Brown Dec:^d." On February 25, 1738, Jonathan Hoag "Quit claims the above house and land to Joseph Jacob of Newmarket," for £494, 5s., 4d.

It seems from the records that the above settlement of the case so long in litigation did not peacefully end the matter as we find, October 11, 1737, that Ellis Husk, his wife, Mary, "in right of his said wife, and Icabod Plaisted of Salem," Mass.,

¹ The reason of this transaction will perhaps be made clearer when it is remembered that Richard Hilton mortgaged fifty-six acres to George Jaffrey in 1713, 330 acres to Mary Plaisted in 1717, and his whole estate to Edward Hall in 1721. This whole property was later purchased by Philip Fowler, and was the occasion of litigation for several years.

became appellants vs. Richard Hilton, and at an appointed hearing, the latter not being present in person or by attorney, "his default was receorded." The appellants by their counsel, Matthew Livermore, state their "reasons of appeal from the Judgment had & obtained against them by the appellee at his Majestys Superior Court of Judicature held at Portsmouth . . . September, 19, 1737," and pray for "a reversion of the Judgment of Said Superior Court & of recovering their Cost."

In consequence of the defaulting of the case Richard Hilton petitions the General Assembly for the passage of an Act for the reopening of the case before the Court of Appeals which was granted June 25, 1743. How the matter finally terminated is not ascertained.

At the meeting in March, 1727, James Burleigh of Bay Side was elected constable, but subsequently Jacob Smith qualified in his stead. Edward Hall of Newfields was chosen selectman.

Capt. Edward Hall seems to have ranked high in public esteem and his services were in constant demand. The Nottingham proprietors at their meeting held December 10, 1729, voted that he "have power to Gitt a horse way Cutt To Amuskeige—Amoskeag—as Chepe as he Can Gitt it done and as Low as posible he can."

On March 30, 1731, Capt. Edward Hall and Peter Gilman were chosen a committee to join with the Chichester committee "to Run the Head line of Nottingham." And on July 28 of the same year he and Samuel Goodhue were chosen a committee to join with the committees of Epsom and Chichester "to Run the Dividing lines between Ipsum and Nottingham, and between Chichester and Nottingham." Also it was voted that Capt. Thomas Pierce and Nathaniel Rogers be a committee "to Gitt a way from Nottingham to New Market down by Mr. Halls."

At a meeting at Block House, October 12, 1727, Edward Hall and Joseph Hall were "appointed to regulate the streets at Nottingham and clear them and make them fit for transporting lumber." At a meeting held in Hampton, the same committee was chosen "for perfecting out the lots in Nottingham and to compleat the same, and to let the Block House out to be shingled and underpinned at the cheapest rate."

In 1728 Edward Hall was surveyor of highways, and in addition in 1729 was chosen selectman. In 1730 he was also selectman, as also "lot layer" with Joseph Hall and John Gilman, "to lay out the Land and the latter to each proprietor according to Quantity and Quality."

In 1731 he was selectman, and in 1732 "committee to warn meetings." In 1736 Capt. Edward Hall and Capt. Samuel Gilman were representatives for Exeter to the "New Assembly."

On January 1, 1731, "Edward Hilton of the Parish of Newmarket," entered a complaint "In His Maj^{ty}s behalf," against a "negro man" Sambo, formerly a servant of Andrew Glidden, and now of his widow, or Joseph Smith, her son-in-law, who on December 28, 1730, put said Hilton "in Great fear (even of his life) by the threatening Speeches and actual attempts made against him with force & arms, the said Sambo holding an ax in his said hands of y^e value of 12s. Struck at the Complainant a feel blow with the Said ax, and prophanely Swore that he the said Sambo would split out the brains of the Complainant and bury him in the Swamp: and other Enormitys the Said Sambo then & there did," and he prays that "Sambo may be dealt with as to Law and Justice doth appertain."

This resulted in the fining of Sambo ten shillings for profane swearing, and that "for his threatening & Attempts agst Edw^d Hilton He procure 2 Suretis to recognise in y^e Sum of £10 to be of good behaviour til ye next q^r Sessions of y^e peace and pay Costs of Court & Stand committed til Sentence perform'd." Joseph Smith paid fine and costs, and with Joseph Glidden became surety.

The warrant given to the sheriff for the arrest of Sambo required him also "to Summon John M^cmath of Newmarket aforesaid mariner, and Joseph Smart of Dover wthin the Province afore^d husbandman to be present as Witnesses at the Tryal of the said Sambo."

In October, 1739, Capt. Edward Hilton was chosen "to serve in General Assembly" for Newmarket, and February 1, 1740, was committee "to acquaint his Excell^y that the House had made choice of Andrew Wiggin, Esq. for their Speaker." He also appeared before the Council Board with Capt. Thomas Wallingford that the latter "might be sworn as a member of the Assembly."

The House, February 12, 1740,

Voted That there be an Additional act made to the Militia act of the 4th George relating to the delinquents non appearance on Training days, viz. that every [one] liable to Traine & duly warned and not appearing & attending the same shall for each dayes neglect pay ten shillings Instead of five shillings in the abovesaid Act of the 4th of George and that the fine in Millitary Watches for non attendance in Watching or Warding be ten shillings instead of five shillings mentioned in the said act of the 4th of George. And that every Trooper for non appearance at the time and place of Exercise for each dayes neglect shall pay a fine of twenty shillings instead of ten mentioned in the Act of the 4th of George, and that the act continue for three years & no longer & that the fines be gathered and disposed of as in the act of the 4th of George aforesaid and that an act be drawn up accordingly and that Capt. Edward Hall & Capt. Thomas Wallingsford be a Committee of this House to joyne with the Hon^{ble} the Council shall appoint to draw up the above Additional Acts and present them to the House as soon as may be.

This act was duly drawn and enacted February 21, 1740.

The House made Capt. Edward Hall and Ebenezer Stephens its committee "to Joyn Such as the Council shall app^t to survey the Prison & see what repairs are wanting and make their Return as soon as possible."

On February 13, 1740, Capt. Edward Hall was placed by the House on a committee to join with one appointed by the Council "to go on the place and view Kingstown line and make return to the Gen^l Assembly at their next Session." Walter Bryant was appointed surveyor of this line April 15, 1742.

On February 15, 1740, Capt. Edward Hall, with others, entered his "dissent against the answers of the House to his Excell^{ys} speech of Feb. 1."

William Parker having brought in a memorial for an act to be made relating to the admission of town inhabitants, the House after reading and considering,

Voted that Mr. Hunking Wentworth & Capt. Edward Hall be a Committee of this House to joyne with such as the Hon^{ble} the Council shall appoint to draw up an act Relating to admission of Town Inhabitants & appointing Committees &c for viewing old defective Houses and chimneys & for regulating the Poor and putting out such children apprentice as are like to become chargeable to any Town or precinct or whose Parents do not take due care of them.

Joseph Smith of Newmarket, October 6, 1748, for nine pounds of lawful money deeded to Philip Fowler of Newmarket "a certain parsell of Salt Marsh and flats." His wife, Sarah, gave up "all rite & power of thirds."

Joshua Hill of Stratham, February 6, 1753, "for 1224 pounds old tenor money," sold to Philip Fowler, Jr., 34 acres of land in Newmarket, 20 of which he purchased of Joshua Kennison January 16, 1739, seven of Joseph Smart, and seven of Jacob Tilton. His wife, Rachel, gave up her right of dower.

It would seem that Philip Fowler had "unjustly withheld put out and removed" Josiah Hilton from his possession of 56 acres of land and appurtenances, presumably the 56 acres specially mentioned in his will, and that the said Josiah Hilton recovered the same April 19, 1764, by a writ of attachment and costs amounting to £77, 13s., 9d.

Jacob Fowler of Newmarket, November 5, 1753, sold to Philip Fowler for £56, 5s., one half of 50 acres in Nottingham, his wife, Deborah, signing the deed.

Philip Fowler mentioned in his will, dated May 22, 1754, besides his wife, sons, Philip, to whom he bequeathed 108 acres, Jacob, 50 acres, Simonds, 70 acres; daughters, Elizabeth, Susanna, Judith and Mary, to whom he bequeathes "30 pounds old tener each." Judith was then unmarried. His son, Philip, was made executor. The will had a codicil attached, dated July 25, 1764, referring to the fact "56 acres of his land on which his house stands is since the will was written in the Law, & my son Philip has bound himself to Defray one half of the charge for the carrying the case home to Eng."

Thomas Young and Ichabod Whidden were witnesses to the will, and Robert Smart and John Moody, to the codicil. The will was probated August 26, 1767.

Edward Hilton, November 18, 1768, brought action against Philip Fowler, executor, for the same premises on the ground that the covenant was broken when the plaintiff, April 19, 1764, "was Seized in his Demesne as of fee of a Certain Messuage and Lands with the appurtenances in Newmarket . . . Containing by Estimation Fifty-six acres." The writ stated that he "unjustly refuses to keep the same [covenant] To damage of the said Edwrd as he saith the sum of Fifty pounds."

It seems that the court of appeals rendered judgment for Hilton, granting a writ of possession, which, however, was deemed illegal, and Philip Fowler and his brother, Jacob, petitioned the General Assembly for a rehearing, and this was granted June 27, 1777.

Jacob Fowler of Newbury had been "practicing things very inimical to the country" . . . and was sent to Exeter in the care of the committee of safety by Col. John Hurd, August 7, 1776.

To give an idea of the binding out of apprentices in those early days we copy the following indenture:

A record of "Dec^r 3^d 1788," states that

The within named James Cobbeey Junr ran away from said Fowler — & carried away with him a suit of clothes, about 10 yards of woollen fulled homespun cloth — 4 pair of woollen stockens — a pair of buskins — 4 shirts — pair of tow or linnen drawers — 6 yards of linnen & woollen cloth.

The overseers of the poor at Portsmouth, January 3, 1786, bound out in much the same way John Gammon "a minor poor Child" to Philip Fowler for the term of twelve years or till he reached the age of twenty-one, to be taught "the art trade or Calling of a Husbandman."

Rufus Wiggin gave Philip Fowler a written agreement that he would live with him and "perform the service of a hired man for the term of one year from the fifth day of April 1791," for "fifteen pounds twelve shillings lawful money to be paid in neat stock & clothing at the rate of six feet oxen at twelve pounds per yoke—& also a sheep & lamb. The neat stock to be paid May 20th 1792 & the sheep & lamb in November next following the date hereof, as witness our hands April 16th 1791.

Attest Philip Fowler.

RUFUS WIGGIN."

Richard Preson of Newmarket, March 15, 1794, sold to Philip Fowler for £60, 48 rods purchased of Samuel Smart April 30, 1785, and 13 1-2 rods of land with mansion house standing on it, purchased by Samuel Smart, November 16, 1786, Mrs. Preson surrendering her right of dower.

The inspector at Portsmouth, June 5, 1794, certifies that Philip Fowler had paid duty on one chaise — two dollars — to September 30, 1795.

Edward Hilton, April 22, 1808, sold land to Philip Fowler for £30, formerly owned by his brother, Richard Hilton.

By his will, dated May 30, 1810, Philip Fowler, Jr., bequeathed to his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Plummer, 50 acres of land. The will was probated October 14, 1811.

Under date of April 23, 1812, William Plummer of Epping, husband of Sarah, leases the same 50 acres, received by bequest, till March 1, 1813, for £40, to Thomas Drowne, "cordwainer," and Hannah Fowler, widow of Philip. Certain conditions of tillage were made, the taxes to be paid, and the fences to be left in as good repair as when the lease was given.

Thomas Staples, October 15, 1813, agrees to fix John C. Fowler's "one story house in order to be moved from the spot where it now stands."

Hannah Fowler is appointed, December 12, 1814, by Nathaniel Rogers, judge of probate, guardian of Charlotte Fowler, a minor under 14, daughter of Philip Fowler, Jr.

John Cutts Fowler, grandson of Philip, January 29, 1818, for £46, receives from Joseph Pinder and wife, Mary, of Stratham, a quitclaim of the 13 1-2 rods of land of Philip Fowler bought of Richard Preson, with the buildings thereon. This land lay "on the Easterly side of the Road leading from the great Bridge to the main Road leading from Newmarket to Exeter."

Samuel Twombly, September 22, 1838, agrees to dig a well "near the North west corner of the cellar of the old garrison house," for which John C. Fowler is to pay "7 shillings for every foot in depth & 14 shillings for every foot it may be necessary to dig over or more than 45 feet."

Chapter XIV.

THE MINISTRY OF REV. JOHN MOODY, 1730-1778.

More than thirty persons in the north part of Exeter, in the autumn of 1727, petitioned that they might be set off for parochial purposes. The mother parish granted their request October 9, 1727, Provided that the aboue said Parrish Do Settle an orthodox minister and pay the minister them Selues att their one Charge, that then the said new parrish shall be Excused from paying to the ministry of the old parrish.

The Legislature passed the bill of incorporation, December 15, 1727, the year of the earthquake, "Setting the North part of The Town of Exeter to be a parish by the Name off New Market." By act of incorporation Edward Hall, Andrew Glidden and William Perkins, Jr., were appointed "selectmen" of the new parish till other parish officers should be chosen. In 1727 there were 78 ratable polls in Newmarket.¹

The house of worship was already well under way. It stood in the burying ground at the old centre, one hundred rods south of the present railroad junction. Rev. Nicholas Gilman was invited to the ministry in February, 1728, but declined.

Exeter generously apportioned her officers to the two parishes, and, March 25, 1728, remitted the Newmarket school tax. Not only church but school affairs were now entrusted to the new parish. Other municipal affairs were still transacted at Exeter.

A call was extended August 12, 1729, to Rev. John Moody, who had been preaching at Biddeford, Me., since early in that year, and in April received an invitation to settle, but declined "by reason he was too young and wanted further acquaintance of

About 62 petitioners of Portsmouth, representing 101 ratable heads and 450 souls or thereabouts, press their claim before Governor Belcher March 10, 1732, for an act of incorporation as a parish, by citing the fact that Newmarket had been thus incorporated as a parish with only 78 ratable polls.

learning at some college.” He accepted the invitation to Newmarket, now Newfields. Joseph Hall, Jeremy Foulson, Robert Pike, William Perkins and Joseph Smith were chosen a parish committee to make full settlement with him, June 29, 1730, and he was ordained, and perhaps the church organized, November 25, 1730, becoming one of the sixteen ministers then in New Hampshire. Some proposition was made to him August 7, 1730, but the agreement of February 9, 1730, was considered binding by both parties, and he continued minister there till his death, October 15, 1778. He married, April 5, 1730, Ann, daughter of Dea. Edward and Mary (Wilson) Hall, of Newfields, a descendant of Govs. John Winthrop and Thomas Dudley.

The agreement with Mr. Moody was as follows:

We, under written chosen a Committee for the Parish of Newmarket in Exeter in the Province of New Hampshire to treat and agree with Mr John Moody to settle with us in the work of the ministry upon his Excepting the invitation given him by the Parish, we as a committee in the name of the Parish Do promise to fulfill ye following Particulars to him.

we Promise in the first, we promise to give him one hundred pounds in money or Pasable Bills of Credit pr year for the three first years of his abode with or amongst us, and the fourth year to give him one hundred and five Pounds, the fifth year one hundred and ten pounds, the sixth year one hundred and fifteen, the seventh year one hundred and twenty, and the Eaighth year one hundred and thirty Pounds, and still to make further additions as his family shall stand in neaid,—and to pay the Salery Quarterly.

secondly we Promise to Bring to his house what firewood he shal stand in nead of for his family.

thirdly we Promise to give him twenty acres of Land we Purchased of Joseph Jacobs for his own, and one hundred acres or upwards or as much as any one of our Parish has for their Right in the Commons in the township of Exeter for his own.

fourthly we Promise to give him one hundred pounds in money or Bills of Credit towards Bulding his house and to pay it in three years, one third part per year; we also promise to pay and make his yearly salary good as money now Pases in this Province

Mr. Moody added by purchase other lands to this gift by the parish, and the estate has since been in the possession of his grandson, John Moody Smith, Esq., Gen. James Hill, Capt. Charles Treadwell and Mr. Thomas J. Chesley, and is now owned by the Boston & Maine Railroad.

The salary of Mr. Moody, for the time and circumstances of his people, was far more liberal than any of his successors in the ministry have enjoyed.

A severe check was given to the growth of the parish in 1735, by the prevalence of a malignant throat distemper. This malady, previously unknown in medical schools, appeared first at Kingston in May, 1735, and spread rapidly through the country. Its virulence baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians and proved very fatal, especially among children. In little more than a year, a thousand persons, chiefly children, died in New Hampshire. Twenty families in Hampton Falls buried all their children. In Newmarket, during the fourteen months preceding July 26, 1736, there died of persons over thirty years of age, one; between ten and twenty, one; under ten, twenty — total twenty-two. In Exeter 127 died.¹

The Newmarket parsonage became celebrated for culture and refinement, and dispensed its generous hospitality to all ministerial travelers. Rev. Timothy Walker of Concord, a college companion, in his horseback journeys to and from Portsmouth, sometimes lodged there. Mrs. Moody died July 14, 1771, aged 62.

During the period of the Revolution the civil affairs of the community were perplexing, and the religious affairs disheartening. The support of churches and schools became very precarious. An astonishing depreciation of the currency fell like an avalanche upon the ministry and swept away their salaries. Mr. Moody and Rev. Nathaniel Ewer, who is generally supposed to have been his colleague, joined 164 of their people in signing the celebrated Association Test, 38 refusing to sign. The prayers and discourses of the clergy of that day breathed the spirit of fervid patriotism. As the piety and integrity of the clergy had secured the confidence of the people, they had great success in advancing the patriot cause. To their exertions under the great arbiter of nations has justly been ascribed no inconsiderable share of the victory that crowned the American arms.

We do not know how much Mr. Moody did in the clerkly writing of wills, deeds and other legal documents, but he probably wrote the codicil to the will of Philip Fowler, Sr., to which he was witness, July 25, 1764.

Tradition says Rev. Mr. Moody had a colored slave by the name of Scipio. The Moody-Hill-Treadwell-Chesley mansion had a second or lower cellar beneath the first and entered by a trap door. Here the parson used to keep his cider and West India goods. The first cellar was entered by a bulk head. Once upon a time men were getting a hogshead of cider through the bulkhead and down the trap door into the lower cellar. While the men were outside holding back, Scipio was inside and beneath, when by some mishap he was crushed and killed by the rolling hogshead.

Rev. John Moody well sustained the character of a "learned, orthodox minister." His scholarly and religious qualities gave him influence and reputation. He was a patron of sound learning, and evinced a marked interest in general and higher education. As the original design of the New England college was to fit persons for the work of the Christian ministry, the New Hampshire Ministerial Convention was organized July 28, 1747, at Exeter for the establishing of a collegiate institution in New Hampshire. Mr. Moody took an active part in promoting the object. At an annual meeting of this convention, September 26, 1758, after disposing of sundry local religious matters, taking into consideration the great advantages which may arise both to the church and state from erecting an academy or college in the province, the convention unanimously voted to petition Gov. Benning Wentworth to grant a charter for said purpose. Rev. Messrs. Joseph Adams, James Pike, John Moody, Ward Cotton, Nathaniel Gookin, Woodbridge Odlin, Samuel Langdon and Samuel Haven were chosen to wait upon the governor, and further petition the General Court "for such assistance as they shall think necessary."

At the next annual meeting held at Newington, September 25, 1759, this committee made a verbal report that "notwithstanding some unwillingness to grant a Charter, agreeable to the Convention, yet there remains some hope that after mature consideration and advice of Council, his Excellency will grant such a Charter as will be agreeable to us and our people." It was therefore voted that "Messrs. Joseph Adams, James Pike, Ward Cotton, Samuel Parsons, Nathaniel Gookin, Samuel Langdon and Samuel Haven, or a major part of them, be and they hereby are a committee of this Convention to do every thing which to them shall appear necessary in the aforesaid affair in behalf of the Convention, and moreover consult upon any other measures for promoting the education of youth and advancing good literature in the Province, and make report to the next Convention."

As Gov. Benning Wentworth was an ardent Episcopalian he took care in the grant of townships to reserve a glebe for the Church of England, and rights to the society for propagating the Gospel, of which he was a member. This explains his "unwillingness to grant a charter agreeable to the Convention." He declined to charter the college unless it were put under the direction of the Bishop of London. This would necessitate the use of the liturgy, which was repugnant to the sentiment of the people. So the project of establishing a college during his administration failed.

Eleazer Wheelock, pastor of the second parish, Lebanon, Conn., 1735-70, early received Indian youths of superior abilities into his family for instruction, among them the noted Samson Occum of the Mohegan tribe, and in 1748 decided to open a school to educate Indian preachers and received two Delaware Indians as pupils. Joshua Moor, a farmer of Mansfield, Conn., donated a house and two acres of land adjoining Mr. Wheelock's house, and the institution was called Moor's Indian Charity School. Wheelock now associated with himself several gentlemen as trustees, and appealed to the public for funds. His petition to the New Hampshire Legislature was acted upon June 18, 1762, when it was "Resolved & voted That the sum of Fifty pounds Sterl^s be paid yearly by the Province for the term of five years unto the Rev. Eleazer Wheelock or his order. When the plan of this school, commended by 25 Connecticut pastors, was brought before the New Hampshire Convention, September 28, 1762, it received their efficient coöperation. The convention at its meeting held with Rev. Mr. Langdon in Portsmouth, after considering the matter, chose a committee of four, consisting of Rev. John Moody, chairman, and Messrs. Langdon, Haven and Foster, to consider and make report, which was as follows:

We A Convention of Congregational Ministers assembled at Portsmo Sept 28, 1762, having read & considered the foregoing Attestation from a Number of Rev^d Gentlemen in connecticut, taking into consideration the Many obligations the Supreme Ruler has laid upon Christian Chhs. to promote his cause and enlarge the Borders of his Kingdom in this Land, the signal victories He has granted to our Troops, the entire Reduction of all Canada, so that a way is now open for the spreading the Light and purity of ye Gospel among distant Savage Tribes, & a large Field white unto the Harvest is presented before us:—Considering the infinite worth of ye souls of Men, ye Importance of ye Gospel to their present and everlasting Happiness, and the hopeful Prospect that the Aboriginal Natives will now listen to Christian Instruction; considering also the great expence which must unavoidably attend the Prosecution of this great Design, Think ourselves obliged to recommend, in the warmest manner, this subject to the serious consideration of our Christian Brethren & the Public.

It is with gratitude to ye Great Head of ye chh. who has the Hearts of all in his Hands, that we observe some hopeful steps taken by the societies founded for the Gospelizing the Indians, and that the Hearts of such Numbers both at Home & in this Land, have been disposed to bestow their Liberalities to enable such useful societies to effect the great Ends for which they are founded.

But as we wish to see every favorable method taken to forward so benevolent & Christian a Design, We therefore rejoice to find that the Rev^d Mr Wheelock has such a Number of Indian youths under his care & Tuition, and in that abundant testimony which his Brethren in the Ministry have born to his Abilities for & zeal & Faithfulness in his important undertaking.

And we do hereby declare our hearty Approbation of it as far as we are capable of judging of an affair carried on at such a Distance; and think it our Duty to encourage and exhort all christians to lend a helping Hand toward so great & generous an undertaking.

We would not indeed absolutely dictate this, or any other particular scheme for civilizing & spreading the Gospel among the Indians; but we are perswaded that God demands of the Inhabitants of these Colonies some Returns of gratitude in this way for the remarkable success of our arms against Canada, and that Peace & Security which he has now given us:

We must therefore rely on the wisdom & prudence of the Civil Authority to think it as a matter in which our Political Interests as well as the Glory of God are deeply concerned; and refer it to our Chhs. and all private Christians as peculiarly called to promote the Redeemer's Kingdom everywhere, to determine what will be the most effectual Methods of forwarding so noble & pious a Design, and to contribute to the utmost of their power either towards the Execution of the Plan which the Rev^d Mr. Wheelock is pursuing, or that of the Corporation erected in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, or any other which may be tho't of here or elsewhere for the same laudable Purpose.

JOHN ROGERS, Moderator.¹

This report, evidently the work of Mr. Moody, warmly commending Mr. Wheelock's plan to the Christian brethren, the public and the civil authorities, resulted soon after in the removal of Wheelock's school to Hanover, and by his persevering exertion and that of his friends, received from Gov. John Wentworth, December 13, 1769, its charter as Dartmouth College.

Mr. Moody was a moderator of a council held at Keenborough (Brentwood), December 2, 1747, for the ordination of Nathaniel Trask, the first minister of the town, and gave the "charge" to the pastor. He also represented the Newmarket church in a joint ecclesiastical council of the parishes of Keenborough and

"The Gulley" in Brentwood, February 22, 1751, O. S., respecting the united pastorate of Rev. Mr. Trask over the two societies.

By the year 1758 paper currency was greatly depreciated, ten pounds equalling only one in silver. In 1761 a committee consisting of Walter Bryent, John Burleigh, Hubartus Neal, Caleb Clark and Joseph Young were chosen to settle with Mr. Moody "as to his Sallery" and agreed to pay 1500 pounds old tenor¹ for that year and "the two years Last past" in full, taking a receipt for the same. In 1762 Mr. Moody gave receipt in full to the selectmen for 225 pounds new tenor, March 25, 1761; for the same amount March 25, 1762. In 1763, 1764 and 1765 he gave one receipt each; 1766, two; 1767, four; 1768, twelve; 1769, fifteen; 1770, twelve; 1771, seven; 1772, fourteen.

On July 3, 1738, John Moody, clerk, paid Samuel Rollins 32 pounds in bills of credit "for one Certain peel of Salt Marsh," and August 3, 1738, "Edward Hall, Gent^l 180 pounds passable Bills of Cred^t for one messuage of eleven acres by y^e highway y^t goeth to Exeter."

He bought, June 29, 1742, of John Downing one messuage of five acres, formerly belonging to Jonathan Hilton, paying him 100 pounds "in passable Bills of Cred^t." Also April 30, 1746, of Robert Smart and his wife, Ann, "30 acres with the Large Dwelling house joining s^d Moody's land," paying £178, 10s., "lawful money," and of the same, April 13, 1747, an acre and a half and nine rods joining his land for £11, 10s.

Mr. Moody sold, April 22, 1747, to Hubartus Neal ten acres and a large dwelling house for £87, 10s.

He paid, April 9, 1754, 960 pounds, old tenor, currency to heirs of Daniel Barber for 20 acres of land which Robert Barber bought of Richard Hilton, April 17, 1705.

On April 22, 1755, "John Moody Clerk and Lt. John Burley paid James Pike Clerk and Sarah his wife 3614 Pounds Old Tenor, for all their Right to one half of Gilman's Neck."

¹The Province of Massachusetts, on which New Hampshire depended for its currency, between 1690 and 1741, having issued nine different emissions of bills of credit, or "fiat money," the provisional government in 1741 took measures to redeem them all, and decreed that they should be valued at only one fourth of their original face value, and they were styled old tenor. In 1742 the government made another issue of bills of credit, which were styled new tenor. Hence it was necessary in making a contract, or selling property, to state whether the debt should be paid in old or new tenor money, one pound of the latter being worth four of the former.

Mr. Moody, May 12, 1760, sold Joshua Wiggin for 2000 pounds, old tenor, 11 acres and 59 rods of land on the "highway which goes to Exeter," and John Wiggin, March 12, 1767, seven pounds "of lawful money for one acre of salt marsh and thatch ground."

Mr. Moody and Lieut. John Burley, April 20, 1768, bought of Paul and John Wentworth for £180, 14s., "all their right in one half of Gilman's Neck," containing 192 acres and 66 poles.

Mr. Moody paid Isaac Marston, September 7, 1769, 15 pounds for three acres of salt marsh, and March 4, 1771, 109 pounds to Joseph Merrill for 36 acres on the road from the "Newfield Landing Place (so called) to Nottingham," also, June 23, 1772, Joseph Merrill, £127, 10s., for 51 acres "on road from Newfields Landing to Pascassick River."

On June 26, 30, and December 13, 1772, Mr. Moody bought of the heirs of Edward Hall the real estate of said Edward Hall, and sold Moses Burley, July 21, 1778, for 30 dollars, one acre of marsh. The deed was witnessed by his second wife, Elizabeth Moody.

By the year 1777 Rev. John Moody had become an enfeebled old man. Difficulties in raising his salary had existed for a score of years. Most of his church and congregation of a former generation had died, and many of those who remained had withdrawn from communion, and for the last five years sought a Presbyterian connection under Rev. Nathaniel Ewer at the Plains. Partial attempts on the part of Mr. Moody and of the parish to call a council for advice had failed. A committee of 18 persons were appointed April 28, 1777, to represent to Mr. Moody the disaffection of the people and to request his resignation of the pastoral relation. This committee organized by choosing Col. Thomas Tash, chairman, and Wentworth Cheswell, clerk. They also appointed a sub-committee to wait upon Mr. Moody "and represent unto him the universal Dissatisfaction and great uneasiness of the People of the Town under his Ministry; and in behalf of the Town to desire him to desist from pretending to officiate in said Office here any longer."

In case of his refusal they were "authorized & directed to apply to Mr Moody or any Members that may remain of his Church and with him or them join in Calling a Council to advise whether the usefulness of his Ministry in this Town is not apparently over." And in case of the refusal of either or both "to proceed to call a Council ex parte and take their Advice." And if any new matter should arise "to report from time to time as they may think expedient for further Instructions."

They were also authorized "to call another Meeting of the Inhabitants of this Town to report their Proceedings when they were ready."

At a meeting of this committee it was decided to ask Mr. Moody "for a List of Male Members remaining in his Church that the Committee may Know who to apply to."

Accordingly, Mr. Moody declining to join in calling a mutual council, the committee in connection with the "Christian congregation of Newmarket" proceeded to call an ex parte council, May 5, 1777, to hear the grievances of the people and advise thereon. The churches invited were the following: South of Portsmouth, Greenland, North Hampton, Hampton, Stratham, Exeter and Epping. The council convened May 29, and held sessions May 30 and June 11-13, 1777. On May 30 Mr. Moody decided to refer all matters in dispute to this council, making it mutual. On June 11 a mutual agreement of articles of reference was signed by the two parties, as follows:

The Rev. John Moody on the one Part, and the Committee of the Town of Newmarket on his affair of the Other Part, Hereby agree that

Whereas Mr. Moody does now consent and agree to relinquish his ministry here,

The Parties in Consequence of such resignation, do hereby agree to Submit to the Present Council now setting Here vizt. the Pastors & Delegates from the South Church in Portsmo & the Churches in Greenland, North Hampton & Epping, to determine the Sum due either Party to discharge all Contracts,—both Parties to acquiesce in their Judgment, & his Ministry & all Disputes of an Ecclesiastical kind to cease, be the Sum they judge due what it will

By order of the Committee

JOHN MOODY.

The letter of the committee to the council was as follows:

To the Revd. and venerable Council of Pastors and Delegates from the south Church of Christ in Portsmo. and the Churches in Greenland, Northampton, and Epping, convened at the call of the Town and

Christian Congregation in Newmarket, to hear the Grievances of the People of Newmarket aforesaid, who earnestly complain and say, That

Whereas a former Generation, Inhabitants of this Town, did on or about A. D. 1729, make Choice of the Revd. John Moody to be their minister, and in Consideration of their own Edification and Comfort, and we hope with a good view of the rising Generation, and for the Advancement of the Redeemer's Kingdom, did by their Committe call and invite him to the work of the Ministry among them; and so they the Inhabitants afores^d: voluntarily became the People of his Charge, and he was ordained to the Pastoral Office over the same Inhabitants as comprehending all Visible Professors of the Christian Faith here, as well as over a Certain Number of the same Inhabitants as a Particular Corporation of Covenanting Believers entrusted by our Lord with the Keys of the Kingdom according to the Discapline of the Congregational Sect of the Protestant reformed Churches,— In which Sosiety we Charitably suppose he and they continued in such Profession of Faith & Holiness so long as such their Connection was consonant to good Conscience and Profitable, agreeable & convenient to them.—

But in the Course of more than forty years, Providence having removed the greatest Part of the said Church and Congregation by Death, and now almost if not all the Survivers, conceiving themselves to be no ways profited by his Ministry and being Disaffected to the same, have withdrawn from Communion with him in Word and Ordinances, and many of them have joined themselves to other Sosieties of Covenanting Believers who also profess Submission to the same Laws of Christs Kingdom, tho. practicing the Dissapline of his faithful Household according to their Different views of the System of Church Government:

By Reason of all which, We find great Difficulties attends any steps we can take to settle ourselves in such Gospel State & under such other Gospel Minister as we think would be for our own Edification, Mutual Comfort, Peace & Prosperity.

Yet Mr. Moody wholly disregards the aforesaid Circumstances, as well as all mild & Peaceable Measures heretofore taken to remove such abuse of Christian Liberty.

Wherefore the present agrieved Complainers, Inhabitants of Newmarket aforesaid, now Pray the Advice of this reverend and Venerable Council, whether the Continuance of Mr. Moody's ministry here is in any Degree likely to promote the Interest of Christs Kingdom, or the Good of the Town.

Newmarket, 29th May 1777.

By order of the Town's Committee,

THO. TASH, Chairman.

After the council was made mutual, the committee wanted further instructions, and asked the council to adjourn, pending their reception, and their request was granted.

At a legal meeting held June 9, 1777, it was Voted that the Committee may Proceed before the Council on Salary or any other Affairs as they think best, only takeing Care to use their utmost Endeavour, either to have Judgment on the Present Complaint before the Council before any further Submission, or at least to have it therein Speceally provided, that there be from this time a final Period to Mr. Moody's Ministry here, That being the Principal Object that the Town now Invariably has in view; inasmuch as the Whole Tenor of his Life and Conversation has now become disagreeable to the Town, and they Consider him as having totally divested himself of every becoming Quality proper to his Order and altogether alienated the Affections of the People from him, so that any further Concern Spiritual or Temporal between him as a Minister & the Town will only tend to irritate that Spirit of Resentment Which we think is but too justly raised by his Treatment of the People in this Case, and thereby promote the unhappy Divisions & Retard any future Settlement in Church & Congregation here.

Receiving these fresh instructions, when the council reassembled June 11, the committee were ready to proceed. Mr. Moody tendered his resignation, and the parish referred all matters in dispute to the council. After spending three days in consideration of the matters presented a result was reached June 13, 1777, which was accepted by both parties as mutually satisfactory. The final result of the council was as follows:

We, ye Elders & Delegates of ye following Chhs.—the South Chh in Portsmouth, the Church in Greenland, the Church in Epping & the Church in North Hampton, met at Newmarket, May 29, 1777, at ye Desire of sd Town by their Letters missive to consider whether ye Revd. Mr. Moody's usefulness as a minister is not at an end &c. After a proposal made by him to ye Town's Comtee to Concur in mutual Council & submit all ye matters in Dispute to us, & yr. Compliance so far as they suppos'd yr power extended & Desire to have an opportunity to consult ye Town in order to a full Compliance, adjourn'd Wednesy, June 11th.

When, being met accordingly & formed into a mutual Council, after solemn prayer for Divine Direction, ye. Parties concerned, upon Confering together, agreed to Certain preliminary articles which were to be ye rule of our proceeding viz,

That Mr. Moody will voluntarily relinquish his ministry; in Consideration of which ye Parties mutually agree to refer it to us to Judge & Determine what is Due from either Party to Discharge all Contracts between ym, which agreement we understand to include ye matter of compensation for resigning up his Civil Contract,—all ecclesiastical disputes to be excluded, and the judgment of this Council to be final & decisive, which is as followeth viz.

It is found that Mr. Moody's Salary at a medium from the original

Upon compliance of the Town with this our judgment, either by immediate payment or giving Mr. Moody such security as will be satisfactory to him, his civil contract with them is to be considered as annulled & his ministerial relation to them dissolved, agreeable to the preliminary articles in which Mr. Moody has agreed voluntarily to resign his ministry in consideration of his advanced age & often Infirmities which render him in a great measure unable to perform the public duties of his office, and the local circumstances of the Town which, in their present state require them to be divided into Two Societies, and from a regard to the general advancement of religion in it.

It would afford us singular pleasure to find that our result & judgment is fully satisfactory to the parties concerned, yet we can hardly expect this considering the wide difference of their sentiments about the nature & meaning of the Contract. However we have this for our rejoicing, the testimony of our Consc^{es} that we have, upon the evidence offered us, endeavored to give such a judgment in the case as appears to us, all things considered, agreeable to truth & righteousness; and we must presume that both parties will do us the justice to believe that we have not acted from prejudice or partiality.

We heartily lament the unhappy occasion of this Council, the great misunderstanding that has so long subsisted between Pastor & People, which seems to have taken its rise principally from their different apprehensions of the spirit and meaning of the Contract, and to have been the main cause of the alienation of their affections from him which is become so general & fixed that the breach appears irreparable.

Notwithstanding which, as they have mutually agreed to have the relation that has so long subsisted between them as minister & people dissolved, we hope they will lay aside all animosities & evil speaking & for the future walk together in love & friendship as becometh men & Christians, & carefully study the things that make for peace & things wherewith one may edify another.

We heartily sympathize with the Rev^d. Mr. Moody under his bodily infirmities & all his trials. We rejoice to find that even by y^e. preliminary articles nothing was to be alleged in charge against his Doctrine, or moral Character. We recommend him to the grace of God & to the cordial affections of fellow Christians.

At the same time that we desire to bear a solemn sense of it on our minds, we would take liberty to remind the parties that both ministers & pple must e'er long appear at the judgment seat of Christ to give an acct. to him how they stand in to one another, & may the consideration of this awakening truth excite in you proper reflections on their past Conduct towards each other.

We would intreat the beloved people of this Congregation who are now as sheep without a Shepherd that they will guard against a careless indifference to the things of religion & will take all seasonable care & prudent measures to have the ministry of the gospel resettled among them, from a regard to their own spiritual edification & the advancement of the Redeemer's Kingdom, of which we can entertain no reasonable doubt as this was the grand argument urged by them for having the relation of their late minister dissolved.

And now, Brethren, we commend you to God & to the word of his grace which is able to build you up and to give you an inheritance among all them that are sanctified. We heartily wish all the blessings of the upper & the nether springs to flow upon you from the eternal fountain of all felicity. Amen.

SAM^l. HAVEN, Moderator.

Voted that the Moderator sign the foregoing result in the name & behalf of the Council.

After the Result of Council was read to the Comtee. & Mr. Moody, the Comtee withdrew & after a short conference return'd & expressed their hearty thanks to us for our Care & friendship, & acquiesced in the determination of the Council.

Mr. Moody then declared his acquiescence in the result of the Council. The Council concluded with prayer & then dissolved.

DAVID MACCLURE, Scribe.

Newmarket, June 13th. 1777.

Rev. John Moody was born in Byfield parish, Newbury, Mass., January 10, 1705, and died October 15, 1778; graduated at Harvard College, 1726, and afterwards studied theology. His only settlement in the ministry covered a period within two years of half a century. To his integrity, intelligence and piety Newmarket owes much of her social, civil, educational and religious character. Rev. John Moody, decked in his canonicals, his robe and bands, his tri-cornered hat in hand, was an object of veneration for man and boy, maid and matron. None looked upon him lightly, but all felt some personal relation to him. Scarcely an inhabitant in the parish but had been baptized or married by him. During his pastorate of three decades, 1731-60, records show that there were 754 baptisms and 416 deaths. His will, date April 16, 1774, and probated October 28, 1778, names his wife, Elizabeth, daughter, Mary Smith, and other relatives. His inventory was appraised at £7015, 11s., 11 1-2d.

Rev. John Moody was so prominent in the early history of the town it is eminently fitting that something should be said of his ancestry. The family originally lived in Wales, whence William, his great, great grandfather, emigrated to America in the ship Mary and John of London, having taken the oath of allegiance so to do March 24, 1634. He settled first in Ipswich, Mass., receiving four acres of meadow and marsh land, January 5, 1635. He was made freeman May 6, 1635, and removed to Newbury, Mass., with the first settlers. Here on the river Parker he became the settlers' blacksmith, and was the first person in New England who shod oxen to enable them to walk on ice. His wife's name was Sarah, by whom he had three children: Samuel, Joshua and Caleb. He probably was a proprietor of Salisbury in 1650, and died October 25, 1673.

William and his sons were of considerable note in civil and ecclesiastical affairs. Their names often occur on various committees of town and church. That they were generous patrons of letters appears from the fact that so large a number of their descendants entered the learned professions, including a long line of distinguished ministers.

Dea. Samuel Moody was probably born previous to his parents' emigration. He married, November 9, 1657, Mary, daughter of Capt. John Cutting; was made freeman in 1666, and died April 4, 1675. Their children were: Mary, born November 16, 1658; William, born July 22, 1661; Dea. William, born June 20, 1663, who married Mehitabel, daughter of Henry and Jane (Dummer) Sewall, and died about 1730; Mary, born February 18, 1665, who married June 26, 1683, Henry Somerby, born November 13, 1662, son of Abiel and Rebecca (Knight), and grandson of Anthony Somerby of Newbury, 1639; Lydia, born August 5, 1667; Hannah, born January 4, 1670; Samuel, born December, 1671; Cutting, born April 9, 1674; John, who was among 249 persons to whom Exeter assigned common lands in 1625, and received 40 acres, Exeter also assigning to his heirs, August 9, 1738, ten acres of common land, married Hannah, mother of Rev. John Moody; Sarah.

Rev. Joshua Moody, another son of William, was born in Wales in 1632; graduated at Harvard College, 1653; commenced preaching at Portsmouth, 1658; was elected to the pastorate, 1660, but not ordained till July 21, 1671; was pastor of the First Church, Boston, May 23, 1683-92; elected president of Harvard College, July 2, 1684, but declined; joined an association of ministers in Boston and vicinity, October 13, 1690; opposed the witchcraft delusion in 1692; at Portsmouth condemned and imprisoned for non-conformity, 1693; and died on a visit to Boston, July 4, 1697. Some of his children were: Martha, who married about 1680, Jonathan Russell; Sarah, who married May 5, 1681, Rev. John Pike of Dover, 1681-1710, and died March 2, 1686; Samuel, born about 1669, who graduated at Harvard College, 1689, preached at Gosport, and died April 5, 1729.

Caleb Moody, youngest son of William, was born in 1637; married (1), August 25, 1659, Sarah Pierce, who died August 25, 1665, and (2), November 9, 1665, Judith, daughter of Capt.

Thomas Bradbury, and had a large family; was representative to the General Court from Newbury, 1677-78; imprisoned five weeks under the administration of Andros, 1688. He was the father of Rev. Samuel Moody, who was born January 4, 1675; graduated at Harvard, 1697; commenced preaching at York, Me., May 16, 1698, and was ordained December 20, 1700, and died November 13, 1747. "Faithful Moody" as he was called, of Agamenticus, was an able, eccentric man, the open friend of Rev. George Whitefield, chaplain in the expedition against Louisburg in 1745, and wielding his axe, saying the sword of the Lord and Gideon, he hewed down the images in the church and preached the first Protestant sermon on the island. He married Hannah, daughter of John Sewall, by whom he had three children: Rev. Joseph, born in 1700; graduate, Harvard, 1718; called "Handkerchief Moody" of Scotland parish, York; and father of Samuel Moody, the celebrated preceptor of Dummer Academy, who died at Exeter, December 14, 1795, aged 70; Mary, who married Rev. Joseph Emerson of Malden, Mass.; and Lucy, who died in infancy.

Chapter XV.

CIVIL, LEGISLATIVE AND MILITARY, 1727-1787.

The original territorial grant of Exeter of nearly or quite 81 square miles remained intact till 1727. As the population increased and the different parts of the town became more thickly settled, the consequent greater ability to sustain religious privileges, which were deemed so essential by the early settlers, "it being as unnatural for a right New England man to live without an able ministry as for a smith to work his iron without a fire," it is not to be thought strange that for their greater convenience they should desire to break up into a sufficient number of parishes. The parish just north of Exeter was Oyster River, now Durham, where Rev. Hugh Adams became pastor March 26, 1718. His spiritual oversight extended to the outlying district between the two parishes and he was often called upon by the people of the north part of Exeter to solemnize marriages, baptize children and officiate at funerals. The area of the town was too great for the regular minister of the town to cover it to meet all calls. So the time came for the separate parish action of Newmarket. After the death of Col. Winthrop Hilton in 1710, Capt. Edward Hall, grandson of Ralph Hall of the Exeter Combination in 1639, became the principal man of affairs in this part of Exeter. He headed a petition signed by more than thirty persons of the town, "for the Setting the North part of The Town of Exeter to be a parish by the Name of New Market."¹ The petition was granted by the Legislature, and the parish was incorporated December 15, 1727, and the town August 20, 1737. The territory thus set off included what is now Newmarket and Newfields. The latter was not incorporated as a separate town till June 27, 1849. It should be remembered that the formation of a new parish did not originate in any disaffection, but grew out of the remoteness from the place of public worship.

¹ A. L. Mellows, Esq., has suggested that the name Newmarket may have been derived from the fact that a new market was opened for the sale of fish.

Though the new parish was at liberty to choose its own officers to manage its affairs, it was not fully released from paying taxes for municipal purposes to Exeter till more than five years later. The reason for this is not apparent. In August, 1737, the Legislature on petition granted to the parish enlarged powers. Their nature was not specified.

The disorderly character of "the majority of the inhabitants," vexing doubtless his righteous soul, led Rev. Hugh Adams, pastor of Oyster River, to send the following petition to Gov. Jonathan Belcher and the lieutenant governor, asking for the appointment of Commissioners of the Peace:

Mat. 2:7, Luke 10: 16.

Honorable Sir

This is to request the favour of his Excellency and your Honour That my nomination of two persons for commissioners of the peace may be granted, Namely, for Mr. Joseph Drew in the town of Durham and for Captain Edward Hall in the parish of New Market of Exeter, Each of which persons, in many years observation I judge in my conscience, for said office of each people, is the best qualified according to those sacred characters in Exod XVIII: 21 Acts VI:3, Being each of them able in estate and understanding in the law, in writing a good hand, Fearing God above the most of his neighbors, A man of truth, hating covetousness, of an honest report, competently full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom; having the best rule of government over his own spirit, appetites and passions, humble, meek, modest, courteous, and resolute in his duty, and willing therein to be admonished; And likewise exemplary in Church communion and attendance in the other ordinances of the Gospel of Christ, the Prince of the Kings of the earth as in Rev. 1:5—The said town and parish being (too long time) the majority of the inhabitants of each, sadly grown exceedingly vicious, disorderly and unruly, especially on each publick day and night following—For want of such an overseer in said authority, to see the good laws of this Province for regulation of disorders duly prosecuted: Which might be (with a Divine Blessing on the consciencious endeavors of such a ruler among them) much for the reformation of each (otherwise lawless) people. Col. D—— in our Town being now doting, superannuated, selfish, covetous and partial, utterly unqualified for such an office any longer; being grown so old and foolish that he will be no more admonished, As contemptibly characterized in Eccle. IV:13. Which (that Name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in them, as in II Thess. 1: 12, And the peoples welfare may be promoted) is the earnest petition of a sincere minister of Christ.

Hugh Adams.

Mr. Adams surely must be given credit for his unsparing plainness in the bestowal of praise and blame, and it is presumed that his endeavors were successful in the interest of peace and quietness in the community.

We give here a few extracts from the transactions of the Council Board and House of Representatives relating to men and matters pertaining to Newmarket:

The governor, November 9, 1738, laid before the Board a letter from "Justice Hall touching the Execution of Patrick Fisher on whom were found some counterfeit bills of this Province, as also the Examination."

In his message to the Legislature, February 15, 1739, the governor recommended that a committee be chosen to visit Fort William and Mary and investigate its condition. Accordingly Capt. Edward Hall and Jotham Odiorne were so chosen "to joyn such as the Hon^{ble} the Council shall appoint to go down as soon as possible & view what is absolutely necessary to be done at the said Fort & Stores and to bring a particuar return as neare as they can compute what the charge may be & make their returne to the Gen^l Assembly as soon as they can." When this committee acted and made report we have not ascertained.

October 24, 1739, Capt. Edward Hall was returned "according to the King's Writ to serve in the General Assembly" for Newmarket.

February 1, 1740, Captain Hall prayed the Board to swear in Thomas Wallingford as a member of the Assembly, and this was accordingly done.

Captain Hall, February 5, 1740, "entered his dissent against the vote of hearty thanks in the name and behalf of the good People of this Province to John Thomlinson of London, agent of the Assembly of Great Britain, for settlement of Boundary Lines," and February 15, "against the answer of the House to His Excell^{es} speech." On February 12, he was put on a committee to "draw up an Additional Militia Act."

For the years 1742-47, Capt. Israel Gilman was the representative for Newmarket in the General Assembly. On May 31, June 4 and 9, he acted as "messenger between the House of Representatives and the Governor relating to the choosing of a Recorder," and as a member of the House, July 19, 1744, he "bro^t up a vote for a Committee to Inspect the repairs of fort W^m Mary &c.,” and such committee was duly chosen.

That elections in those early days did not always run smoothly and satisfactorily is made plain from the following petition to the Legislature, dated June 5, 1745:

The Humble Petition of Sundry of the Freeholders of the Parish of New Market in said Province Shews—

That ye Freeholders of the said Parish being Intitled to the Privilege of Sending a Representative to the General Assembly met on the 3rd Instant (Pursuant to a precept Issued according to Custom) in order to make Choice of a Suitable Person for that purpose—

That upon Counting the votes it appeared they Exceeded the Number of voters present which Rendered it Probable there was some unfair practice in the proceedings, & made it Doubtful whether the Person said to be elected, was Really so, upon which Seven at Least of the said Freeholders Desired the Matter might be decided by the Poll (as the Law in such Cases Provides) which the Moderator (Joseph Hall Esqr) utterly refused & denied & thereupon Dissolved the Meeting taking the matter in Doubt to be as he Declared it without giving the Dissatisfied Persons the least Satisfaction—

That your petition^{rs} Conceive the Freedom of Elections is the foundation of the Rights of the People, & a fundamental Principle in the form of Government they are under, on which freedom every Instance or Partiality is an Infringement, & the very suggestion thereof ought to awaken a Judicature subsisting only by that freedom, to Examine whether Such Suggestions are true or false—Wherefore your Petitioners pray that this Hon^{ble} House will take Cognizance of the premises Examine & Determine as to the truth of the facts & the Merits of the Cause Requires & in order thereto to Order the usual and necessary process with all Convenient Speed—and your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c—

Israel Gilman	Ezekiel Sanborn	Robert Pike
Robert Barber	Joseph Sinclair	Richard Clark
Nathaniel peas	Nathaniel Piper	Joseph Gilman
Edward ———	Jonathan Bachelder

The man said to be elected was Thomas Young, but the Legislature, after a hearing with the selectmen, clerk and moderator of Newmarket present, declared the election illegal, June 12, 1745, and a new precept was issued and Capt. Israel Gilman was elected and sworn in.

April 2, 1745, Meshech Weare and Capt. Israel Gilman were chosen by the House as a committee “to joyn with such as may be appointed by the Hon^{ble} Council to draw up an act” relative to a law for the relief of poor prisoners for debt.”

In the controversy of the date of January 19, 1745, between Gov. Benning Wentworth, respecting the call of members "simply by the King's writ without the previous consent of the General court," reference is made to the precedent of Newmarket and other places as "intitled to the privilege of sending members to sit in y^e Gen^l Assembly, by vote of the General Court." It seems the difficulty arose from excluding five members "who were called to be present by the King's writ," in the organizing of the House. Governor Wentworth demanding the grounds of their rejection, the House appointed Capt. Israel Gilman, Mescheeh Weare and Jonathan Look a committee to go to James Jaffrey, the late clerk of the House, and demand of him all books, records and files belonging to the House and bring them in. After due examination the House cites Newmarket and other places as precedents and concludes that "such persons as are called on from places y^t are not Privileged by the Gen^l Court ought not to vote in this House in the choice of speaker, but the House ought to exclude them as much as if they came from another Province." The governor then waived further discussion and approved the choice of Nathaniel Rogers as their speaker.

Capt. Israel Gilman, October 5, 1745, "bro^t up from the House" a vote for paying an account of Dr. Nathaniel Rogers "for Sund^y Administration to the French prisoners & a vote of the House thereon for Paying the same," which the governor approved.

The Legislature, December 20, 1745, "Voted That there be five hundred pair of snow shoes & five hundred pair of Manh-gazins — moceasons — with strings forthwith provided at y^e publick expense . . . & that they be disposed of & kept in convenient Places — Viz^t one hundred & fifty pr of each in Exeter & Newmarket."

Capt. Israel Gilman, July 8, 1746, is again made "a messenger of the House to the Governor," and on July 30, entered his protest "against action in the Mason claims." Also May 22, 1747, "dissents to a vote to lure the good will of the Six Nations."

Edward Hall was chosen to represent Newmarket in the House of Representatives for 1749, and appeared there January 17, 1749, not having been qualified. A request was then made that he repair to the Council Chamber and be sworn in, which he accordingly did and was admitted to his seat.

The House chose July 1, 1749, Thomas Millet, Edward Hall and Zebulon Giddings as their committee "to joyn such as shall be appointed by y^e Hon^{ble} Council to Examine ye Muster Rolls of the soldiers in y^e service of this Governm^t in defence of the frontiers in the year 1748 in the Recess of y^e Court, and that said Com^{tee} give publick notice to all whose proper business it is to bring in Said Muster Rolls to y^e Com^{tee} to be Examined by them & they to Report to y^e Gen^l Ass^m as soon as may be that said Muster Rolls may be past & ye soldiers paid."

Capt. Israel Gilman was again chosen to represent Newmarket in the Legislature in 1752, and by him and Jedediah Philbrick, September 28, the House "sent up" to the Council a vote appointing Daniel Pierce, recorder of deeds.

An inquiry was instituted September 25, 1752, respecting the "Right and method of Newmarket — and other towns — then sending Representatives to serve in the Gen^l Assembly." Newmarket, October 5, was classed with other towns to form a district for the collection of excise upon liquors, and Zebulon Giddings was to be allowed five per cent. for collection.

In 1752, the calendar was corrected, making the year begin January 1, instead of that date or March 25, and September 2, O. S., September 14, N. S.

A new proportionment of the Province tax was made February 1, 1753, and May 17, 1753, by vote the travel of Edward Hall to the General Assembly at Portsmouth was fixed at thirteen miles.

As a member, Capt. Israel Gilman was present August 21 and September 6, 1754, at special conventions of the General Assembly at Portsmouth.

John Wentworth, January 22, 1755, was appointed collector of the "Excise" to have six per cent. for his service.

The Journal of the House has the following record for February 1, 1755:

Whereas Capt. Israel Gilman is willing at the desire of this house to go to Haverhill with proper officers and endeavor the apprehending of Eben^r Kimball and David Emerson Junr, two persons suspected to be concerned in counterfitting and altering Bills in imitation of the Bills of Credit of this Province, Voted, That s^d Gilman receive out of the publick Treasury twelve Pounds ten shillings new Tenr to enable him to conduct and manage s^d affair, and that he render account thereof to the Gen^l Assembly.

With Jonathan Livermore, he took, March 18, 1755, the oath of secrecy, and on April 3, at his desire, his dissent was entered "against the act passed the forenoon granting his Maj^{ty} £30,000." This had reference to the prospective expedition to Crown Point.

Joseph Smith was sworn in October 23, 1755, as a member of the House from Newmarket. He was one of a committee, July 13, 1756, "on his Excellencys speech to both houses," and on September 2 and 3 attended "a special Convention of the Gen^l Assembly, pursuant to his Excellencys orders." He was also on a committee of the House "to prepare a Bill for licensing taverns." At that date Newmarket had three.

The House, February 23, 1760, and January 28, 1761, ordered the selectmen to take an inventory of certain towns, and April 25, 1761, a petition of the selectmen of Newmarket was granted "for reimbursement of charges for taking care of soldiers with small pox."

Col. Joseph Smith of Newmarket was chosen January 29, 1762, to inform the governor that the House had made choice of Hon. Henry Sherburne for speaker.

On January 18, 1765, the petition of Walter Bryent in behalf of Daniel Ames for bringing Mary Flood, who had been tried for her life and acquitted, from Canterbury, was presented in the House.

Lieut. John Burley was representative from Newmarket in 1766, and on July 1, was chosen messenger of the House to the Council. He also represented the town in 1767.

The first census of New Hampshire on which any reliance is to be placed was taken in the year 1767. It was made under the selectmen of each town, and returned by them to Governor Wentworth. He had several times before attempted to ascertain the number of the population, but with little success. The census of Newmarket was as follows:

Unmarried men from 16 to 60 years of age,	120
Married men from 16 to 60,	182
Boys 16 years or under,	288
Men 60 years and above,	28

Unmarried females,	407
Married females,	198
Male slaves,	13
Female slaves,	16
Widows,	34

The total was 1,286, the seventh town for size in the state.

The census as taken at later dates was as follows:

Census of 1773.

In 1790 the population was 1,137; in 1800, 1,027; in 1810, 1,061; and in 1820, 1,033; in 1830, 2,013; in 1840, 1,109 males, 1,614 females, 29 colored—total, 2,732.

In 1771, the year New Hampshire was divided into counties, Capt. Israel Gilman was a member of the House from Newmarket as also in 1772, and was credited respectively with 19 and 57 days attendance at two sessions, the latter of 34 days, ending February 10, 1773. The certified amount of his pay for 34 days and 17 miles travel, was £12, 8s., 2d.

The governor, with advice of Council, February 2, 1773, appointed Capt. Israel Gilman and Capt. Nathaniel Rogers, justices of the peace. In May, 1773, the number of polls was 252; ratable estates, 362; and proportionate tax of the town, £17, 10s. per £1,000.

Capt. Israel Gilman was also member of the General Assembly in 1774.

The Assembly at Exeter chose delegates January 5, 1775, to the General Congress at Philadelphia, and the following May to the Provincial Congress at Exeter. The towns in voting to send deputies to this Congress, quietly passed from the jurisdiction of a king to that of a republic. Notifications for town meetings were no longer warned in "His Majesty's" name. The delegates from Newmarket to the Provincial Congress at Exeter were Capt. Jeremiah Folsom, Capt. Hubartus Neal and James Hill, and to the General Assembly, Col. Joseph Smith.

After the capture of Fort William and Mary, the initial act of the American Revolution, the desire of the people to throw off the British yoke grew stronger and preparations began to be made in readiness for the open outbreak which was foreseen to be inevitable. Committees of Safety were chosen and soldiers enlisted. The Second New Hampshire Regiment was organized with the following officers: Colonel, Enoch Poor; Lieutenant-Colonel, John McDuffee; Major, Joseph Cilley; Adjutant, Jeremiah Fogg.

Captains, Henry Elkins, Winborn Adams, Philip Tilton, Benjamin Titcomb, Jeremiah Clough, Winthrop Rowe, Samuel Gilman, Jonathan Wentworth, James Norris, Richard Shortridge.

The officers of the Third New Hampshire Regiment were: Colonel, James Reed; Lieutenant-Colonel, Israel Gilman; Major, Nathan Hale; Adjutant, Stephen Peabody; Quartermaster, Isaac Frye; Surgeon, Ezra Green; Surgeon's Mate, Nathaniel Breed; Captains, John Marcy, Benjamin Mann, Josiah Crosby, William Walker, Ezra Town, Jonathan Whitcomb, Jacob Hines, Levi Spaulding, Hezekiah Hutchins.

Lieut. John Burley was at this time, June, 1775, a member of the House from Newmarket. By vote of the Committee of Safety at Newmarket, June 6, 1775, of which Thomas Tash was chairman, Mr. Parsons was chosen to present the following petition:

To the Hon^{bl} Provincial Congress at Exeter—Gent.

Whereas many Inhabitants of this Town are inlisted in the Provincial Service, whose Family whilst they are absent will stand in a great need of Support—and as it might be very Convenient if the Committee of Safety of the Town, could assist such Familys with Provisions or other Necessaries of Life in such Manner that the same might be allowed The Town or any Private Person that inclined to advance for that Purpose; in any Future Proposition of Charges that may be made to Pay of s^d Soldiers—

Wherefore we pray the advice of this Hon^{bl} Convention— And that your Hon^{bl} would direct accordingly—

The Fourth Provincial Congress met at Exeter May 17, 1775. The deputies from Newmarket were Capt. Jeremiah Folsom and Edward Parsons.

On motion of General Sullivan by “vertue of orders from his Excellency, George Washington,” certain persons having been brought to the attention of the Congress “on suspicion of their being inimical to the Country and Cause of Liberty,” it was voted “That Capt. William Torry remain at Newmarket and not on any occasion leave said Town or Parish without Leave from the Congress or Committee of Safety.” Also “That Capt. Nathaniel Rogers confine himself to his own house & Farm in New Market, or if he shall choose to remove himself Twenty miles from Portsmouth and from the Sea, not on any occasion Leave the town or Parish he shall remove to, without leave of the Congress or Committee of Safety.”

That the Hon^{ble} Peter Gilman Esqr confine himself to the town of Exeter, and not on any occasion Leave the said Town without Leave of the Congress or Committee of safety.

Twenty days were allowed them for removal.

It was also voted that in the opinion of the Congress

Samuel Dyer ought to confine himself to his present place of abode in Berwick and that it will not be prudent for him to be allowed to Pass & repass this Colony at present.

John Parker, who doubtless had been under suspicion was voted "a Friend to this Country and is Accordingly Set at full Liberty."

Tories were brought before the Committee of Safety and required to give bonds to be of good behavior towards the subjects of the United States, and New Hampshire in particular, not to go more than half a mile from their residence without leave.

This Congress voted to pay Nathaniel Rogers twenty shillings for his services in settling accounts as a Committeeman, and Col. Jeremiah Folsom the balance of his account for fire arms amounting to twenty-four shillings and eight half pence.

July 4, 1775, it was voted "That a Publick Stock of Fire arms be provided for this Colony," and Capt. Jeremiah Folsom was on a committee "to procure 500 good fire arms as soon as may be."

As vacancies were from time to time occurring in the different regiments which needed to be speedily filled, the field officers, headed by Col. John Stark of the New Hampshire Regiments, sent in a petition to the New Hampshire Committee of Safety, September 29, 1775, for blank commissions to be filled in by the brigadier general for such persons to fill these vacancies as he deemed qualified, thereby saving time and expense.

In reply, the Committee of Safety, October 10, 1775, sent a letter to Gen. John Sullivan acknowledging the receipt of this petition of the field officers, and expressed a willingness to grant the request, but filling vacancies had been made by the Provincial Congress, their special duty, and they were not authorized to delegate such action to any one else. They therefore asked for a list of vacancies, with dates of becoming vacant, and names of fit persons to fill them, and the committee would send commissions as soon as possible.

In accordance with this reply a list of vacancies in Colonel Reed's Regiment was sent in and the following persons were commissioned to fill them: George Aldrich, Lieutenant in Captain Spaulding's Company; Richard Coughlin, Ensign in Captain Hutchin's Company; William Hawkens, who distinguished himself in the battle of Bunker Hill, Ensign in Captain Hind's Company, and Stephen Peabody, "who hath ever done the duty," Adjutant.

Lieut.-Colonel Israel Gilman writes to the Committee of Safety, June 16, 1775, from Charlestown, saying that Colonel Reed's regiment was fully officered and enjoying a good degree of harmony, but needed very much a chaplain, surgeon and "armor." In a postscript he adds that it is a still time with the regular troops, but "we expect they will make a push for Bunker Hill or Dorchester Neck very soon." The battle of Bunker Hill occurred the next day.

The Provincial Congress, November 8, 1775, voted "That the Selectmen of Newmarket be sent for to attend the Congress forthwith and answer for their neglect of Numbering their Inhabitants according to the order of this Congress."¹ This Congress ended November 16, 1775.

The Fifth Provincial Congress, December 23, 1775, Thomas Tash, delegate from Newmarket, gave leave to those who had previously been ordered to confine themselves to certain places "to go to their respective Business for the space of fifteen days, unless they or any of them should be called for Sooner; and then to make their appearance before this Congress." It was voted January 3, 1776, that they "be Liberated from their confinement till Further Orders."

For reasons that do not appear, the Provincial Congress is asked to reconsider their action in appointing Capt. Jeremiah Folsom to the office of lieutenant colonel of the Fourth Regiment. Several petitions from the inhabitants of that part of the Colony which composed this Regiment contain 205 names. Another petition contained the following Newmarket names: James Hill, Hubartus Neal, Richard Clark, Charles Wiggins, Edward Hilton, Moses Edgerly, Nathaniel Lord, Zebulon Davis, Robert Barber, Jr., Eliphalet Pease, Jonathan Sanborn, John Wedgewood, Josiah Burley, William Burley, William Higgins, Benjamin Stevens, Jacob Burley, Nicholas Doe, Jr., Joseph Meloon, Robert Pike, John Burleigh, David Wiggin, Benjamin Mead, Josiah Hilton, Samuel Baker, Charles Smart, Jr., Anthony Pickering, Benning Brackett, Anthony Pickering, Jr., Levy Pickering, John Perkins, Winthrop Smith, Peter Drown, Stilman Tarlton, John Marston, Jacob Pearson, Daniel Connell, Nat Ames, Edward Colcord, Samuel Dyer, Samuel Neal, Bradstreet Gilman, John Bennett, Cotton Bennett, Joshua Brackett, Nicholas Hartford, Joseph Smart, Thomas Churchill, John Tilton, Samuel Chapman, Aaron Kenson, James Burley, Jonathan Wiggin, John Tash, Job Savage, Reuben Doe, Thomas Bennet, John Colcord, Robert Jackson, Joseph Folsom, Walter Shute, David Folsom, William Coffin, John Mason, Enoch Remick, John Meader, David Chapman, John Cooke, Jonathan Doe, Moses Burley, John Bennet, Jr., Caleb Clark, John Ames, Andrew Burley, Nat Gilman, Joseph Adams, David Smart, William Folsom and Nat Ames, Jr.

Samuel Baker, James Hill and Wentworth Cheswell, in behalf of the town of Newmarket, sent the following petition to the Provincial Congress, which speaks for itself:

Humbly Shews—That when all America are Asserting and your Honours are specilly delegated to maintain amoung other Things; the Rights of a free Representative, of Representatives being liable to & bound by the Instructions of their Constituents, and of Petitioning for Redress of Grievances—We doubt not that your Hon^{rs} will vouchsafe to hear this Petition, respecting infringements on some of the Rights, by a Member of your Body—The Exercise of arbitrary Power over Places of Honour & Profit has once we have seen overballanced free Representation and helped to Reduce this Nation to a Civil War; may not therefore appointments to such Trusts, solicited or Accepted by Delegates in violation of the Instructions of their Constituents, be justly esteemed Things of a bad and dangerous Tendency especially when such Honours fall upon Persons either of small Accomplishments or Low Merits— We therefore humbly Pray your honours to Eye the Hand of Freedom in our present case and preserve even in small Things the Priviledges & Immunities of Each Individual— The Town of Newmarket being the Second in the Regiment have usually had the Second Field Officer appointed there: They still humbly pray for a continuance of the Same Favour; and they did specially order and Instruct their Delegates to represent to your Honours the Desire of the Town That Major Thomas Tash might be appointed a Field Officer here, and themselves to use their Influence and Vote for said Tash accordingly—tho' not with any the most distant view of an exclusive Right to dictate to your Honours in the Matter, but only on a Confidence founded on Evidence of his Courage and good Conduct manifested in the last War, and his firm and generous Exertions in Defense of the Common Cause from its earliest rise: and from the Advantages they have from their Situation to gain the Knowledge of the Person in this Town most worthy of such an office above that of many of your Honours to whom the inhabitants of this Town are Strangers—And it cannot justly alarm us that Capt Jeremiah Folsom one of our ^{sa} Delegates should, repugnant to such Instructions not only neglect to inform your Honours of his ^{sd} Instructions or even regard them himself, but Presumptuously (to use his own Words) "crawl into the Gap" The very place which he by the ties of his Word & Honour was obliged to endeavor to procure for another—

This Conduct (had his Accomplishments as an Officer been equal to those of Major Tash or even greater) would we conceive have Apolligized for this Petition—it was this amoung other Reesons that induced the Town of Newmarket at a meeting of its Freeholders and other Inhabitants to Vote to dismiss the said Folsom from all further Service and to chose us a Committee to prefer this Petition—humbly to beseech your Honours to reconsider said Appointment, and permit this Town still humbly to recommend the said Tash to your Honours Consideration & humbly pray your Honours gracious Acceptance and Approbation of such Choice—And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall pray—
Newmarkett 5th September 1775

The return of Capt. James Hill's Company on Pierce's Island, November 5, 1775, includes the following Newmarket names:

James Hill, Captain, Capⁿ Sam^l Baker 1^t Lieut., Sam^l Gilman, 2^d Lieut., Zebulon Barber, Ensign, Joseph Smith Serjent, Josiah Hall Bartlett, Sergent, John Foss, Serjent, James Gilman, Joseph Colcord, Corporals, Eliphalet Smith, Drummer, Privates, Robert Mitchel, Joseph Neal, Joseph Pease, Edward Folsom, Josiah Colcord, Levi Pickering, Dudley Hilton, Hugh McBride, Jonathan Mason, Aaron Kyneston, Jonathan Folsom, David Colcord, John Folsom, Josiah Burnham, Ebenezer Bean, William Hersey, Theophilus Wiggins, Sam^l Burley, Abram Parsons, David Wiggins, Jacob Durgan, Sam^l Ward, John Neal, Josiah Burley, Nath^l Cobbey, Stephens Lyford, Nath^l Pease, Bradstreet Gilman, Zebulon Davis, Walter Neal.

In the return of the companies of the New Hampshire Militia in the Continental Army, December, 1775, we find "Co. 14 Newmarket, Capt. Sam^l Barber, Lieut. Zebulon Barber, 2^d Lieut. John Allen, 3 Sergeants, 3 Corporals, 2 Drummers & Fifers, 44 Privates."

And in the return of a part of Capt. Jos. Parson's company left at Goat Island, December 6, 1775, "Lieut. Nathaniel Gilman, Sergt. Josiah Hall Bartlett, Joseph Hall, William Trefethen, John Foss, James Pickering, Levi Pickering, David Wiggin, Smith Chapman, Jonathan Folsom."

At a meeting of the North Company of Militia in Newmarket, March 5, 1776, the following petition and remonstrance of the non-commissioned officers and soldiers was adopted and sent "To the Honourable Council & House of Representatives" for the Colony of New Hampshire:

Humbly Shews—

That Jeremiah Folsom under pretence of acting Lieut. Col. of this Regiment, has as we humbly conceive, deprived us of the Liberty of Choosing our own Officers; agreeable to the Resolution of the Hon^{ble} Continental Congress; by assuming, & wantonly exercising, the Power of Moderator of the Meeting of s^d Company: & as such to adjourn from Time to Time; & from Place to Place; untill he had surreptitiously obtained a Vote for Edward Hilton Jr to be Captain: not by the free suffrages of the Soldiers, which we conceive ought to have been had: but by a Small Majority of the Company, in Conjunction with several Commissioned Officers; & others that Did not belong to the Company & even some that did not belong to the Town—

Which Vote so obtained, he the s^d Folsom afterwards refused to have reconsidered; tho' repeatedly demanded by a far greater Number than it was passed by and still persists in further adjourning the Meeting Contrary to the Sence of the Majority of the Company Present—and other unfair, partial, & oppressive behaviour of s^d Lt. Colonel, compels us Humbly to pray, the interposition of this Hon^{bl} Court; & that s^d Folsom may be removed from the Office of Lt Colonel; and We be restored to the Privileges of Soldiers, in Common with Other Americans: Which Privileges, we are determined to Assert, maintain, & defend; according to the Resolutions of the Hon^{le} Continental Congress—or have our Aforesaid Greivances Redressed, in Manner as shall Seem Meet to your Hon^{rs} & your Petitioners shall Pray—

This petition was read and received due consideration, and a time was fixed by the House for a hearing, with the instruction “that the Petitioners at their own cost serve the said Lieut. Col^o Jeremiah with a copy of the Petition & order thereon, That he may appear & show cause if any he have why the Prayer thereof should not be granted.”¹

After the hearing and due consideration in conference a committee was chosen to join with a similar committee of the Council to try to effect a reconciliation between the parties, but Colonel Folsom, not being able to attend the meeting of these committees in person, a reconciliation could not be effected, and therefore they "advise, That for the sake of the Peace, Union & Good order of that part of the Regiment, He, the said Lieut. Col. Folsom, Resign his Commission — all which is humbly submitted in the Name & pr order of the Committee."¹ Jonathan Blanchard was chairman.

It was ordered that a copy of this report be sent to Colonel Folsom "that he may Give his answer to this house as soon as may be."

It seems that Colonel Folsom refused to resign his commission, and was "discharged from his office," and the House a week later, September 19, 1776, voted "That Samuel Dudley, Esq., be Lieutenant Colonel of the Fourth Regiment of Militia in this State in the room & stead of Jeremiah Folsom, Esq., who is dismist."

As early as October 18, 1775, our delegates in the Continental Congress, in compliance with instructions from the Colony of New Hampshire ask "the advice and direction of the Congress with respect to a method of our administering justice and regulating our civil police." Accordingly on November 3, 1775, Congress adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the provincial convention of New Hampshire, to call a full and free representation of the people, and that the representatives, if they think it necessary, establish such a form of government as in their judgment will best produce the happiness of the people and most effectually secure peace and good order in the province during the continuance of the present dispute between Great Britain and the Colonies.

Accordingly on November 14, 1775, the Provincial Congress of this state adopted a plan of representation, upon which an election of delegates was held, who assembled in convention December 21, 1775, and on January 5, 1776, adopted the first written Constitution of government, and resolved themselves into a House of Representatives thereunder. This is believed to be the first written Constitution of the United States. It was not designed to be permanent, but to continue in force during the war, or until superseded by a new Constitution.

Proclamation to the people that this Constiution was in force and that officers had been chosen and qualified under it, was made "by Order of the Council and Assembly at Exeter the 19th Day of March, Anno Domini, 1776."

A petition headed by Portsmouth and including Newmarket and several other towns of Rockingham County, sent to the House "against Taking up Government in the New Form Established by this House." Portsmouth, January 10, 1776, opposed chiefly on the ground that they "humbly conceive that Such a measure is an open Declaration of Independency, which we can by no means Countenance until we Shall know the Sentiments of the British Nation in General." The towns were Portsmouth, Dover, Rochester, Newington, Greenland, Rye, Stratham, North Hampton, Kensington, Newmarket, with a number of individuals of Brentwood.

On January 19, 1776, Colonel Morey, Col. David Gilman and Colonel Evans were chosen a committee of the House to confer with a corresponding committee of the Council "about Laying our Plan of Government before the Hon^{ble} the Continental Congress and Taking their Advice thereon and make report to this house as soon as May be."

A convention to form a second and more complete constitution voted on June 5, 1779, to submit to the people the bill of rights and constitution which they had formed. When the Convention reassembled on the succeeding third Tuesday of September, it was found that the people had rejected their work. Thereupon the Convention was dissolved.

Another constitutional convention met in June, 1781, and after various failures succeeded at length in producing a bill of rights and constitution which were acceptable to the people. This second constitution of New Hampshire went into effect on the first Wednesday of June, 1784.

Jonathan Colcord of Newmarket, having petitioned the Fifth Provincial Congress for a permit to carry certain cattle and sheep to Passamaquoddy to winter "Where he has hay," December 27, 1775, Wyseman Claggett and Thomas Tash were chosen a Committee to attend to this matter, and "take security from him — Mr. Colcord — for their safe landing there."

The following is the text of the permit thus granted:

Colony of }
New Hampshire }

Exeter, Decr 27th 1775.

To all Masters or Commanders of Vessels in the service of the united Continental Colonies or well-wishers to their cause;

Greeting—

We, the subscribers (Members of the Hon^{ble} Congress for said Colony now sitting at Exeter aforesaid) being a Committee appointed for that purpose, do now Certify, That Jonathan Colcord of Newmarket in the County of Rockingham and Colony afores^d, yeoman, hath obtained permission from the said Congress to export to Passamaquoddy Tow 4 year old steers, two Heifers, and eight sheep in a schooner belonging to Messieurs Clark and Wallace, and it is the Pleasure of the said Congress that said Colcord do pass unmolested.

Witness our hands this 27th day of December, 1775.

WISEMAN CLAGGETT
THOS. TASH.

After the safe arrival of the schooner at its place of destination, Robert Wilson and James Cockran of the Committee of Safety for Passamaquoddy certified the fact to the Congress at Exeter and “that it is the pleasure of us a Committee that the said vess^l pass to Piscataqua unmolested, &c.”

On December 28, 1775, the Fifth Provincial Congress placed Major Tash on a committee of six to join a former committee to draft an oath or obligation to be entered into by the members.

The Continental Congress, March 14, 1776, recommended by “Resolution” to the several “Assemblies, Conventions, and Councils, or Committee of Safety of the United Colonies, immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed, within their respective Colonies, who have not associated, and refuse to associate, to defend by Arms, the United Colonies, against the hostile attempts of the British Fleets and Armies.”

Accordingly the Committee of Safety, April 12, 1776, in order to carry out this “Resolution” sent by Meschech Weare, its chairman, a request to the selectmen of Newmarket “to desire all males above twenty-one years of age (Lunaticks, Idiots, and Negroes excepted) to sign” what is known as the Association Test, and make return of all that refuse. The test was as follows:

We, the subscribers, do hereby solemnly engage, and promise that we will, to the utmost in our Power, at the Risque of our Lives and Fortunes, with Arms, oppose the Hostile Proceedings of the British Fleets and Armies, against the United American Colonies.

Those signing such Test in Newmarket were the following :

John Perkins, Thos^s Tash, Sam. Baker, Sam^l Gilman, Benj. Mead, John Mason, William Shriggens, John Tash, Jonathan Robinson, Joseph Sanborn, Joseph Smith, Walter Bryant, Jr., Jacob Brown, John Watson, Josiah Burnham, Joshua Brackett, Nicholas Hartford, Samuel Burleigh, John Folsom, Thomas Bennett, Ich^a Brackett, Tho. The following persons refused to sign the Test :

Stephen Hardy, Stephen Thurston, Nathan Preson, Jacob Parsons, William Badger, Walter Shute, Joshua Wiggin, William Perkins, John

Mighels, Isaac Marston, John Marston, Samuel Mighels, Samuel Mighels, Jr., Joshua Mighels, Samuel Gilman, Nathaniel Rogers, John Neal, Michael Shute, Will^m Shute, Doct. John Marster, Anthony Pickering, Henry Wiggin, William Odiorne, Roger Racklyft, Richard Perkins, George Hart, Zebulon Neal, Jonathan Kinnison, Samuel Smart, Josiah Smart, Jacob Ames, Stephen Lyford, Elisha Thomas, Benjamin Pease, Peter Hearsay, Thomas Piper, John Shute, Nath^l Lorde. 38.

Newmarket, July 12, 1776.

It is not to be understood that all who declined to sign the Association Test were tories, or disaffected to the American cause. Some were Quakers whose principles forbade them to oppose the enemy in battle; some were physically infirm and thought it mere bravado in them to threaten resistance with arms; others had conscientious scruples, and still others doubtless were timid. A few citizens inclined to allegiance to the mother country. But perhaps they were not deficient in patriotism. At the opening of the Revolution every man who had anything to do with the practice of the law was looked upon with distrust as a tory.

It would seem that the Committee of Safety were troubled at the state of things in Newmarket, and July 12, 1776, addressed the following letter to the selectmen:

Gentlemen—The Committee feel the greatest anxiety, and are strongly depressed with the account from New Market, that any Internal Broil should in the least obstruct the forwarding those things so absolutely necessary for the preservation of all that is dear to us. Probably a Neglect of speedily Reinforcing our Northern Army may occasion the Slaughter of our Bosom friends & Innocent offspring, while we are mingled in the common carnage. The truly forward and Patriotic Disposition often shown by the Inhabitants of New Market, in the common cause, convince the Committee that they will not now attend to any particular difficulty and neglect the main object, while their neighbors are nobly exerting themselves at this important time. Therefore they desire you will with all possible speed, call a meeting of the Inhabitants of your Town, and proceed to raise the men proportioned to you in Colo Gilman's Regiment; at which time Colo Gilman will attend & lend you all the assistance in his power to accomplish so noble and so necessary a purpose.²

The House voted, January 25, 1776, that the payment of the account of the Committee of Safety of Newmarket for fire rafts amounting to "Thirty nine pounds six shillings & three pence half penny be allowed & paid out of the Treasury & that the President of the Council give order on the Treasurer for payment."¹

The account for which the above sum was ordered paid is as follows:

The House voted June 11, 1776, "That Major James Hackett be the first officer of the Battalion now to be raised in this Colony on the Continental Establishment. That Major Thomas Tash be the second officer, and Major David Copp be the third officer of said Battalion."

The above vote, eight days after, was "Reconsidered and made Null and Void."

On June 12, Thomas Tash was "nominated to the Hon^{ble} Continental Congress to the appointed Lieut. Colonel of Continental Battalion ordered to be raised here."

The next day it was voted "That James Hill of Newmarket be appointed Captain in the Battallion now to be raised in this Colony on the Continental Establishment."

These last two votes were the occasion of the repealing of the vote of June 11.

June 28, 1776, Major Tash was placed on a committee of the House "to take into Consideration the matter of Col^o Bailey's letter rec^d this day."

The same day Joseph Smith of Newmarket was made Justice of the Peace and of the Quorum for the County of Rockingham.

By vote of the House, September 17, 1776, Thomas Tash was made "Colonel of the Fourth Regiment, now raising to reinforce our Army at New York," and Maj^r Joseph Welch "Lieut. Colonel of said Regiment," and Lieut. Col. William Gregg, "Major of said Regiment."

Nahum Baldwin was made "Colonel of the Second Regiment of said Reinforcement."

It was also voted "That the field officers & staff officers of the Two Regiments Destined for New York be paid one month's advance pay before the march."¹

On the muster roll of Capt. Daniel Gordon's Company in Colonel Tash's Regiment raised to reinforce the Continental Army at New York, September 20, 1776, were the following names credited to Newmarket:

It would seem by the following letter that there had been, by what right we have not learned, a shipment of New York Tories into New Hampshire to the care of the Committee of Safety of New Hampshire :

In Committee of Safety,
November 14th 1776.

The Committee, taking into Consideration what is necessary to be done with a number of persons sent into this State by order of the State of New York Have determined that at present [nine persons] be committed to the Prison in Exeter, having the Liberty of the yard in the daytime only; and that all the other persons may provide their own lodgings any where within six miles of the State House in the Town of Exeter, except in the Town of New Market, at no time going beyond these limits. . . . [Quakers may go to reside with Quakers¹]

On the next day after the above letter was written the statement is made that "Capt. A. Funda of the State of New York has guarded by order of said State (as he says) seventy four Persons and delivered them into the custody of this Committee." It is stated November 23, 1776, that there were about 200 prisoners; some were ordered to the town of Nottingham, some to the parish of Deerfield.

On January 9, 1777, a "Remonstrance & Petition of Lieut. Colonel Joseph Welch praying that the Sheriff may be authorized & required to detain in prison sundry prisoners committed by him to the Gaol in Exeter from the State of New York, viz. [six persons]" was received and it was voted, "That the Sheriff of the County of Rockingham be directed to detain in the Gaol or Gaols of said County all such Prisoners sent by said Welch from New York until further orders. The said Joseph Welch, Esqr. being at the whole charge of their imprisonment & support on account of said State of New York."

Thomas Tash, though a member of the House, November 27, 1776, did not attend during the session as he was with the army. Capt. Samuel Gilman for attendance 14 days as member, was allowed December 17, £9, 4s.

It is stated December 11, that Lieut. John Weeks "has an account for escorting prisoners to goal."

At this session Elisha Thomas was allowed £10 on account of a wound received in the service. A Committee was also "appointed to examine an article in the Exeter Gazette which reflected on the town of Newmarket."¹

The House voted that "Capt. Samuel Gilman of New Market wait on the Secretary & request him to certify how far the late Committee of Safety were concerned in the publication of several pieces in the Exeter Chronicle, reflecting on the Town of New Market, and that if the said Committee were no ways concerned in the said Publications, that then the said Town of New Market apply to the Printer for Satisfaction."²

A return in 1777 of the men that were enlisted or hired for three years or during the war belonging to the Fourth Regiment of Militia in New Hampshire to complete the three Battalions of the Continental army, included the names of the following for Newmarket:

Samuel Baker, Jonathan Mason, Reuben Roberts, Ebenezer Bean, Caleb Clark, James Moody, Jon^a Stone Dudley, Barnabas McBride, William Downs, Samuel Ward, John Folsom, Jonathan Folsom, Joseph Sanborn, James Kennistone, Benjamin Dout, John Foss, Thomas Foss, John Smart, Oxford (negro), Phillip Crummet, James Remick, James Goodwin, Benjamin Folsom, John Barter, Aaron Rollins, Winthrop Wiggin, Dav^d Watson, James Colby, Robert Mitchel, Daniel Remick.

The following were on the pay roll of Capt. Zebulon Gilman's Company in Col. Stephen Evan's Regiment which marched and joined the Continental Army at Saratoga September, 1777:

Zebulon Gilman, Captain, who entered September 8 and was discharged December 15, 1777; Zebulon Barber, First Lieutenant; Benjamin Taylor, Ensign; Levi Chapman, Sergeant; William Simpson, Corp^l; Smith Chapman, Corp^l; Joseph Pease, Drum^r; Eliphalet Smith, Fifer; John Folsom, Samuel Dyer, Joseph Neal, William Chesley, Noah Wedgewood, Abraham Parsons, Joseph Colcord, Jacob Burley, Eliphalet Pease, Joseph Loverin, Levi Chapman, Josiah Burleigh, John Smith, Privates.

This was an Exeter and Newmarket Company.

² Prov. Pap. VIII: 451.

Ebenezer Bean of Captain Norris' Company, age 19, stature 5-7, light complexion, red hair, blue eyes, left at Albany on furlough.

Ben Hicks of Captain Bell's Company, age 20, stature 5-7, dark complexion and hair, black eyes, deserted at Stillwater.

Nathaniel Frost of Captain Bell's Company, age 27, stature 6, light complexion, brown hair, blue eyes, "left at H. Town," missing.

John Foss of Captain Robinson's Company, age 28, stature 6, dark complexion, brown hair, dark eyes, left at Skeenborough, missing.

Jona S. Dudley of Captain Robinson's Company, age 22, stature 5-8, dark complexion, brown hair, dark eyes, left at Manchester, deserted.

Robert Pike, Jr., of Newmarket, was appointed January 16, 1777, First Lieutenant in Colonel Scammell's Regiment in the Continental service. And March 26, Samuel Gilman and Mr. Odiorne were ordered to provide barracks for said Regiment.

The Portsmouth Committee of Safety gave notice to the State Committee at Exeter May 19, 1777, "That they have committed to Gaol as Tories refusing to take the oath, the following persons, viz.: Isaac Rindge, John Pierce, William Hart, James Sheafe & Peter Pease & William Torrey."¹

The same day these prisoners in the Gaol at Portsmouth, memorialized the State Committee of Safety as follows:

The Humble Memorial of Isaac Rindge, William Torrey, William Hart, Peter Pearse, John Pierce & James Sheafe, all prisoners in Portsmouth Gaol, Sheweth, That your Memorialists on February last were laid under Bonds in the sum of five hundred Pounds each, to remain good and peaceable subjects within this State for the term of one year;—which obligation your Memorialists have on their part strictly adhered to;— And the Hon^{ble} Committee at the same time on their part, promised them safety and protection; Notwithstanding which to the great surprise of your memorialists The Committee of Portsmouth without any accusation of any crime, have confined them to close gaol.

Now your Memorialists further relying on the good faith plighted them to take the matter under their consideration and make such order thereon as may liberate your memorialists according to the tenor of the Bonds and according to the promises and assurances made them by that Committee at the time as afore-mentioned.

The census of June 1, 1777, gave Newmarket 238 polls, and amount of ratable estate, £468, 16s., 8d., the proportion of £14, 4s., 11½d., to £1,000. Newmarket was exceeded in number of polls and amount of ratable estate by five towns in Rockingham County, and by ten towns in the State.

Josiah Adams of Newmarket, June 7, 1777, was appointed Justice of the Peace for the County of Rockingham.

Lieut. Robert Pike received, June 26, authority to enlist men to be marched to Providence for the defence of Rhode Island. He probably enlisted the 34 men required and so earned his Captain's commission.

Capt. James Hill, June 27, of Newmarket, was "chosen & appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the fourth regiment of Militia in this State commanded by Col^o Nicholas Gilman."

Dr. John Marsters, September 5, 1777, petitioned the Committee of Safety for release from Gaol.

Captain Gilman was placed upon a committee, November 20, 1777, "to consider the accounts & abstracts of Brigadier-General Stark and report thereon."

Capt. Samuel Gilman was a member of the House from Newmarket, December, 1777, and was allowed £9, 4s., for 14 days attendance and six miles travel.

During the time from February 11 to March 14, 1778, the accounts, etc., of the roll of Capt. Robert Pike's Company amounting to £759, 12s., were paid.

Walter Bryant, April 2, 1778, was appointed Justice of the Peace for Rockingham County.

A convention met at Concord, June 10, 1778, "to form a Permanent Plan of Government." Newmarket failed to send a delegate.

An act was passed, November, 1778, "to prevent the return to this State of certain persons therein named and of others who have left or shall leave or either of the United States of America and have joined or shall join the Enemies thereof." John Wentworth, late governor of the state, heads the list of 77 names including "Jacob Brown and George Bell of Newmarket, Traders."¹

The Committee of the House, on sick and disabled soldiers, reported, October 31, 1778, "that Lieut. Joseph Hilton who was wounded while fighting with the enemy on the 7th of Oct. 1777 near Stillwater ought to be enrolled and receive half pay from the first day of Oct. 1778." He was ordered to be enrolled accordingly.

Resolutions were passed, April 20, 1780, affirming that New Hampshire will "comply with the requisition of Congress with respect to the furnishing supplies for the Continental army," and that all pastures belonging to "absentees from the United States" should be used for the fattening of cattle for the use of the army, and that Capt. Samuel Gilman, trustee of Governor Wentworth's estate, "be directed to exchange any horses or horse-kind or any other cattle unfit for beef on said farm, for beef cattle for the same purpose." By a vote, April 27, Captain Gilman was directed "to deliver to Mark Hunking Wentworth Esq. all the furniture now in his hands at Portsmouth, also family pictures at Wolfborough," belonging to the estate of Governor Wentworth.¹

By a vote of the "Council Board June 9, 1780, a bill empowering Samuel Gilman, trustee, to sell the stock of cattle &c., on the Gov. Wentworth estate," was passed.²

The General Assembly gave the towns of Stratham and Newmarket, November 2, 1780, leave "to raise money by a Lottery to repair the Bridge between said Towns."

The Council Board voted, November 14, 1781, "to receive the report of the Com^{ee} on Col. Gilman's selling the Lands of the late Gov. Wentworth;" and that he "sell no more of said Estate until the further order of the General Court."³

A vote was passed, January 11, 1782, ordering Captain Gilman "to proceed in selling the Estate of the late Gov. Wentworth."

The selectmen of Newmarket—Walter Bryant, Jr., Joseph Doe and Wentworth Cheswell—October 31, 1782, warned the "legal Inhabitants paying taxes" "to meet at the Old Meeting House" November 18, to choose certain officers, and "To take into Consideration the Plan of Government proposed by the Convention of this State, by their Resolution of the 21st of August last to be laid before the People—and Take such order thereon as the Meeting may think proper.”

² Prov. Pap. VIII : 915.

At the meeting November 18, after the vote electing Col. James Hill representative was declared, objection was made that the proceedings of the meeting were not legal because the voters had not taken the oath of allegiance, and after discussion “for Some Time” the meeting was adjourned to November 25.

At the adjourned meeting it was voted by a large majority to proceed to finish the business of the Warrant. Whereupon Capt. Samuel Gilman, Captain Neal, Theodore Carlton and Nathaniel Gilman “dissented against the above Vote by Reason the Voters not being Qualified—” After votes for councillors had been brought in, the meeting was adjourned to December 9. At this second adjourned meeting a paper was presented by the dissenters giving reasons for their action, which were as follows:

1st Because when the Votes were brought in for a representative and an objection was made against any Persons Voting who had not taken the Oath of Allegiance to the State the Moderator did not take care to see the Voters qualified according to Law, but Declared Colo Hill chosen by a Majority of only One Vote, when it was Notoriously known that many of the Persons that voted had not taken the Oath according to Law.

2^{dly} Because after the Objection was made aforesaid and debated upon and the Act of the State enjoining the Aforesaid Oath was Read and the Meeting adjourned—on that Account no Entry thereof was made, but on the adjournment the Moderator proceeded in the Vote for Counsellors in the Same Manner as before without the Voters being Qualified and further Adjourned the Meeting to Consider of the Plan of Government without any Notice being taken of the utter illegality of such proceeding—

3^{dly} Because we Apprehend that many People were misled into such undue measures by Colo Hill publicly declaring in the Meeting that the Act enjoining an Oath of Allegiance was not intended for the people here but only made for the People in the upper part of the State—and therefore because many who were not Qualified and others that were Qualified Conceiving the proceedings to be illegall did not vote either for Representative or Councillors, We as aforesaid do Dissent and Protest against the proceedings had or to be had in the Premises—and request an Entry of the foregoing on the Records—

Samuel Gilman, Robert Pike, Bradstreet Gilman, Andrew Gilman, Samuel Neal, James Gilman, Daniel Hilton, Nath^l Gilman, Joseph S. Gilman, Theodore Carlton, Hubartus Neal, Jacob Fowler—

After the reading of the paper, upon motion, it was voted "to adjourn the Meeting to the Widdow Longfellow's House Immediately—" and meeting there, "after Reading the Plan of Government and debateing thereupon—it was put whether the said Plan Should be Received or Not, it past in the Affirmative Ten for it, and Three against it—" The meeting then dissolved.

In the House, December 20, 1782, it was voted "That the election of Col. James Hill as a member from Newmarket be considered as irregular and insufficient to entitle him to a seat in the House." Yeas 43, nays 17.

On the first Tuesday of June, 1783, the Constitutional Convention sent out a "Third Form of Government" which was ratified by the people and established by the Convention, October 31, 1783. Slavery was never legalized in New Hampshire, though it practically existed to some extent, Indians and negroes having been held and sold as property.

Nathaniel Rogers of Newmarket was delegate to the Constitutional Convention adopting the Federal Constitution, voting yea. Also a delegate to the Convention in 1791-92 at Concord to revise the Constitution.

A definitive treaty with Great Britain was consummated, September 30, 1783, on November 4, the army was disbanded, and December 23, Washington resigned his commission.

Nathaniel Ewer and 38 others sent, March 23, 1784, a petition to "his Excellency the President and Hon^{ble} Council for the State of New Hampshire," asking the appointment of James Smith, "a person of good reputation and well qualified," as Justice of the Peace for Rockingham County.

Another petition, April 5, 1784, is similarly addressed by the inhabitants of Newmarket as follows:

That the necessity of appointing civil Officers of integrity uprightness & ability is of the last importance, & deeply felt by your Petitioners— That as your Petitioners wish that Persons may be appointed in this town to the Office of Justices of the Peace, whose lives, Abilities & Estate will not only do honor to the town, but tend to make the government under which we live permanent & respectable. That as a multiplicity of business is transacted in that part of the Town called Lamper-River, which part of the town for some time past has been, & now is, destitute of a person in Commission for the Conservation of the Peace— Your Petitioners humbly beg leave to mention to your Excellency & honours, Jeremy Bryant Esqr as a Person (resident in said part of the town) best qualified, in their opinion, for that Important office— Your Petitioners mean not to dictate, but humbly pray your Excellency & honours, if you think the above named Person worthy, that he may be appointed to the aforesaid important Office &, as in duty bound, will ever pray &c—

Hubartus Neal and 38 others of the leading men of Newmarket, June 14, 1785, petitioned the House of Representatives then in session for authority to call a special meeting to make choice of a representative as follows:

Humbly Shows the Subscribers Inhabitants of Newmarket, That at the last Annual Meeting held in Newmarket for the Choice of a Representative a Vote was Obtained to desolve said Meeting without any Choice being made, Contrary to the Minds of a great Number of said Inhabitants—

Your Petitioners conceiving themselves Injured they therefore pray your Hon^{rs} would Grant Liberty to the Selectmen of Newmarket, to call a meeting to make Choice of a Representative to Represent said Town in the General Court the Current year—and as bound Shall pray &c—

John Langdon and Nicholas Gilman were delegates from New Hampshire to the National Convention, holding a session from May to September, 1787, to revise the Articles of Confederation, and September 17, the Convention sent out a new plan of government, the Federal Constitution.

Elisha Thomas, presumably a citizen of Newmarket, sent, April 18, 1788, the following petition to the President and Privy Council of New Hampshire:

The Petition of Elisha Thomas now a Prisoner in the Gaol at Dover in the County of Strafford in said State—humbly sheweth— That at the Supreme Court of Judicature of said State, holden at Dover in said County of Strafford, on the third Tuesday of April instant, your petitioner was convicted upon an Indictment for the Murder of Captain Peter Drowne of New Durham upon the fourth day of February last, upon which conviction the Hon^{ble} Judges of said Court passed upon your petitioner the Sentence of Death & appointed Thursday the twenty second day of May next for carrying into execution the dreadful Sentence. The love of life implanted by the Supreme Creator & disposer of it, in the breasts of all his Creatures, the anxious solicitude each Child of Nature discovers to grasp one short space more; added to a full conviction of the necessity of a serious & solemn preparation to meet the Judge of Judges, Empires & Worlds— induces him most humbly to implore your Excellency & Honors to respite for a space, that to you may appear reasonable, the execution of the awful Sentence,—that thereby in the fragment that yet remains of a life, like that of other Mortals greatly sullied & dishonored by frailty & imperfection; he may have an opportunity of importuning an all merciful God for the pardon & expiation of his many Sins, of Securing an interest in the sufferings of his Redeemer, and of obtaining that peace which the World cannot give, & without the attainment of which, he and all his fellow Mortals must forever be miserable—

Your Petitioner might here suggest, that he has an Innocent wife, & two remaining children, whom the hand of public Justice is about to bereave of their only hope of Support.—for whom he feels the most earnest Sollicitude— & whom he should wish might be so left, as to be above necessity—or compulsion to depend upon the cold hands of Charity—that as he is about to quit the World, he would also wish to do justice to his fellow Mortals & thereby be enabled to die in peace with all men.—From the Benevolence Humanity and mercy, which constitute so conspicuous a part of the Characters of your Excellency & Honors, he is fully sensible that your Goodness will add a few to the days of life now allotted him; and while he approaches the throne of Grace and most devoutly implores the pardon of all his Sins, he shall not cease ardently to pray, that Heaven will be pleased to bless your Excellency and Honors—with Wisdom Health & long and uninterrupted happiness, and his latest breath while employed in requesting Mercy for himself will also implore the benediction of Heaven upon you & your Posterity—

The next day two other petitions, one signed by fifty-five persons and the other by fifty-three “ladies of Dover,” were sent in asking for such reprieve, saying “if the request be granted it will afford them great sensible pleasure.” In due order these petitions were considered and a respite was granted "until Tuesday the third day of June next."

Col. Thomas Tash, January 10, 1791, resigned his commission as Justice of the Peace in favor of his son Thomas, "If the president & Counsel Sees fite to appoint him in my Room."

Chapter XVI.

THE REVOLUTION AND WAR OF 1812.

The citizens of Newmarket, like those of other towns in the vicinity, felt the chafing of the British yoke, and when the time was ripe for open rebellion for the most part were ready to take up arms for their independence. The forced reshipment and removal out of the province of two cargoes of tea, in June and September, 1774, by the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity, indicated the growing feeling of the colonists towards the mother country and heralded the coming storm. But the first overt act of the Revolution was doubtless the seizure, under the leadership of John Langdon and John Sullivan, of Fort William and Mary, December 14 and 15, 1774, with its store of arms and ammunition and all without bloodshed. Its one hundred barrels of gunpowder, fifteen cannon and sixty stand of arms, wisely secreted for the time in different localities, afterwards did good service at Bunker Hill and other places. The primal cause was the reception of the copy of an order passed by the King and Council prohibiting the exportation to America of military stores of any kind, and was precipitated by information received by way of Paul Revere's express from Boston, that the British war frigate Scarborough was to be sent to Newcastle to take possession of the Fort.

Capt. Eleazer Bennett, who died in 1851, aged 101 years and six months, who was at work December 15, 1774, in the employ of General Sullivan in his mill at Packer's Falls, received word, and went to the Fort with Sullivan, Capt. Winborn Adams, Job Demeritt, and others. Peter French was also of the company. They took a gondola belonging to Benjamin Mathes who was too old to accompany them.

A convention of delegates, meeting at Exeter January 25, 1775, addressed the people counselling peace, harmony and union among themselves, the practicing of economy, the promotion of manufactures, the avoiding of law suits, drilling themselves in military tactics, and appealing to the Divine Being to espouse their righteous cause and secure to them liberty.

Such counsel had its effect, companies were formed and drilled, and on April 19 the men of New Hampshire dropped their implements of industry, seized their weapons of war, and in companies larger or smaller hurried to the front. The women hastened to make clothes, bake bread and mould bullets for their husbands and sons, and at daylight bade them good bye with quivering lips. And later, while the men went forth to repel the invading army, the women tilled the soil, and spun yarn and wove cloth to clothe the family.

The Third Provincial Congress at Exeter, April 21, 1775, appointed Col. Nathaniel Folsom to take chief command of the troops who had gone or might go to the assistance of their suffering brethren in the Province of Massachusetts Bay. On May 18 a regiment of New Hampshire men, consisting of 584, exclusive of drummers and fifers, had enlisted, and others in Massachusetts regiments. Israel Gilman of Newmarket was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of Col. James Reed's Regiment.

The Fourth Provincial Congress, August 24, 1775, voted "That Nathaniel Folsom Esq. be the General Officer over the Militia in this Colony," and "That Col^o Nicholas Gilman be appointed Colonel of the Tenth Regt of Militia in this Colony, & Capt Jeremiah Folsom be Lieut Colonel, Lieut. Thomas Bartlett his first Major, & Capt. Stephen Clark his second Major."

This Congress, November 15, 1775, voted "That Col. Jeremiah Folsom be allowed & paid out of the Treasury the ballance of his account for fire arms amounting to Three pounds seven shillings twopence."

The Fifth Provincial Congress ordered that Robert Holmes, a soldier in Capt. George Jerry Osborne's Company, whose name had been omitted on the roll, be paid out of the treasury sixteen shillings and six pence in full for his wages, "which ought to have been entered upon the roll."

Robert Holland of Newmarket, aged 19, enlisted May 1, 1775, in Captain Moore's company, Colonel Stark's regiment. He marched with Capt. Henry Dearborn's company in Col. B. Arnold's detachment, to Quebec. He also served for Newmarket in the Fifth company of Colonel Cilley's regiment, in 1781.

The following is the pay roll of Captain Gilman's company, Col. Enoch Poor's regiment, from the time of entry, May 25, to August 1, 1775:

Andrew Nealley received for Moses Davis.

The Third Provincial Congress, June 1, 1775, commissioned Israel Gilman of Newmarket lieutenant-colonel of Col. James Reed's regiment. This regiment was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and was still encamped on Winter Hill June 21, 1775, with 455 men and officers.

Capt. Jeremiah Folsom, Capt. Hubartus Neal and James Hill were members of this Congress, meeting at Exeter April 21, 1775, and Capt. Jeremiah Folsom, Edward Parsons, of the Fourth Provincial Congress meeting at Exeter, May 17, 1775. On July 4, 1775, this Congress voted "That a Publick Stock of Fire arms shall be provided for the use of this Colony;" "That five hundred good fire arms be Provided & that a committee of three members of this body be chosen to procure them as soon as may be, and that Capt. Jeremiah Folsom, Mr. Moses Parsons and Capt. Stephen Evans be the committee for that Purpose, and that they Previously Enquire how cheap they can procure them, and make report as soon as may be to this Congress, if sitting, or otherwise to the committee of Safety, upon whose approbation they are to procure the same. Also that the committee of Safety be and are hereby Impowered to Advance out of the Treasury such sums as they shall think proper to the said Committee for procuring Materials for the Purpose of making Fire arms &c."

Wentworth Wiggin, aged 30, and Lewis Kynoston, aged 24, were mustered in Captain Adams' company, Colonel Poor's regiment, June 2, 1775.

Colonel Reed received an order from headquarters June 12, 1775, to quarter his regiment in the houses near Charlestown Neck and keep all his men as guards between his barracks and the Ferry and on Bunker Hill. Accordingly he marched his regiment the next day, and the following reported at Charlestown Neck with 539 men fit for duty and 23 sick.

The precautions taken at this time to guard against sudden attacks is shown by the following regimental order issued by Colonel Reed, dated June 15, 1775:

The main Gard this day is to consist of one Capt 2 Sub [subalterns], 4 sergeants 4 corporals and 50 privets. The Capt of the Gard is to keepe a trusty Sergeant with the Senterys in the Street below the Gard house to examine all passengers Let none pass without shoing proper passes in the Daytime and none to pass after Nine o'clock at Knight without giving the counter sine and no Sentrey is to set down on his post and when any field officer passes them to stand with their firelocks rested no soldier to swim in the water on the Sabath day nor any other Day to stay in the water Longer than is necessary to wash themselves.

The battle of Bunker Hill occurred two days after, and had the men under Prescott, Stark, Reed and Knowlton been armed with bayonets and fully supplied with ammunition they would undoubtedly have held their position against the extra force under General Howe, and not been obliged to retreat.

On receiving news of the engagement at Charlestown the Committee of Safety, June 18, directed Colonel Poor to order all his companies except that of Captain Elkins to march immediately to Cambridge.

Gen. Nathaniel Folsom, June 22, ordered 70 good effective men from the regiment of Colonel Stark and 50 from that of Colonel Reed, with arms, tools, and provisions for 24 hours, to labor on Winter Hill. Two days later tents arrived and camps were divided between the two regiments.

On the pay roll of Capt. Daniel Moore's company, Colonel Stark's regiment, August 1, 1775, were Benjamin Folsom and John Wadleigh, serving from April 23, three months and sixteen days, and Ezekiel Gilman and Andrew Wiggin, serving three months and eight days.

A company of minute men was enlisted by order of the Committee of Safety, October 12, 1775, and mustered at Portsmouth

November 22, 1775, portions of which went to Winter Hill, December, 1775.

Joseph Parsons, captain; Nathaniel Gilman, second lieutenant; Josiah Hall Bartlett, sergeant; John Foss, corporal.

The following is a list of Newmarket Minute Men, October 12, 1775:

Joseph Hall	James Sinclair
Joseph Colcutt	David Jewett,
Smith Chapman,	Jonathan Folsom
Walter Neal,	John Smith
Dudley Hilton,	John Smith, Jr.
Peter Coffin	Joseph Smith.

A company raised by the same order mustered at Portsmouth, November 24, 1775, portions of which went to Winter Hill in December, 1775, to take the place of the returning committee troops, included Peter Coffin, captain; John Hall, first lieutenant; Simeon Wiggin, second lieutenant; James Sinclair, ensign; Joshua Wingate, sergeant; Joseph Bennett, John Hill, Ebenezer Speed, Jon^a Folsom, Andrew Neal, John Mason, Josiah Beel, John Sinclair, Noah Wiggin, Joseph Smith, Joseph Louge, fifer; Samuel Chapman, and others.

Another company raised in pursuance of the same order was mustered November 25, 1775, a portion of which went to Winter Hill in December, 1775, to take the place of the returning committee troops. It included: David Copps, captain; Andrew Gilman, second lieutenant; James Pike, Seth Shackford, Anthony Vincent, William Vincent, Joshua Neal, Henry Pike, Dudley Gilman, Dudley Smart, Joseph Sanborn, Joseph Young, and others.

At the beginning of the second year of the war many persons in all our towns were suspected of toryism. The New Hampshire Committee of Safety in accordance with the recommendation of the Continental Congress, requested the selectmen to circulate papers for signatures of those offering opposition to the national government. Those over 21 years refusing to sign the so-called Association Test, excepting those refusing because of religious scruples, were accounted tories.¹ Newmarket had her share. The offensive name was given to those leaning to the British side in the war for independence. They are known now by the less opprobrious name of loyalists. Many of them were on the shady side of fifty. The ambition and enterprise of their days were gone. After the struggles of the Indian wars they desired rest, peace and quiet undisturbed by war's alarms.

Some persons, however, who were opposed to taking up arms against their own countrymen, willingly took the oath of allegiance and pledged themselves to oppose in no way the effort to secure independence.

The Committee of Safety of New Hampshire was the executive power of the government in relation to the war, and was continued in power under the first Constitution, adopted January 6, 1776, until May 29, 1784, after the close of the Revolution. It was familiarly styled the "Little Congress." It met at Exeter in a room furnished for its use by Hon. Joseph Gilman from December, 1776 to May, 1784. Samuel Gilman of Newfields served on the Committee from May 28, 1778, to April 7, 1779.

The following facts pertaining to Newmarket are culled from the Journal of that Committee:

The Committee of Safety was appointed by Congress May 19, 1775, and on May 24, 1775, gave orders to Samuel Gilman of Newfields, and nine others, to enlist each a company. This was in accordance with orders issued by the Fourth Provincial Congress to raise the second New Hampshire Regiment, of which Enoch Poor of Exeter was appointed colonel. The ten companies were to consist of 62 able-bodied effective men each.

The Committee delivered to Israel Gilman, June 13, 1775, his commission as lieutenant-colonel of the Third Regiment of the New Hampshire forces, administered the oath, and ordered him to join his regiment at Cambridge.

On June 17, the Committee received and filed a letter from Lieut.-Colonel Gilman, dated Charlestown, June 15.

It ordered the Receiver General, July 1, to pay Jonathan Robinson forty shillings being his month's pay as a soldier in Captain Gilman's company, he being home on furlough.

Daniel Rogers, November 23, 1775, was brought before the Committee as a person unfriendly to the liberties of America, but on examination the Committee exonerated him.

The Committee sent enlisting orders, December 3, to Capt. James Hill of Newmarket, and wrote to Col. David Gilman enclosing like orders for his captains. On the same day the pay rolls of the companies of Capts. James and John Hill, were examined, allowed and ordered to be paid, amounting respectively to £64, 18s., 1d. and £58, 17s., 5d. Two days later it ordered the treasurer to pay Lieut. Andrew Gilman forty shillings in part of wages due him.

The Committee, July 12, 1776, ordered the Receiver General to pay Thomas Mehany ten shillings for his expenses as a guard "bringing Samuel Dyer as a prisoner to this Town," and July 18 to pay Joseph Stacey 11 shillings "for dieting Samuel Dyer in prison." Also September 23, to pay Col. Thomas Tash seven pounds, 10 shillings, for a month's advance wages for Dr. Cook, surgeon in his regiment. It also voted a month's advance pay to Joseph Smith, adjutant in his regiment.

Orders were given Col. Nicholas Gilman, September 24, to send Benjamin Folsom "to Prison unless he pay the whole money back he rec^d to march to Ticon^d & neglected going." Also the same day gave Peter Gilman an order on the treasurer for £20, 16s., 1-2d., to pay a carpenter's bill.

Col. David Gilman marched with his regiment for New York December, 1776.

The Committee, January 21, 1777, furnished Capt. Zachariah Beal of Colonel Poor's regiment £100 bounty money for his company for which he was to give account. He received, February 14, another £100 for recruiting purposes.

John Colcord was promoted, April 19, from second to first lieutenant in Captain Norris' company. Also, April 22, papers were given to Levi Chapman of Newmarket, John Bartlett of Epping and David Jewett of Exeter, to go to Fishkill, N. Y., to drive Continental teams.

Captain Blodgett was sent, May 10, to apprehend and bring before the Committee Nathaniel Rogers and Doctor Marsters of Newmarket. Rogers was given, July 2, a parole of eight days "to tarry on his own farm and then return to prison." The same day Nathaniel Gilman of Newmarket was appointed first lieutenant in Captain Beal's company to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Robert Pike. An order for £25 was given Robert Pike "to pay Bounties to men he Enlists, for which he is to be accountable."

The jailer was ordered, July 22, 1777, to "permit Capt.

Nathaniel Rogers to remove into one of the Porter Chambers and his wife to be with him while he is sick," and the next day gave order for his liberation on his signing a parole drawn by the Committee.

The Receiver General was ordered, September 4, to furnish Capt. Jonathan Robinson £80 to pay his expenses to Albany, to be accounted for by him, and September 10, to pay Capt. Robert Pike £23, 16s., the balance due him for enlisting 41 men, "a Dollar p^r Head & Bounties paid them." Also September 12, to pay Capt. Samuel Gilman £225 to pay bounty money to the men he musters in Capt. Enoch Page's company, and Capt. Jonathan Robinson £1, 11s., 1d., the balance due him for apprehending Colonel Hall.

William Simpson and Jacob Burleigh of Newmarket, belonging to Capt. Zebulon Gilmans' company, Col. Stephen Evans' regiment, are reported as deserting October 19 and 20, 1777.

An order was given on the treasurer, January 15, 1778, for the payment of the roll of Capt. Zebulon Gilman's company, amounting to £591, 5s., 6d.

Orders were given to Peter Drowne of Newmarket, March 26, to enlist soldiers to go to Rhode Island, and £60 were put into his hands to pay bounties to the soldiers who should thus enlist. The next day the treasurer was ordered to pay Peter Folsom £3, 12s., "for mending Prison."

The treasurer was ordered, May 5, to pay Capt. Robert Pike £14 for two months' wages of Phineas Dolloff, one of his soldiers, his account as by pay roll being "two months short."

Capt. Samuel Gilman was ordered, July 20, by the Committee to muster the company enlisted by Lieutenants Pike and Pinkham, and also the treasurer to furnish him £324 to pay bounty to said company.

Jonathan Hilton, an enlisted soldier in Capt. Enoch Page's company, who did not join the army, July 12, paid back the money he had received for bounty.

The Receiver General was ordered, September 18, to pay Peter Folsom £1, 16s., for repairing "Exeter Gaol," and December 9, to pay Capt. Eliphalet Giddings for Ebenezer Smith £26, 15s., 2d., as a volunteer to Saratoga.

The Committee ordered, May 22, 1779, the Receiver General to pay the roll of Capt. Peter Drowne for his company in Col.

Stephen Peabody's battalion, amounting to £678, 5s. Also ordered Simeon Ladd, keeper of the prison, to release Philip Crommet, Jr., a soldier belonging to Whitcomb's Rangers, on the condition that Capt. Peter Drowne shall become surety for his appearance again when called for. The bond was given and placed on file.

John Neal, a sergeant in the Continental service, but then an invalid, was ordered, July 23, to proceed to Portsmouth without loss of time and put himself under the command of Colonel Dame and do duty there till further orders.

The Committee, August 20, ordered the Receiver General to pay Ebenezer Thompson £3, 10s., for Hubartus Neal for the attendance of himself and wife as evidence in the trial of Major Richardson.

The Committee gave, October 14, a permit to James Hill "to clear the Schooner Property, with fourty Bushels of corn & Ten Barel's of Cider for Biddeford in the State of the Massachusetts Bay."

The Committee wrote to Capt. Peter Drowne, May 13, 1780, to deliver Philip Crommet to Major Whitcomb's order, and on June 30, ordered the Receiver General to pay Capt. Samuel Gilman £8,019, for cattle and corn bought for the use of the state out of the confiscated estate of Governor Wentworth.

A captain, lieutenant, ensign and 55 men were drafted, July 7, for three months from Colonel Gilman's regiment, then at Kingston.

The Committee ordered, July 19, the treasurer to pay James Thurston £66, 12s., for a dinner provided by them for the entertainment of the Hon. Mr. Gerry who came by the desire of the Committee of Congress and General Washington to communicate some things relative to the state of the army.

The Committee ordered the treasurer, May 19, 1781, to pay Peter Folsom £8 "New Currency" and endorse the same on Lieut. Jonathan Perkins' "first Note for Depreciation" now in the hands of said Folsom.

On July 12, the day for hearing the dispute between Newmarket and Stratham about double returns, and between Newmarket and Northwood, was fixed for July 19. At this hearing the Committee decided that James Keniston, claimed by Newmarket and Stratham, belonged to Newmarket and Benjamin Dowe, claimed by Newmarket and Northwood, belonged to Northwood.

The Committee ordered the treasurer, November 14, to deliver to Lieut. Robert Clark his order for the payment of his roll for three months' men in 1780, and charge the State with "thirty pounds new Emission," who paid the same and endorsed it on the order.

James Thurston was paid £1, 6s., December 7, 1782, for the use of a "Hay Chase."

The Committee, March 14, 1783, recompensed William Hilton, a drummer, who enlisted at Ticonderoga in 1776 and received no bounty.

Robert Holland of Newmarket, a farmer, aged 19, was a member of Captain Moore's company, Colonel Stark's regiment, serving from the time of his entry, May 1, to September 1, 1775, when he was paid two pounds for his service. He reënlisted September 8.

The pay roll of Capt. Samuel Gilman's company contained the names of 65 officers and men, and he drew rations for that number from June 26, 1775 to July 18, and July 25 to August 5, and from July 18 to 21, for 64 men, and July 21 to 24, for 62 men. His men received, October 4, 1775, four dollars for the regimental coat which was promised by the colony of New Hampshire. Shoes were furnished to Eliphalet Coffin, Thomas Wiggin, Joseph Clark, Gideon Knight and William Pike, members of the company, at the expense of £1, 12s., 8d.

Samuel Gilman was returned as second lieutenant with Capt. James Hill's company on Pierce's Island, November 5, 1775. He enlisted February 6, 1776, in Capt. Samuel Young's company, Col. Timothy Bedel's regiment, to join the northern army under General Washington, and was on the pay roll June 24, 1776, and on the muster roll of Capt. Simon Marston's company, Col. Joshua Wingate's regiment, which marched, July 22, 1776, by order of the Committee of Safety, to Charlestown on Connecticut River, to join the northern army "wherever it might be found."

Samuel Gilman, Jr., was on the muster roll of Capt. John Mudge's company, Col. Baldwin's regiment, going to join the Continental army in New York in 1776.

Other men of Newmarket in Captain Winborn's company, Colonel Poor's regiment, were Winthrop Wiggin, a carpenter, aged 30, and Lewis Kynoston, a tailor, aged 24. Also Second Lieut. Nathaniel Thing in Capt. Richard Shortridge's company.

Reuben Roberts of Newmarket, enlisting in Capt. Jeremiah Gilman's company, Col. John Nixon's regiment, encamped at Winter Hill, September 30, 1775. In 1781 he enlisted for the war.

Robert Cameil, October 6, 1775, enlisted in the place of John Duch of Newmarket in Capt. W. H. Ballard's company, Col. James Frye's regiment, at Cambridge.

Capt. Henry Dearborn, October 30, 1776, gave the following list of soldiers who went with him to Quebec in June, 1775, and had not received pay for their service: John Bean, Robert Holland, John Pike Hilton, William Taylor, John Clark, Corp. Moses Gilman, Sergt. Joseph Thomas, Sergt. Jonathan Perkins, Sergt. Joseph Lovering, and Joseph Smith.

Under date of October 31, 1775, John Wadleigh, then of Epping, presents a bill of 36 shillings, due to Dr. Ebenezer Fisk for services, stating that he was in the American army under Capt. Daniel Moore, and in the battle of Bunker Hill, and soon after was taken sick and advised by the doctors to go home to recover his health.

Capt. James Hill of Newmarket, November 5, 1775, commanded one of the companies of Col. Joshua Wingate's regiment, stationed for the defence of Pascataqua Harbor. At the same time Capt. Samuel Baker of Newmarket commanded one of the thirty-one companies of six weeks' men.

On the pay roll of Capt. Joseph Paine's company, Colonel Senter's regiment, were Jeremiah Folsom and Elisha Thomas. The return of what remained of his company, at Newcastle, November 6, 1775, gave the names of First Lieut. Nathaniel Gilman, Sergt. Josiah Hall Bartlett, Joseph Hall, Isaac Remick, James Pickering, Levi Pickering, David Wiggin, Smith Chapman and Jonathan Folsom.

General Sullivan, by command of General Washington, November 30, 1775, wrote the Committee of Safety that the Connecticut forces have "absolutely refused to tarry till the first day of January, but will quit the lines on the 6th of Decemb^r," and asked for 31 companies of 64 men each from New Hampshire to serve till January 15, 1776. Accordingly, December 2, the Committee issued an order for the enlisting of the men.

In another letter to the Committee, December 8, General Sullivan told of the high estimation in which the New Hampshire troops are held. He said "Gen. Washington and all the other officers are extremely pleased & bestow the highest encomiums on you and your troops, freely acknowledging that New Hampshire Forces for bravery & resolution far surpass the other Colonies, & that no Province discovers so much zeal in the common cause."

Samuel Baker was made captain of the Newmarket company thus enlisted, Zebulon Barber, lieutenant; John Allen, second lieutenant. Three sergeants, three corporals, two drummers and fifers with 44 privates completed the roll.

Nearly 5,000 men from New Hampshire were in the army in December, 1775.

Zebulon Doe, aged 28, and Andrew Wiggin, aged 22, enlisted January 1, 1776, in Captain Tilton's company, Colonel Poor's regiment, and deserted the same day.

Josiah Burnam, age 24, of Newmarket, enlisted the same day in Captain Adams' company, Colonel Poor's regiment, and in the return, July 8, 1776, was reported as having been discharged, March 29.

By vote of the House January 25, 1776, the state treasurer was ordered to pay the Committee of Safety of Newmarket their account for fire rafts amounting to £39, 6s., 3½d.

The retreat of our army from Canada caused considerable alarm on the frontier. In consequence the house and council met in convention of the whole, July 2, 1776, and voted to raise another regiment of 750 men to reinforce the army, to be under the command of Col. Joshua Wingate of Stratham. Colonel Wingate afterward was directed by the Committee of Safety to proceed to Charlestown on Connecticut River to take care of the companies there and to join the northern army. The following Newmarket men were in Capt. Simon Marston's company:

Lt. Zebulon Barber	John Neal
Peter Stillings	Samuel Ward
David Robertson	Zebulon Doe
Samuel Gilman	John Watson
Benjamin Stevens	James Moody
Jacob Folsom	Peter Hersey

This company marched July 22, 1776.

On the muster and pay roll of men raised for Canada out of Colonel Evans' and Colonel Badger's regiments, were the following Newmarket men who went in Capt. Joseph Badger's company:

James Goodwin, 3d Sergt.	Moses Drown
Josiah Wiggin, 4th Sergt.	John Barber
Chase Wiggin, Corporal	John Folsom, Jr.
Asa Wiggin	William Burleigh
John Folsom	Asa Duda

Thomas Foss of Captain Adams' company, and Levi Chatman, aged 21, of Captain Tilton's company, Colonel Poor's regiment, in return made July 8, 1776,¹ were reported sick.

Ebenezer Bennick, Philip Fowler, Eliphalet Neal and Daniel Rogers, of Capt. Smith Emerson's company, Second New Hampshire Regiment, receive advance wages and bounty, to join the Continental army in New York, September 16, 1776.

Col. Thomas Tash, the old French soldier, September, 1776, led a regiment to reënforce the Continental army, who with others joined Washington in Pennsylvania, and was at Trenton and Princeton. Joseph Smith was his adjutant, and Jonathan Chesley his quartermaster.

Samuel Keniston of Newmarket was in Capt. Mark Wiggin's company, Colonel Pierce's regiment, stationed at Portsmouth, from July 22 to December 7, 1776, and Richard Critchet in Capt. Nathan Brown's company, Colonel Pierce's regiment, from September 19 to December 7, 1776.

The Council and Assembly met in special convention September 14, 1776, and voted to raise in this state one thousand men, officers included, to reënforce the army in New York, to be divided into two regiments, the first to be under the command of Col. Thomas Tash. The following Newmarket men in Capt. Daniel Gordon's company, were mustered in September 20:

Jeremiah Foss	Dudley Smart
John Meader,	Lewis Keniston
Walter Bryer, Jr.	Jonathan Robinson

¹ The striking contrast between the past and present in the way of communication will be seen from the fact that the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, July 4, did not reach Exeter until July 18, being 14 days on the way.

John Mason
Reuben Doe,
Jonathan S. Dudley
Zebulon Davis
Elisha Thomas
Jonathan Burleigh

Rufus Ewers
Theophilus Wiggins
Benjamin Pinner
Nathaniel Colby
Walter Neal.

In Capt. Jonathan Robinson's company were: John Keniston, Francis Jenness, Jr., James Keniston, Jonathan Keniston, Joshua Brackett.

In Capt. Smith Emerson's company, mustered in September 16, 1776, were: Philip Fowler, Eliphalet Neal, Daniel Rogers.

Col. Thomas Tash and Maj. Joseph Smith of Newmarket were among those sent to reënforce the army in New York, September 24, 1776. And Lieut. Zebulon Doe with the forces at Charlestown on Connecticut River, July 17.

In Capt. Daniel Runnals' company were Jonathan Dearborn, William Moore, and in Capt. William Prescott's company, Robert Fowler and Jacob Fowler.

Philip Crommet of Newmarket enlisted for the war in Maj. Benjamin Whitcomb's rangers, December 2, 1776, and deserted July 20, 1780. He returned March 1, 1784.

On the roll of Capt. Joseph Parson's company, Col. David Gilman's regiment, were Second Lieut. Joshua Weeks, John Marston and James Keniston, going to New York, and serving from December 5, 1776, to March 11, 1777.

In answer to a requisition from General Washington, the Legislature, December 4, 1776, voted to draft 500 men from the several state regiments to be sent to New York for the garrisons at Fort George and Ticonderoga. They were under the command of Col. David Gilman of Pembroke, and served till March 15, 1777, beyond the time for which they were engaged. The regiment did excellent service in the battles of Trenton, December 26, 1776, and Princeton, January 3, 1777. We cannot refrain from quoting from the letter of General Sullivan to Hon. Meshech Weare from Chatham, dated February 13, 1777: "General Washington made no scruple to say publicly the remains of the Eastern Regiments were the strength of his army, though then their numbers were comparatively speaking but small; he calls them in front when the Enemy are there; he sends them to the rear when the Enemy threaten that way; all the general officers allow them to be the best of Troops. The Southern officers and Soldiers allow it in times of danger, but not all at other times. Believe me, sir, the Yankees took Trenton before the other Troops knew anything of the matter more than that there was an engagement.

. . . At Princeton when the 17th Regt. had thrown 3,500 southern militia into the utmost confusion, a Regiment of Yankees restored the day. This Gen^l Miffen confessed to me:—though the Philadelphia papers tell us a different story.”

Thus New Hampshire troops honored themselves in these two battles and did their full share of the work during the year.

The loyalists of 1776, as a class, were men of wealth, education, and respectability, many of them holding offices under the crown. It is no wonder they hesitated to go into rebellion, leading many who leaned to the royalist side to come over to the patriots.

Among the loyalists of Newmarket there were none, who, by the act of November 19, 1778, were proscribed and banished. It does not appear that any one suffered confiscation. Among the tories in town none were prominent enough to cause much trouble. The women of that day had their politics as well as the men.

Philip Crommet of Newmarket enlisted in the Independent Corps of Rangers under Maj. Benjamin Whitcomb, December 2, 1776, and deserted July 20, 1778.

Elisha Thomas of Newmarket served as sergeant in Captain Gordon's company, Colonel Tash's regiment, in Verplanks, N. Y., in 1776, when he was wounded in the hand by the bursting of his gun, so as to unfit him for garrison duty, and he was discharged November 30, 1776. He was awarded a pension in 1787, to commence July 31, 1786, of 24 shillings a month for the above disability. On the pension roll of November 28, 1789, he was noted as dead.¹

Jonathan Prescott enlisted in Maj. James Norris' company, third regiment, January 7, 1777, for three years, and was discharged January 27, 1780. He also served at West Point in Capt. Henry Battle's company, Col. Bartlett's regiment, from July 13 to October 25, 1780.

Eleazer Neal was corporal in Capt. Isaac Frye's company,

¹ Received sentence of death for murder with date of execution finally fixed for June 3, 1788.

Colonel Scammell's regiment, enlisting for the war January 20, 1777, promoted to a sergeant October 8, 1777, and died December 1, 1777.

Walter Neal of Newmarket was one of 19 men under Capt. John Haven sent to Newport, Rhode Island, to guard prisoners, serving 16 days from January 26, 1777. Captain Haven took charge of 56 prisoners with orders to turn them over to the commander of the British troops at Newport.

On the muster roll of Capt. Michael McClary's company, Col. Alexander Scammell's regiment, were James Colby and Jonathan Prescott, mustered February 6, 1777, and Jonathan Mason and Samuel Baker, mustered March 4, 1777, all of Newmarket. Captain McClary was killed in battle at Saratoga.

Jonathan Mason of Newmarket in a petition dated March 10, 1780, states that he enlisted in Maj. James Norris' company, Third Battalion of New Hampshire troops, February 12, 1777, and served till the retreat from Ticonderoga when he had the misfortune of being taken prisoner by the enemy "from whom he soon after made his escape." He received supplies from the town in 1779 and was discharged, January 30, 1780.

Barna McBride of Newmarket was mustered February 13, 1777, in Capt. James Norris' company, Col. Enoch Poor's regiment, for continental service, and received £20 bounty.

Benjamin Chapman enlisted February 21, 1777, in Capt. Solomon Cushman's company, Col. Timothy Bedel's regiment, for Canada, serving till his discharge, March 31, 1778.

In March, 1777, Newmarket had 242 men from 16 to 50 years of age in Col. Nicholas Gilman's regiment, of New Hampshire Militia.

Jonathan Bean enlisted in Capt. James Gray's company, Col. Scammell's regiment, March 8, 1777, for three years, and was discharged April 20, 1780.

Jonathan Folsom enlisted in Capt. James Gray's company, Colonel Scammell's regiment, for three years, March 29, 1777, and deserted February 1, 1778. He was returned by the selectmen of Newmarket as soldier, July 6, 1781.

John Shute enlisted for the war for Portsmouth March 29, 1777, deserted May 1, 1779, and returned and joined May 1, 1780, Col. Henry Dearborn's regiment. Portsmouth furnished supplies for his family from March 30, 1780, to June 1, 1781.

Seth R. Shackford enlisted for three years in Capt. Isaac Frye's company, Colonel Scammell's regiment, April 1, 1777, and was killed October 7, 1777.

Edward Taylor enlisted for three years, April 10, 1777, in Capt. Daniel Livermore's company, Third Continental Regiment, Col. Alexander Scammell, and was discharged April 10, 1780.

Benjamin Taylor was a soldier in the third company, First Regiment, Col. Joseph Cilley.

Joseph Sanborn enlisted for Newmarket for three years in the first company, Third Regiment, Col. Alexander Scammell, April 16, 1777, and was discharged April 16, 1780.

On the pay roll of Capt. George Tuttle's company, Col. Stephen Evans' regiment of militia, joining General Gates at Saratoga, were Philip Fowler, Samuel Chesley, William Smart, Nathaniel Stevens and Eliphalet Tufts, serving from September 8 to October 19 or 20, 1777, all of whom deserted.

On the pay roll of Capt. Jeremiah Gilman's company, Colonel Stickney's regiment, which marched to reënforce the Northern Continental Army, July 20, 1777, were Benjamin Perkins, drummer, Joseph Perkins, John Brown, John Hicks and Thomas Young.

Elisha Thomas of Newmarket enlisted in Capt. Stephen Dearborn's company, Col. Thomas Stickney's regiment, April 14, and was discharged September 28, 1777. The company marched to join the Northern Continental Army. He received a bounty of £4, 10s., and travel money, September 8, 1777, in Capt. Joseph Parson's company, Lieut.-Colonel Senter's regiment, going to Rhode Island August, 1777. He enlisted in the company July 7, was mustered in at Warwick, R. I., December 10, 1777, and on the pay roll from July 7 to January 6, 1778. He was on the pay roll of Capt. Nathan Brown's company, Col. Jacob Gale's regiment, from August 5 to August 25, 1778. He enlisted for North Hampton in Capt. Jonathan Leavitt's company, Col. Hercules Mooney's regiment, July 7, 1779, to join the army at Providence, R. I., for its defence, and was on the pay roll till January 9, 1780. The selectmen of North Hampton, July 10, 1779, paid him £30 bounty, and £12 travel money to Providence, R. I.

Simeon Wiggin, fifer, Joseph Hill and William French, were members of Capt. John Folsom's company, Col. Moses Kelly's regiment, from August 4 to August 28, 1778, marching to Rhode Island.

Capt. Samuel Gilman was muster-master of Capt. Enoch Page's company, September 20, 1777, pursuant to orders from the Committee of Safety, to muster in and pay bounty to the men. This company of 63 members seem to have been in Col. Joseph Senter's regiment, marching to Rhode Island.

John Mead served in Capt. Nathaniel Ambrose's company, at Saratoga, from September 30 to October 27, 1777.

Lieut. John Colcord was enrolled as one of the officers of the second battalion, November 7, 1776, as reorganized, April, 1777.

In committee of claims, Exeter, October 4, 1782, Josiah Gilman "certifies that the Town of New Market advanced to Continental Soldiers for Bounties & supplies seventy three pounds nineteen shillings and five pence equal to good money (before the year 1780) which is charged to them in their depreciation accounts £73-19-5."

Josiah Gilman, Jr., states, March 25, 1785, that the "supplies to the Soldiers by Newmarket in 1780, 1781, & 1782 amount to one hundred fifty two pounds five shillings & eight pence, which has been deducted from their depreciation. £152-5-8."

William Neal was a soldier at Newcastle from October 13, 1785, to February 13, 1786, from June 13 to September 13, 1786, and from September 14, 1786, to January 14, 1787.

James Cobbey of Newmarket, a member of Captain Bancroft's company, Col. Ebenezer Bridge's regiment, Twenty-seventh Massachusetts, by reason of a wound by a musket ball entering "the rim" of his abdomen and passing out at his right hip, disabling him for service, under the resolution of Congress of June 7, 1785, was granted a pension of 20 shillings per month.

Walter Bryent makes oath, July 18, 1781, that Benjamin Dow, son of Jeremiah, who had been apprenticed to Asael Blake of Northwood, was a resident of Newmarket, and had been a soldier in the army, having bought his time of his master, and expected that "Newmarket would Do something for him, as he was returned for Newmarket, &c."

Simon Dow, brother of Benjamin, and Thomas Bartlett, make depositions confirmatory to the above.

James Colby of Newmarket, aged 44, became an invalid unfit for duty, and was pensioned in 1787, receiving $3.30 per month. He belonged to Colonel Bridge's regiment of Massachusetts and was paid to July 31, 1789, possibly longer.

Deacon Drown had a brother Peter in the war who crept between the lines and secured a horse belonging to the British, and sold it to an American officer for $150.

We give the following:

Return to the Men that were Inlisted or Hired for three years or during the War Belonging to the fourth Regiment of Militia in New Hampshire to compleat the three Battalions of the Continental army for Newmarket: Samuel Baker, Jonathan Mason, Reuben Roberts, Ebenezer Bean, Caleb Clark, James Moody, Jona Stone Dudley, Barnabas McBride, William Downs, Samuel Ward. John Folsom, Jonathan Folsom, Joseph Sanborn, James Kennistone, Benjamin Dow, John Foss, Thomas Foss, John Smart, Oxford (negro), Philip Crommet, James Remick, James Gooding, Benjamin Folsom, John Barter, Aaron Rollins, Winthrop Wiggin, Dav Watson, James Colby, Robert Mitchel, Daniel Remick.

The new community suffered great inconvenience for want of a circulating medium. There was but little money in the settlement. Most business was done by means of barter. Corn, beans, poultry, pine boards, short lumber and shooks took the place of money. In the emergencies arising from the Indian wars, the government was compelled to issue bills of credit. All such bills authorized before 1742 were called "Old Tenor," and the issue of that year and subsequently to the Revolution were designated as "New Tenor." Over issue led to depreciation, bankruptcy, embarrassment and distress. The depreciation of continental money wrought financial ruin to large numbers of the people. Continental bills at par January 1, 1777, by June, 1781, were passed for 12,000 per 100.

So far as New Hampshire was concerned the Revolution was achieved by public spirit and voluntary action rather than by obligation and law.

In 1786 the state of New Hampshire was agitated in regard to the issuing of paper money which should be receivable as a tender in payment of state taxes, fees and salaries of public officers. Taxation was oppressive. Debts had accumulated during the war. The circulating medium was deficient. A bill was introduced in the Legislature authorizing the issue of paper money to the amount of 50,000 pounds to be lent at four per cent. on the security of real estate and receivable as tender in payment of taxes and debts. Copies of the bill were sent to the several towns, and the opinions of the voters were to be expressed in open town meeting. In this town the vote was against the emission of such paper. A majority of the towns voted in the same way. The remedy, it was seen, would ultimately prove a greater evil. The disaffected in the state held conventions in several counties and resorted to an armed intervention to obtain redress of grievances. This is what is known as Shay's Rebellion, led by Daniel Shay, which included some 12,000 or 15,000 young men throughout New England. On September 20, of that year, some 200 insurgents, one half of them mounted, under Joseph French of Hampstead and others, marched by way of Kingston to Exeter, surrounded the judicial and General Courts, and kept the Legislature prisoners for several hours. They demanded the issue of paper money to relieve the pressure of the times. President John Sullivan addressed them, saying: "You ask for justice, and justice you shall have." The cry was then raised, "Hurrah for government! Here comes Hackett's artillery." The mob dispersed and bivouacked west of Little River. The next day 2,000 armed men under Capt. Nicholas Gilman marched in pursuit. Col. Joseph Cilley of Nottingham with his cavalry forded the stream and seized the ringleaders and led them to jail. With the uprising of the citizens the movement was crushed out in a few hours. Colonel James Hill was on the court martial for the trial of the insurrectionary officers, accused of "stirring up and exciting the citizens of this state to levy war against the same."

War with Great Britain was declared June 19, 1812, and produced great consternation among the people. The political sentiment of Newmarket was largely in opposition to the war, and voluntary enlistments were few, consequently most of the men were drafted. These soldiers were quartered at the Plains at Portsmouth ready for service when called upon, but had little opportunity to show the measure of their heroic qualities.

We give the roll of Capt. Peter Hersey's company from May 24 to July 6, 1814:

Chapter XVIII.

RELATIVE TO CHURCH MATTERS.

For more than forty years Rev. John Moody was the only minister, and his church the only church in Newmarket, but after 1750 there was great uneasiness in the religious mind. The passion for liberty, political and religious, ran into extravagance. Not a few were restless under the customs and doctrines of staid orthodoxy. New modes of expression and worship came into vogue that strangely jarred and contrasted with the decorous notions and customs of what was reproachfully called the "standing order." The support of religious institutions by taxing the people was regarded as an infringement of religious liberty. The story of the "standing order taking the last cow from some poor family to pay the minister" was told again and again.

This stir and revolt was largely the result of the preaching of Rev. George Whitefield who came to New England about 1740. His followers were called "New Lights" or "Separatists."

Rev. Nathaniel Ewer, who was ordained by the Separatists at Barnstable, Mass., in 1750, came to Durham, Lee and Newmarket in 1772. He gathered a congregation and built a meeting house at the Plains. This was called the "West Society,"—Presbyterian rather than Congregational in polity. Mr. Ewer proved so attractive that Mr. Moody was left with a small congregation at the Centre several years before he closed his pastorate in 1777. The people of Newmarket had never hesitated to petition the General Assembly for such legislation as at the time would be to their greater advantage. The following petition was signed and sent by Jeremiah Folsom, Josiah Adams and Wentworth Cheswell, agents for and in behalf of the town of Newmarket, November 7, 1777:

Humbly Shews That the Inhabitants of said Town being divided in Religious Sentiments; and the Circumstances of the Town not admitting of a local Division into two Parishes at Present: They have mutually agreed upon a Division between the Congregational & Presbyterian Societies by Poll.—In which Case neither Society having any legal Authority to call or settle a Minister of the Gospel in any way but as Individuals, nor can they Respectively as Seperate Bodys, vote assess or collect any Sums of Money for the Support of the Gospel nor Transact any other Prudential Affairs of the Ministry—which obvious Difficulties being increased by a Vacancy in the Ministry of one Society—The Inhabitants in legal Town Meeting Assembled the 3^d Inst mutually agreed upon a Mode of Division by Polling as by the Journal of said Meeting appears—and appointed the Subscribers Agents to petition this Hon^{ble} Court for Leave to Bring in a Bill to recognize & establish said Division: and enable said Societies respectively to transact the Prudential Affairs of their Ministry seperately in the same Manner the Town might do if united—Which we humbly pray your Honours to take under Consideration; and grant such Relief as to your Honours shall seem meet.

The petition was granted.

The members of the West Society, January 10, 1778, sent to the town clerk of Newmarket, Josiah Adams, the following notification:

We the Subscribers desire our Respective Names be Entered as Members of the Western Society in the Town Agreeable to Charter.

Jeremiah Folsom, Walter Bryant, Junr. Wm. Burleigh, James Cram, Thomas Bennet, Will Renton, Arthur Bennett, Levi Folsom, Joshua Bracket, Aaron Kinnison, Nich^o Harford, Jon^a Wiggen, W^m Burleigh, Jr, Zebulon Duda, Smith Chapman, Rufus Ewer, Benj^a Tayler, John Folsom, Josiah Burleigh, Jon^a Roberson, John Watson, David Wiggin, Joseph Smart, Robert Gooding, Jacob Ames, Joseph Young, Joseph Joy, John Young, Nicholas Doe, Edward Smith, W^m Simpson, Jacob Durgan, Thomas Wiggen, Joseph Gilman, John Cook, Joseph Clark, John Meeder, Elizabeth Folsom, Samuel Burleigh, Simeon Folsom, Edward Hilton, Asa Folsom, Thomas Kinnison, Walter Bryant, Josiah Hilton, Ichabod Bracket, Charles Smart, Israel Gilman, Jacob Burleigh, Jun, Gamalil Ewer, Job Savage, Zebulon Doe, Lewis Kinnison, Benjamin Chapman, Jon^a Doe, Elizabeth Hilton.

The following were received April 12, 1779:

Nathaniel Gilman, Zebulon Neal, Jonathan Colcord, Junr, Stephen Hardy, Nath^{le} Rogers, John Marster, Theodore Carlton, John Mighels, John Neal, E. Mighels, Samuel Mighels, William Shute, in behalf of Sam^l Smart, Nath^l Rogers, in behalf of Josiah Smart, Nath^l Gilman, Dudley Smart, Joseph Shute, Jeremiah Young, Jeremiah Foss, John Mead, Eliphalet Colcord, Peter Colcord, Ebenezer Speed, Michael Shute, Junr, Anthony W. Carpenter, Stephen Liford, Francis Durgin, George Hart, Thomas Tayler, Ede Hall Bergin, Joseph Weeks, David Gilman.

James Gilman was received March 31, 1782, Daniel Hilton, April 5, 1782, and "W^m Boardman, Eliz. Boardman, Vincent Tar, John Young Jur, Benj. Vernam, James Smith," March 2, 1784.

The town clerk, Josiah Adams, attests the above names as a true copy of those belonging to the Western Society in New-market.

The meeting house, which had stood for more than sixty years in the old burying ground at the Centre, had a sounding board, a steeple and a belfry, but no bell. As it began to show signs of decay the parish contemplated building a new one. A committee was chosen September 14, 1788, consisting of Capt. Edward Hilton, Capt. Samuel Gilman and Capt. Hubartus Neal "to treat with the East Society respecting the place where their meeting house should stand to give the best satisfaction."

It was voted December 15, 1788, "that the selectmen shall board up the windows in the old meeting house at the expense of the town."

The committees of the East and West Societies made reports February 2, 1789, "respecting the union of the said societys building a new meeting house." The old parish voted June 29, 1789 "to receive and except the Rev. Mr. Ewer for the ministry of the whole town provided the two societies in said town shall unite."

We find as late as March 17, 1790, that the location of the contemplated new meeting house had not been fixed, but "May 30, 1791, a committee, consisting of Maj. Daniel Tilton, Ichabod Hilton, Cornet Wentworth Smith, Bradstreet Gilman, David Chapman, Capt. Hubartus Neal, Jr., and Jeremiah Young, was authorized and empowered to build said meeting house at General Hill's without any expense to the town, by the sale of pews." A plan for the house was presented by Henry Wiggin, and October 24, 1791 "most of the 54 floor pews and 27 gallery pews were sold at auction." The following is the list of purchasers and number of pew each purchased:

14	General Hill

Gen. James Hill gave bond that he would give "a deed of warranty of land opposite to his house sufficient to set the meeting house on provided the committee proceed and compleat the same."

A "public vendue" was held November 7, 1791, at the house of Gen. James Hill. Henry Wiggin bid off the building of the new meeting house at 765 pounds, and Thomas Drowne bought the old one on the following conditions:

1 the old meeting house shall be struck off to the highest bidder as it now stands.

2^d The person to whom the same shall be struck off shall give his obligation to the committee . . . to pay them or their order jointly and severally the purchase sum in cash, Beef, fish Rum and boards or either of said articles at the cash price—

The meeting house was erected during the year 1792 according to the plan. On January 9, Mr. Wiggin presented a schedule of the spars, spar-shores, etc., for raising the meeting house as follows, viz:

- 4 Spruce spars for shores 44 feet long—6 inches at the top end.
- 8 raising shores 36 feet long, 4 inches at top end, spruce or hemlock.
- 6 spruce spars 30 feet long, 4 inches at top end.
- 20 pick poles from 12 to 20 feet long with iron picks and ferrels.

On May 14, “Voted that the following articles be provided for the raising of the meeting house, vizt:

60 gallons good West India Rum, 3 Quintals of fish, 3 Bbls Cyder.—provided by Mr. Drown 1 Bbl cyder.—7 Bushels Potatoes 75^{lbs} Butter 12^{lbs} Coffee 1-4 C Sugar

“Voted that Mr. Jeremy Young be appointed to provide the articles for Raising the meeting house.”

Mr. Smith, Ichabod Hilton and Captain Neal were appointed “to provide house & cooking the Provisions for raising the meeting house and Superintend the Intertainment.”

The new meeting house was erected at the Junction of the Newmarket and “Ash Swamp” roads. It was a stately edifice with two rows of windows and three entrances—a steeple above the main entrance, which was at the end of the building facing the road to Newfields, at the apex of the triangle upon which the house stood. The high pulpit with “sounding-board” above it stood opposite the main entrance, and upon the wall in gilt letters upon a black ground was the inscription

O Thou that hearest prayer
Unto Thee shall all flesh come. Ps. LXV. 2.
1792.

There were galleries on three sides. Two “horse blocks” were outside. It had no bell. The article which was in the warrant, March 28, 1796, “to paint the meeting house and purchase a bell” was dismissed.

Wentworth Cheswell had care of the meeting house in 1794-95, and Amos S. Hill in 1807-09, at $3 per year.

At legal meetings of the East and West Societies, held separately, May 29, 1793, in the new meeting house, Ichabod Hilton, Dr. Nathaniel Kidder and Capt. Andrew Gilman were chosen a committee to petition the General Court for a repeal of the act passed November 27, 1777, dividing the two societies. The committee in their petition give as the reason for their act that "The Operation of which [the Act of 1777] from Experience has been found to be very inconvenient & prejudicial to the Intrest of the parties concerned." The petition was dated June 5, 1793, and granted in the repeal of the act, June 13, 1793.

The tax list of March, 1794, was distinguished by separation into town and ministerial rates, and the selectmen instructed the constable: "if any Person or Persons neglect or refuse to make payment on his, her, or their share or proportion set against their names respectively in said List, you are to Levy the same by distress."

On July 21, it was "voted nem con that the town join with the church in giving Mr. Samuel Tomb a call to settle in the ministry as a colleague with Mr. Ewer." Provision was also made for his settlement and salary. Philip Fowler, James Cram and Zebulon Doe in behalf of "the Presbyterian church of Newmarket," and James Hill, Edward Hilton, Wentworth Cheswell, Joseph Young and Andrew Gilman, a committee of the town, extended a call to Mr. Tomb, July 28, giving among other reasons the following: "Our dear pastor being advanced in Life & under such bodily Indisposition as not to be able to discharge all the various duties of a Minister."

Rev. Samuel Tomb, who was born in Wallkill, N. Y., January 1, 1767, and studied at Columbia College, and with Rev. Dr. John Mason, accepted the call to Newmarket, and was ordained October 22, 1794, with Mr. Ewer, moderator of the meeting, and Rev. William Morrison of Londonderry, preacher of the sermon from I Tim. 6:20. A number of Congregational ministers were present and participated. The church at Stratham, Rev. James Miltimore, pastor, was invited. Its records say, "Letter missive was read from the church at Newmarket, the 2 Sab. Oct^r. 1794: Voted compliance, and y^t. D^r. Lane, J. Lane & B. Green attend."

With the new meeting house, a beloved pastor and a talented young colleague, and the two societies united once more, an era of prosperity for the Newmarket society seemed in prospect. But troubles soon multiplied. Mr. Ewer, as a "New Light" preacher, had attracted many from the old church and pastor, Mr. Moody. Now the Baptists appeared in the town and won many from the "standing order." Dr. Samuel Shepard had founded a Baptist church at Brentwood in 1775 and by "indefatigable labors" established branch churches in Stratham, Nottingham, Lee, and other neighboring towns. Elder Elias Smith was ordained pastor of the church in Lee in 1792. He was a gifted speaker and gained much influence in the vicinity. He married, January, 1793, Mary, daughter of Josiah Burleigh of Newmarket, and several of the Burleigh families and others became Baptists. He afterwards preached at Portsmouth.

This hastened the revolt against paying taxes to support a church with which the tax-payer had no sympathy. In March, 1796, the selectmen of Newmarket were sued at law for refusing to abate the parish rates of the brothers, William and Samuel Burleigh.

At a meeting held August 8, 1796, Ichabod Hilton, William Boardman, Richard Hilton and Daniel Hilton were chosen agents in behalf of the parish as defendants in the lawsuit.

The selectmen had the right to abate rates, if best, as will be seen by the following act of the General Assembly passed July 2, 1776:

Every Person having Eighteen Shillings ratable Estate including his Poll, and every Freeholder shall be deemed a legal Voter in all Affairs of the Town or Parish where he dwells. . . . And the Selectmen and Church Wardens of the several Towns and Parishes within this Colony shall have Liberty to make such Abatements of any Persons Rates, as shall, or may appear to them to be equitable and just.

An effort was made March 26, 1798, to refer the matters in dispute with the Burleighs to three "disinterested men." A proposition to refer it to "three of the Presbyterian and three of the Baptist societies" was refused September 17, 1798; but it was "voted that the levy of the Execution the Town has against Wm. Burleigh be suspended until further orders," and again April 1, 1799, that it be "postponed six months agreeable to his request." On March 31, 1800, the selectmen were "impowered to negotiate all matters with William Burleigh & the Baptists respecting the demands against William Burleigh and the demand the Baptists have against the Town."

On March 29, 1802, it was finally "Voted To leave to the selectmen to adjust the Execution against William Burleigh with the Baptist Society."

About this time others seceded from the "stated ministry," and in 1797 Elder John Osborne of Portsmouth "laboured with them," and their numbers increased somewhat. They held meetings in barns, school houses and private dwellings, and later seem to have met at times in Mr. Ewer's old church at the Plains.

Rev. Mr. Tomb was a talented and able preacher, but the relation between the two pastors and the multiplying sects in the congregation failed to make a harmonious and cordial connection.

An ecclesiastical council convened April 27, 1797, by mutual request of the pastors and church. The council found occasion to reprove both the aged and the young pastor, also the members of the church "who have left the stated ministry and ordinances in the usual place of worship to follow strangers—contrary to gospel orders." This council failed to reconcile the parties, and the breach between the church and parish widened. The salary of both pastors was in arrears. Difficulties multiplied and the whole community was greatly agitated. At a stormy parish meeting held July 10, 1797, the resignations of Mr. Ewer and Mr. Tomb were accepted, and they were accordingly dismissed.

A committee was chosen August 7, 1797, and the selectmen directed "to hire preaching for three months—to except all those persons that they know have polled off to any other society, but not to abate the minister's rate committed to Constable R. Pike to collect." It was voted March 26, 1798, "to hire Rev. Seth Noble¹ to supply the desk six months and that every person entering his dissent any time before the taxes are made shall be exempt from paying any part thereof."

The following document shows the method of procedure in becoming identified with a religious society to secure exemption from the payment of ministerial rates:

To the Selectmen or Town Clerk of Newmarket. This is to let you know that Peter Colcord has applied for a certificate, desiring to Join the Baptist Society, and we have received him.

Bradstreet Gilman, Clerk.

February ye 8th 1799.

¹ Seth Noble was born in Westfield, Mass., April 15, 1742, and died in 1807.

Mr. Gilman was clerk of a branch of the Baptist Church organized in Epping under the pastoral care of Rev. Mr. Shepard. It does not appear that it ever was incorporated, nor is it known when it became extinct. Mr. Gilman was chosen deacon.

At the annual meeting April 1, 1799, the town "Voted to hire John Osborne to preach in the new meeting house for the term of six months." But Mr. Osborne was a Baptist and many objecting, another parish meeting was held April 22, and the vote to hire Mr. Osborne was reconsidered.

It was not until June 19, 1800, that the town and church reached an agreement, and a formal call was extended to Rev. James Thurston "to settle in this town as a gospel minister."

Joseph Young, Hubartus Neal, Philip Fowler, James Cram, Timothy Murray and Samuel Pickering were on the committee of the church, and Walter Neal, Joseph Young, Jr., William Boardman, Daniel Smith and Aaron Deale, of the town, to carry this vote into effect. Rev. Nathaniel Ewer expressed his "cordial approbation."

Rev. James Thurston was the son of Capt. James and Mary (Jones) Thurston, born in Exeter March 17, 1769. He was a student in the first class of Phillips Exeter Academy, but not a college graduate. He married October 9, 1791, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Shaw) Peabody. He accepted the call to Newmarket August 24, 1800.

Accordingly at a meeting held August 25, 1800, it was voted

That the Ordination be appointed on the third Wednesday of October next. That a Committee be appointed to Join the Committee of the Church to make the necessary arrangements & provision for the Ordination, free from any expense for their time. That John P. Williams, Nathaniel Kidder Esq., Jeremy Mead, Daniel Smith & Hubartus Neal Jun., be a Committee for arranging the Ordination &c. agreeably to the above vote. That the Selectmen be directed to see that the meeting house be shored and well secured on the Ordination day. That Mr. Thurston have liberty to be absent from the desk three days in a year.

At the Ecclesiastical Council convened for his ordination October 15, 1800, Rev. William Miltimore of Stratham gave the sermon from Rev. 14:6; Rev. Curtis Coe, of Durham, the charge to the pastor; and Rev. William Pidgin of Hampton, the right hand of fellowship. The sermon, charge, right hand of fellowship, and Mr. Thurston's answer to the call of the church were printed.

At this time some of the members who seceded had returned to the church, while others joined the church in Lee over which Elder John Osborne was ordained in November.

It may be well to state here the existing conditions in the community as affecting the cause of religion.

In 1800 there were no Sunday schools nor Bible classes. Even the catechizing of children had been suspended, and the catechism, and with it Bible study, went out of use in families. The sacramental lecture had been discontinued because so few attended it. There were no meetings for social prayer; seldom a week-day lecture or more than forenoon and afternoon exercises on the Sabbath. The new movement of charitable societies and Sunday schools, missionary and Sunday school concerts excited alarm in the minds of some respectable people as tending to enthusiasm and irregularity.

Intemperance and its consequent misery and poverty also abounded, and some good farms were spent for rum.

No agitation like that of paying parish dues¹ has since arisen. A fire was kindled before which neither minister nor congregation could stand. The Christian laborer is worthy of his hire. To love and prize the Gospel we must support its preaching. To be taxed for its support should not be considered a burden, but a privilege. Such investment returns large interest in worldly profit. But some were determined not to pay a minister tax. They seem to have supposed it might be a public benefit and certainly a private boon, to be released of the encumbrance of a settled minister.

In 1803 the number of tax payers in town was 277, and of ministerial tax payers, 158. In 1808 the latter numbered 79, and in 1809, 89.

In 1801 it had become strictly true that conflicting interests and party feuds existed in the nation. Washington had warned the people against party names and measures, and now party spirit had risen high in the Republic. The whole body of the people had ranged under the banner of one or the other of the contending parties. Only in history can we recall the turmoil of those days when differing parties strenuously opposed each other. Disaffected persons adopted rough methods to show their political prejudices and preferences. Our modern differences are only fresh gales compared with the earlier storms of party. Families were divided, brother against brother, and influenced by directly opposite political interests. In the latter part of the century many of our churches had sunk into a bad state of declension. The ebbing current had impaired some of the foundations of social and religious progress. Seasons of commotion usually originating in political struggles had threatened to destroy the foundations of religious society here. The religious and local affairs of the people were blended with their political excitements.

Congregational ministers in those days very generally adhered to the political doctrines of the Washington administration. There was in the nation a strong and zealous party whose political sentiments were of a different character, who considered the influence of Congregational ministers an obstacle to their political progress.

These were the conditions when Mr. Thurston began his ministry in Newmarket. In 1803 a parsonage was purchased. Mr. Thurston was chosen chairman of the school committee March 13, 1804. The next year, March 25, 1805, at his request it was "voted to give Mr. Thurston twelve cords of wood annually" and to increase his salary "Twenty pound for the present year." This increase of salary was repeated April 28, 1806.

A committee appointed to examine the selectmen's accounts reported, March 25, 1805, "Upon the whole, as the Town & Ministerial accounts are so blended together, the short time we have had to examine, do[es] not permit us to make a more particular Report. . . . Only it is said that there is now due from the Town to the Ministerial Society about Two hundred & twenty dollars."

The next year April 28, 1806, the warrant was made out to "Persons qualified by law to vote in the Congregational ministerial affairs," and the society's meetings were no longer held in connection with the annual town meeting.

Early in 1808, Mr. Thurston requested a "dismissal from his ministerial office." We find that January 6, 1808, it was "Voted Mr. Thurston a dismissal agreeable to his request," that he "have the Thanks of the town for his labour of love & kindness among us during his ministry with us;" also "the use of the Parsonage till the first day of April next."

After the departure of Mr. Thurston the church was without a settled pastor for many years, though with many preachers.

Mr. Thurston was subsequently installed at Manchester, Mass., April 19, 1809, where he remained in the pastorate till June, 1819. In 1820, he returned to Exeter where he died December 12, 1835. He possessed a truly Christian spirit, was thoroughly devoted to his calling, and gave to it his undivided powers. His efforts were blessed and his ministry was a successful one. His wife survived him, dying October 15, 1845, aged 71. Two of their nine children were buried in the cemetery near the Junction. Their son, James, was born in Newmarket December 11, 1806; fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy; graduated at Harvard College, 1829, and at the Divinity school, Cambridge, 1835. He was a Unitarian, and had pastorates at Windsor, Vt., Billerica, South Natick, Cambridge, and Leicester, Mass. He was agent for a time of the Massachusetts Temperance Society, and after the rebellion a teacher among the freedmen at Wilmington, N. C. He died at West Newton, Mass., January 13, 1872.

The town could not and would not settle as minister one who was not thoroughly educated according to the standard of the times and of decided orthodox views. Yet the people preferred to secure to themselves a minister of the gospel in accord with their cherished convictions. They were aided in this by their dislike of orthodox Congregationalism. Some, if not decided Baptists, did not incline to sympathize with orthodox Congregationalism.

The parish voted, April 11, 1808, "That the selectmen be authorized to let out the Parsonage for the ensuing year to the best advantage for the benefit of the society;" and again April 27, 1808, "That the selectmen shall open the meeting house doors to admit any minister of Respectable character that they Judge proper to Preach."

REV. JOHN BRODHEAD.

In 1808, Rev. George Pickering, a Methodist, and member of the New England Conference in 1793, who married Mary, daughter of Benjamin Bemis of Methuen, Mass., and made his home there, left his charge in Boston to be missionary-at-large. He always wore the Quaker-like dress of the first Methodist ministry. His itineracy brought him to Portsmouth, where he was heard by Dea. Thomas Drowne, and, by permission of the church, invited to Newmarket. He soon came and at the close of his sermon, Dea. Paul Chapman rose and said, "We wish to hear you again concerning this matter." Mr. Pickering responded "I will come again in two weeks, God willing, or send a better man." At the time specified Alfred Medcalf preached, and was soon after employed as minister.

In a parish meeting, December 8, 1808, it was "Voted that all those persons who wish not to pay anything towards preaching may have liberty to enter their dissent with the Town Clerk in ten days; . . . that the sum of twenty cents & so in proportion on all rateable estate be raised & applied for hiring Mr. Medcalf till the whole be expended; . . . that the selectmen be directed to employ Mr. Medcalf to preach so long as the money be expended, and that they shall provide a place for his board." Again April 3, 1809, "Voted That the selectmen be authorized to let out the parsonage to the best advantage for the purpose of hiring the Rev. Alfred Medcalf to supply the desk till it be expended; . . . that thirty cents be raised on the poll & so in proportion on all rateable estate to hire Mr. Medcalf, giving liberty to all to enter their dissent in ten days." The parsonage was struck off to David Chapman for forty dollars.

Mr. Medcalf married Sophia W., daughter of Josiah Adams of Newfields. She died September 14, 1812. Mr. Medcalf finally settled in Greenland, and died there June, 1837.

Rev. John Brodhead, a Methodist preacher, was appointed April, 1809, to a circuit including Portsmouth, Newmarket and Durham. He came to Newfields village and lived in the "Major Norris" house on the site of the present Universalist Church. The parish, April 10, 1810, voted "that Mr. Brodhead have the use of the Parsonage the present year, and that he supply the Desk with preaching till the worth thereof be expended . . . to raise thirty cents on a poll & so in proportion on all rateable Estate for the use of preaching the current year; . . . that the Bible belonging to the society be returned to the Desk immediately; . . . that the Selectmen call on all that are delinquents in payment to the Society to make payment immediately; . . . that they have a Subscription paper to collect money for the use of preaching; . . . that they open the meeting house doors to any regular preacher when there is no Methodist preaching."

Similar society action was taken, giving Mr. Brodhead the parsonage and other compensation by tax or contribution till 1823.

On March 29, 1817, the " Ministerial Society in Newmarket " effected a more complete organization by choosing Samuel Pickering, moderator, Daniel Hill, parish clerk, John C. Fowler, collector, Samuel Pickering, Winthrop Hilton, Jr., Jeremiah F. Young, wardens, John Kennard, Jeremy Mead and Nathaniel Young, " a committee to procure the Bible and other church matters belonging to the Society & lodge the same with the wardens."

In the summer of 1818, the parishes of Newmarket, Stratham, Kittery, and perhaps others, enjoyed the novelty of a woman preaching in their pulpits. In Newfields, August 7, 1818, we have the record, " A woman preached in this Town, and many flocked to hear her;" and at Stratham, August 9, 1818, " Our meetings were very thin; most of the people went to hear a woman which preached with the Baptists."

About this time the eccentric Lorenzo Dow, a heavily bearded man, then a great curiosity, appeared in the Newmarket pulpit. As he entered he stripped off his coat and threw it one side, rolled up his shirt sleeves and announced his text from Canticles, 5:3, " I have put off my coat, how shall I put it on?"

The first Sunday school in Newfields was opened by Miss Ann Coe, daughter of Rev. Curtis Coe. This was in the spring of 1818 at the old centre school house,

The " Toleration Act," passed in 1819, provided " that no person shall be compelled to join or support any congregation, church or religious society, without his express consent first had and obtained." " And any person may (if connected with a society) by leaving a written notice with the clerk of the society, be exempt from any future expenses &c." This led to the formation of religious societies whose members taxed themselves. On the whole this has doubtless been best, as it has taken the matter out of the arena of local politics, and enabled each religious society to know its friends.

More particulars need to be given of the parsonage. Rev. Mr. Moody had lived in his own house. Rev. Mr. Ewer had a home at the Plains.

Rev. Mr. Tomb, April 1, 1795, bought of Jacob Gilman twenty-eight and three-fourth acres of land with buildings adjoining the old centre burying ground. This estate Mr. Gilman had received from his grandfather, Jacob Fowler, June 24, 1790. It was sold by Mr. Tomb, to Enoch Hale, Jr., April 18, 1798, his wife Mehitable relinquishing her right of dowry.

The procuring of a parsonage had long been held in contemplation, but no decisive action was taken till February 14, 1803, when it was voted "to pay David Wiggin $900 for house and land formerly owned by Mr. Tomb." The purchase was made March 21, and the property deeded May 30, 1803 to the "Inhabitants of Newmarket," by Robert Pike, Daniel Smith and Samuel Pickering, committee, "To be and remain a parsonage for the use of the minister of the Congregational persuasion that shall be settled here;" for Mr. Thurston's use "so long as he shall continue to be the settled Congregational minister of said town & then forever after."

Mr. Brodhead occupied the parsonage thirteen years, 1810-23, and six of his children were born there. After he left it it was repaired and rented.

Winter congregations met in the old centre school house as early as 1817, and in the academy in 1818 and onward. The Society voted April 19, 1819, to "lay out something for repairs on the meeting house." When the academy was conveyed, May 24, 1825, to the Newfield's school district a reserve was made that the building should be "free for all denominations to hold meeting in at all times when not occupied for a school."

Piscassic was for a long time largely a community by itself for school, religious and social purposes. It is not certainly known that Samuel Pease of Bald Hill road had not received his title of deacon before his removal to Maine at the close of the Revolution. Samuel Shepard, a doctor and Baptist minister, had a deacon of his branch church at North River, Bradstreet Gilman, a man who magnified his office whether civil or ecclesiastical. Elder Shepard's death in 1815 was carefully entered by Josiah Smith in his family Bible. This family in 1824 welcomed Elder Thomas Cheswell, a Free Baptist, to hold meetings in their house. Rev. Elias Smith, once a Baptist minister at Lee, had married Mary Burleigh of the Bald Hill road, and was influential in all the social life at Piscassic. Rev. John Osborne was always a welcome visitor among the Piscassic farmers whether he came to preach, or to levy contributions of produce for his large and needy family. Elder Israel Chesley, a Christian Baptist, was connected by marriage with the Hersey family and was gladly welcomed there and in all the neighborhood for many years. Private dwellings, school house and chapel, were in constant requisition for religious meetings down to the death of Elder John Foss in 1884.

As new business interests were springing up at Newfields and Lamprey River it became impossible to gather the people for worship at the old centre any longer, and some change was made necessary. Hence in 1825 the way seemed prepared for establishing a Congregational church at Lamprey River Village. During that summer Timothy Chamberlain, chorister of the Tabernacle Church, Salem, Mass., who was superintending the erection of a mill, conducted religious services in the warehouse of the company reading a sermon and leading in singing. By his request the Pascataqua Association, at its meeting in Durham, July 19, 1825, appointed Rev. Messrs. Federal Burt and Jacob Cummings "to visit the village and agent of the Factory Co. at Lamprey River, to make inquiry whether a stated lecture may be established among them every Sabbath evening & make proposals for this purpose." The committee reported at the meeting in Eliot, Me., August 16, 1825, and the Sabbath lecture was established. This led later to the establishing of a Sunday school, a regular preaching service, and the organizing of a church March 27, 1828.

As the manufacturing establishment of the village was growing in importance and the population increasing, the Methodists, in accordance with the true spirit of their mission, thought best to have a house of worship and the regular means of grace more accessible to the people. Through the personal influence and faithful efforts of Rev. John Brodhead a site was secured free, and deeded November 16, 1827, to Rev. John Brodhead, Elhanan W. Fenner and Benjamin Wheatland, trustees, the church was built and dedicated the same month, and in the spring of School House Newfield N.H.

1828 the church was organized. In July of that year Rev. Samuel Kelly was appointed pastor.

The first Baptist meeting house in Lamprey River stood near the residence of G. K. Leavitt. Rev. John Osborne, a prominent Christian Baptist, was the first preacher. Services were held there from 1827 to 1836 when a Freewill Baptist church was built in the village. Rev. Daniel P. Cilley was the first pastor.

Chapter XX.

EDUCATIONAL—SCHOOLS AND LIBRARY.

Religious freedom necessarily involves the priceless boon of secular education. The right of private judgment presupposes knowledge and education. Hence the duty of the state to educate her children. Education was a passion with our Pilgrim Fathers.

One of the earliest records of Boston, of the date of April 2, 1635, says, "It was generally agreed upon yt our brother Philemon Purmout shall be intreated to become schoolmaster for ye teaching and nourture of all children with us."

We quote the School Law of 1647:

It being one cheife project of y^tould deluder, Satan, to keep men from the knowledge of y^e Scriptures, as in former times by keeping them in an unknowne tongue, so in these latter times by perswading from y^e use of tongues, y^t so at leaste y^e true sence & meaning of y^e originall might be clouded by false glosses of saint-seeming deceivers; y^t learning may not be buried in y^e grave of our fathers in y^e Church & Commonwealth, the Lord assisting o^r endeavors:

It is therefore ordered y^t every township in this jurisdiction, after y^e Lord hath increased them to y^e number of 50 householders, shall then forthwith appoint one within their towne to teach all such children as shall resort to him to write & reade, whose wages shall be paid either by y^e parents or masters of such children, or by y^e inhabitants in generall, by way of supply, as y^e major part of those that order y^e prudentials of y^e towne shall appoint; provided those y^t send their children be not oppressed by paying much more than they can have ym. taught for in other townes; & it is further ordered y^t where any towne shall increase to y^e number of 100 families or householders, they shall set up a gramar schoole, y^e master thereof being able to instruct youth as farr as [that] they may be fited for y^e university, provided y^t if any towne neglect y^e performance hereof above one year, y^t every such towne shall pay £5. to y^e next [nearest] schoole till they shall perform this order.¹

In New England it has been a steady and governing principle, from the very foundation of the Colonies, that it is the right and duty of Government to provide, by means of fair and just taxation, for the instruction of all the youth in the elements of learning, morals and religion.¹

In the earlier days schools were taught in private houses, and not unfrequently barns were used as school rooms. The various divisions of the town for school purposes were first called "classes," but later "districts." Some of the teachers of those days were strict disciplinarians even for those times. Mischievous boys were accustomed to get sundry raps from ferule and cane.

At a meeting held in Exeter the first Monday in April, 1703, it was voted "that the selectmen shall hire a schoolmaster for a whole year and order him to keep school three months in the old meeting house, and the rest of the time according to their discretion at Lt. Samuel Leavitts, Jonathan Robinsons, Richard Hiltons and William Taylors—each one to provide the schoolmaster with convenient house room and fire wood."

It was also voted "that the old meeting house shall be sold by the selectmen, and a school house be built at the town's expense and set below Jonathan Thing's house next to the river."²

At a meeting, May 20, 1706, held for making choice of a schoolmaster, it was voted "that the town hire a schoolmaster."

At a meeting held the first Monday in April, the town voted to build a school house on land bought of "Mr. Coffin by ye new meeting house, . . . to be 30 feet in length & 20 feet in breadth & 8 feet stud."

On March 25, 1728, the town voted that the parishioners of Newmarket shall be free from paying for the school in Exeter town provided they "keep a school among them Selves att their own Charg."

The first school in Newfields was at Richard Hilton's at the old garrison, probably in 1703, as it is recorded that "ye schoolmaster is to keep school at Richard Hilton's," he "to provide s^d schoolmaster with housrome & fire wood convanient."

Dates of the erection of school houses are not known. A school house at Pine Hill, which the children in the vicinity of the Junction and Ash Swamp attended, was on the south side of the hill beyond the Catholic cemetery. The road at that time passed around the hill easterly.

² Exeter Town Records, vol. 2, p. 97.

Piscassic had a school house early on the present site. The present building was erected in 1875. The first school house in Newfields village was on Main street, corner of Hilton Avenue, north of the "Elm House." Among the teachers who are remembered as teaching in that building, were Dudley S. Palmer, afterwards publisher at Concord, "master Clough," "master Ordway," Mark Lane, the Misses Sally and Mary Adams, and Miss Coe.

The first Methodist Academy in New England was opened at Newfields in 1817. The building stood on the hill where the present school house is located. When the academy was removed to Massachusetts in 1825, the school district, through its committee, Hall J. Jenness, Charles Lane and Henry Wiggin, purchased the lot and building, with this proviso: "Said building was built & occupied for an academy & a reserve is made in the sale that it shall be free to all religious denominations to hold meetings at all times when not occupied for a school, said school district to support the fence round said land." This building, which had a hall in the second story, was used for school, religious and town meetings till 1854, when a new building was erected with two school rooms on the first floor, and a town hall above. The old academy building was sold and removed, and is still standing as a private dwelling, with porch and belfry—the bell having been stolen—removed, between the pattern shop and the Wiggin store. The primary school building was built in 1859. The school and town hall building, built in 1854, was destroyed by fire January 25, 1907. A new school building, without a hall was built on the same site and was first occupied November 13, 1907.

The resident members of the Grand Army of the Republic, May 17, 1890, presented the schools with the national colors, and on the following day they were hoisted on the grammar school building. The flag was presented by H. Jenness Paul, and accepted in behalf of the school by Austin J. Neal. Speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Fitts, Rev. Mr. Trickey, and the teacher, Charles Strout.

The veterans raised a new flag on the Centre school building, May 31, 1897, replacing the one given by them in 1890.

A flag for the new school building, the gift of the Village Improvement Society, was raised on Memorial Day, 1908, the flagstaff having been given by Daniel R. Smith. The veterans' flag of 1897 was first raised, saluted, and lowered by them, following which the new flag was raised, saluted by the school children, and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the audience.

Notwithstanding the prevalent feeling among the Methodists against a "man-learned ministry," Rev. John Brodhead strongly urged the necessity of an educated ministry, and mainly through his efforts and influence the first Methodist academy in New England was started here in 1817, with Rev. Moses White, A. M., as its first principal. The institution was incorporated in 1818 as the "Newmarket Wesleyan Academy," and Mr. White was succeeded by Rev. Martin Ruter, who was born in Sutton, Mass., April 3, 1785. He was one of the noblest sons of New England. No mistake was made in appointing him to the academy. His self-culture was a remarkable example of the acquisition of knowledge under difficulties. He became a very learned and scholarly man, a good debater and writer, an able preacher and leading educator East and West. His influence was important in promoting studious habits among the preachers. He now sleeps on the bank of the Brazos in Texas.

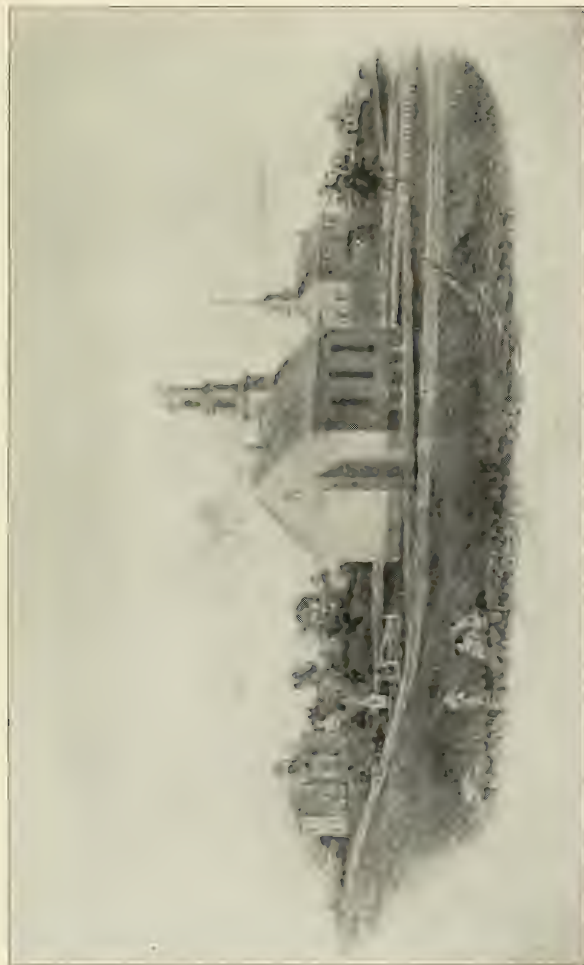

For a few years the school prospered, but Ruter went West, and it was deemed best to seek another location for the school. It was removed in 1824 to Wilbraham, Mass., and still flourishes as "Wesleyan Academy."

The one student to bring fame to the Newfields academy was Rev. Edward T. Taylor, the sailor-preacher who ten years later found in Boston his life-work and wonderful renown as Bethel preacher and evangelist of the sea. While a student of the academy in 1818 he roomed with Charles Lane in the house of Jeremy Colcord, now owned and occupied by Rufus Sanborn. Taylor was no student, but he was bright in debate and an adept in interesting wayside and school house congregations.

When Taylor was to preach in the evening, Lane would read the Bible to him. If a verse was reached that attracted Taylor's attention, he would cry out "Stop there, Lane; put your finger there; read that verse again, again, again; that will do." And the verse would be his text.

In 1884 Charles Lane was the sole survivor of the pupils.

Amasa Buck started a second school in 1835, called "Franklin Seminary." The new academy building was upon the hill opposite the first academy. Mr. Buck aroused great enthusiasm among his pupils in the study of nature. He had a valuable cabinet.

William T. Harlow, Erastus O. Phinney and a Mr. Langley succeeded Mr. Buck as principals. It was an excellent school, prepared youths for college, and for a few years was well patronized by the young people of both sexes from neighboring towns. A few are still living who attended it. It came to be a Methodist institution, and was under the patronage of the New England Conference. Again the location was deemed undesirable and a new Conference Seminary was established at Northfield in 1845, and removed to Tilton in 1863, where it continues to live in a very flourishing condition.

The building was sold to Amos Paul and was the first building of the Swamscot Company on the west side of the railroad track. The bell was taken to Northfield.

Among the many faithful and successful teachers for a longer or shorter time it is worthy of note that Miss Harriet E. Sanborn taught in the village schools more than thirty-two years, in many cases teaching two generations of a family.

We append the names, as far as ascertained, of those who availed themselves of the excellent educational advantages of Phillips Exeter Academy, with the date of entrance; also college, of which certain afterwards became students.

LIBRARY.

At the annual town meeting, March, 1880, the town accepted "with gratitude" the legacy of $10,000¹ bequeathed by Dr. John M. Brodhead for the purchase of books for a town library. At the same time the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That Mr. Brodhead's being the first gift to the town,—his name shall be perpetuated by calling the institution which his generosity endows, by his name, the Brodhead Library.

Dr. Brodhead also bequeathed his private library to the town, though the legacy was not to be available till after the death of his widow.

The New Hampshire legislature having passed an act, approved April 11, 1891, "To Promote the Establishment and Efficiency of Free Public Libraries," and providing for the appointment of a State Board of Library Commissioners to carry the act into effect, the town of South Newmarket, with the prospect of receiving it, deemed it best to accept the assistance offered by the state, and under a special article in its annual warrant, March 14, 1893, "Voted to accept the conditions proposed by the state in regard to public libraries," and "appropriated $50 for the use and maintenance of its Free Public Library." The selectmen, April 14, 1893, appointed three persons as library Trustees "for the care, custody and distribution of the books furnished by the state in a manner satisfactory to the State Board of Library Commissioners, and the trustees attended to the duties assigned them.

Josiah H. Whittier, Secretary of the State Board of Library Commissioners, called upon the trustees April 18, 1893, to pledge the town to establish a free public library, to appropriate annually a sum not less than $25 for the use and maintenance of said library, to secure a fitting place for keeping the library, to appoint a librarian, to make suitable regulations for cataloguing, shelving and circulating the books, and to insure the books received by gift from the state. Upon complying with these conditions, the state would furnish the town books to the value of $100.

By the kindness of C. B. Stuart, a place for the library was secured in his store, where it was of comparatively easy access. One hundred volumes were received from the state in the month of August. The Ladies' Book Club generously placed their valuable library of 408 volumes in the care of the trustees in December. The heirs of Dr. John M. Brodhead also placed his private library of 520 volumes of standard authors, in superior binding and of great value, in the custody of the trustees, to be guarded and circulated in the town. Other volumes of a miscellaneous character, comprising many Congressional reports and documents were added for the service of special inquirers. Thirty-three additional volumes were received from various sources, making a total of 1,061. They were insured for $1,000 February 20, 1894.

The library was opened for the circulation of books September 23, 1893. The first persons to apply for distribution cards and receive books on the evening of its opening were Lewis C. Hall, Charles J. Leddy, Susie M. Stuart, George E. Andrews and Mrs. Ida S. Stuart. During the first six months 176 distribution cards were given out. As is generally true, the call for fiction has been much greater than for any other class of books.

The patronage given the library during the years of its existence has made increasingly manifest the wisdom of its establishment. The original trustees were Rev. James H. Fitts, George S. Paul and Harriet E. Sanborn, and Edna H. Paul, librarian.

Practically there was no change in conditions and methods from 1894 until the death of Mr. Fitts, who was foremost in the movement for its establishment, and served as chairman till his death in 1900. His unobtrusive oversight and wise and kindly counsels endeared him to his co-workers, and they, with all other friends of the library sincerely mourned his loss. Mrs. Fitts was elected to fill her husband's unexpired term. In 1901 the Brodhead Library fund came into the town's possession.

In 1902 a reading-room was established in connection with the library.

In 1904 the building in which the library was located was removed from the village, and the library found quarters in the adjacent house, where two adjoining and connecting rooms were attractively fitted for library and reading-room purposes.

In 1906 the library joined the "Library Art Club" and receives "varied and valuable exhibits of photo copies of the works of the masters, ancient and modern." These are much enjoyed by the patrons of the library.

On the reading-room table the following magazines may be found: American Boy, Century Magazine, Current Literature, Country Life in America, Garden Magazine, Granite State Monthly, Harper's Monthly, Harper's Weekly, Human Life, Judge, Ladies' Home Journal, Life, McClure's, National Geographic Magazine, St. Nicholas, World's Work, Youth's Companion and the Exeter News-Letter. These magazines, excepting the latest number, may be taken on a borrower's card.

The average weekly circulation from 1894 to 1909 has been 57, from 27 to 129. More than 4,000 volumes were circulated in 1909. Many valuable books for reference are not circulated. The average percentage of fiction called for has been 56.

The following persons have served as trustees:

1901—Mrs. Mary C. Fitts, Harriet E. Sanborn, George S. Paul.

1902—Harriet E. Sanborn, George S. Paul, Emma P. Conner.

1903—Harriet E. Sanborn, Emma P. Conner, Eugene C. Patridge.

1904—Emma P. Conner, Eugene C. Patridge, Harriet A. Paul.

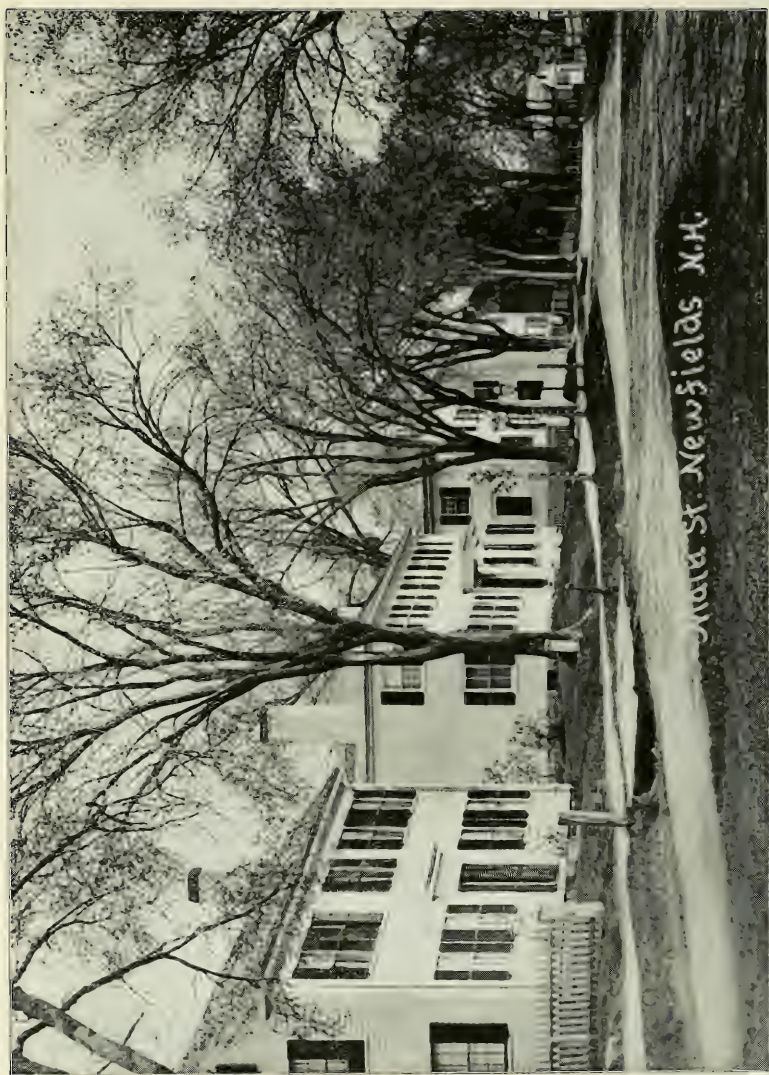

1905—Eugene C. Patridge, Harriet A. Paul, A. W. Richards.

1906-08—Harriet A. Paul, Rev. Otis Cole, A. W. Richards.

1909-10—Harriet A. Paul, A. W. Richards, Eugene C. Patridge.

Edna Hobbs Paul (Mrs. George S. Paul) has served continuously as librarian.

The dwelling house in which the library is now located is the property of the Misses Isabel and Harriet A. Paul, and the rent and electric lighting are most kindly given by them, but it seems unfortunate that the town cannot afford to build a more commodious and safe home for its large and valuable library.

Chapter XXI.

BUSINESS INDUSTRIES.

The extensive forests of this section were the most valuable possessions of the first settlers. As early as 1650 there are records of timber for masts marked with the "Broad Arrow" as belonging to the Crown, reserved for the king's navy.

Mr. Edward Hilton erected a sawmill on the Piscassic in 1653 and from that time mill sites were in great demand.

The lumber business of Newfields early assumed large proportions. An immense amount of timber from the "Oaklands" the "Mast-way" and "Ash Swamp" was hauled to the "Landing" at Newfields and floated to Portsmouth. A large number of men and oxen were thus employed. Tradition recalls one massive pine mast eight feet in diameter at the butt end and 111 feet long, requiring the strength of 70 oxen to draw it to the river side. Masts and lumber from this region were shipped abroad from Portsmouth.

Gen. James Hill got out the timber at Newfields for the America, a warship of 74 guns, built at Portsmouth under the personal supervision of John Paul Jones, launched November, 1782, and immediately presented to France by the United States government. It was the largest and heaviest war ship that had been built on this side of the Atlantic—an honor to Pascataqua shipwrights and our forest oaks!

As early as 1665 fish from the Squamscot was an important article of commerce, and was exported to France and Spain.

Previous to the Revolution trade with the West Indies was very profitable. Deal boards, masts, pipe-staves and shooks were sent, and sperm oil, molasses and spirits returned directly to our wharf. There was also a valuable coastwise trade as far south, at least, as Virginia. Pork, beef and pelts were the principal shipments, and rice, sugar and tobacco the returns.

To what extent ship-building was carried on in Newmarket before the Revolution it is impossible to tell. No records of the business are available, but it was an important industry both at Lamprey River and Newfields. At one time seven vessels were on the stocks in the shipyard of Lamprey River, and the "Landing" at Newfields was a very busy spot. So pressing was the work that the shipwrights were exempted from military training. In 1778 the privateer General Sullivan was overhauled and refitted at Newfields Landing. The Shutes, Badgers and Gen. James Hill were the principal ship-builders of that period.

The ship-building and commercial interests of Newmarket were seriously injured by the war of 1812. After the spring of 1813 our seacoast was blockaded by a British squadron. Three years of blockade practically destroyed ship-building on the Squamscot. Among the last to engage in the industry at Newfields were Zechariah Beals, Dudley Watson, Samuel G. Tarlton and George Hilton. The last vessel built here was the Nile in 1827. When we were a ship-building town the launching of a ship was an event of great importance and interest. Men, women and children, all attended, and refreshments were provided for all. The ships were floated to Portsmouth where they were rigged and prepared for sea.

Brick making was an early industry of Newfields. The most important kilns were located along the banks of Cobbey's Brook, so called, on either side of the highway, within easy reach of water transportation on the river.

Previous to the Revolution our village boasted a skilful silversmith—William Cario.

The Squamscot furnishes no mill site in Newfields, but there is an excellent water privilege on the Piscassic, about a mile from the village. This is believed by some to be the site of Edward Hilton's first mill. While this may be disputed we know a mill was erected on this site early in the history of the town, and was known for about a century as "Hall's mill." In later times, known as "Neal's mill," it was owned by a stock company, the stock being divided into 24 shares, each share entitling the holder to one day's privilege in the use of the mill. For many years a controlling majority of the stock was held by Samuel Neal, and after his death by his son, Daniel G. Neal. This mill was thoroughly equipped as both grist and sawmill, having attachments for planing and matching boards, and did a large business. After the coming of portable mills the business declined. The mill was not kept in repair, and was swept away by a freshet in February, 1900.

In the early records the creek or brook next south of Mr. Hilton's home is often mentioned. It separated or parted his estate from the Exeter town lands and was sometimes called "Hilton's parting brook." The second Edward Hilton built a saw and gristmill upon this brook west of the Exeter road. About 1720, Capt. Edward Hall was in possession of the estate immediately south of the "parting brook." His grandson, Capt. John Perkins, built a gristmill on the brook east of the Exeter road. About 1820 this mill was purchased by Charles Lane, formerly of Stratham, and enlarged. Mr. Lane was a tanner, and the mill was used for grinding bark and fulling hides. The grinding of bark had been done by horse power previously and the use of a mill for this purpose was considered "a great advance."

In the lower story were pits or vats for tanning. Later, about 1840, he built an addition to the mill for the purpose of sawing shingles. There has been no mill on the site since 1867. Mr. Lane was also a shoemaker and had apprentices.

Winthrop Hilton, son of Ichabod, was tanner and currier. Prior to 1800 his tan pits were on the west side of the Exeter road near Hilton's or Pease's Brook.

Nathaniel Lord was hatter and had a shop adjoining his house, on the site of Amos Paul's house. Both house and shop have been torn down.

John Kennard was brass-worker and Newfields' clock-maker. Henry Wiggin, Jr., was a cabinet maker and made cases for Mr. Kennard's clocks. Mr. — Folsom was trunk and harness maker. His house and shop stood on the street near the store of James A. Spead. Both were afterwards removed to the rear of the lot.

Capt. Archibald McPhaerdis of Portsmouth was leading proprietor of the first iron works in America. He was at the head of a small company which commenced the manufacture of iron from the ore at Lamprey River.

In 1719 an act was passed by the Legislature for the encouragement of iron works within the province. The "two-mile streak" was granted to John Wentworth, George Jaffrey, Archibald McPhaerdis and Robert Wilson, "proprietors of the iron works lately started at Lamprey River for their encouragement and accommodation."

Captain McPhaedris built the "Warner house" of Portsmouth. Some of the iron fixtures now in use in the mansion were from the Lamprey River Iron Works. We have not been able to learn how long the iron works were in operation. Captain McPhaedris died in 1729.

The iron works were quite an important industry established in Newfields in 1830. The first blast was blown on Christmas day. The works were owned by John Kennard, Temple Paul, Freeman Drake and Lincoln Drake. They were afterwards purchased by George O. Hilton, Amos Paul, John B. Rider and Joseph Skinner, and in 1834 were incorporated as "The Newmarket Iron Foundry." Its officers were Amos Paul, president; George O. Hilton, treasurer; Amos Paul, John B. Rider and Joseph Skinner, directors. The company manufactured castings for cotton and woolen mills, and stoves which at one time was an extensive part of the business. As this was almost the only foundry for casting heavy machinery in this region, the business increased rapidly.

In 1846 the Swamscot Machine Company was incorporated by the Legislature with George O. Hilton, Amos Paul, Seneca C. Kennard, Walter E. Hawes and Ira Chamberlain as incorporators, and a capital stock of $200,000, all paid in. Amos Paul was chosen agent. This company purchased the Iron Foundry Company's works in 1865 and united both branches of the business. It manufactured all kinds of machinery and gas pipe. The manufacture of engines and boilers was commenced soon after, and some of the finest and best have been made there. The manufacture of gas and steam pipe and fittings was added, and placed on sale with George K. Paul & Co., 98 Milk Street, Boston.

The number of men employed ranged from 230 to 300, and the monthly pay roll is said to have risen to $11,000. This distribution gave a vigorous impulse to the village and the town. Much of this prosperity is attributable to the late Hon. Amos Paul, the agent of the company.

Years of difficulty and disaster, however, came. Mr. Paul in advanced age retired, and the company's works passed in October, 1893, into the hands of receivers. The total assets were estimated at $333,646.10, and liabilities in the neighborhood of $250,000. Frank P. Cotton, of the receivers, issued the following statement in regard to the matter: "The directors of the company hope that by their action in applying for the appointment of receivers the creditors may be fully paid and the company's plant be preserved to continue its business, which gives employment practically to the whole town of Newfields."

According to the figures returned for the year ending January 1, 1881, the Swamscot Machine Company paid out for labor a sum equal to $10 a month for every man, woman and child in the town; and including that paid out by the locomotive and mill works of George E. Fifield, swells the amount to $13.

Ultimately the machinery was sold and also the vacated shops, and became the property of Walter B. Grant, Esq., of Boston. Since then the foundry has been in active service under the direction of Christopher A. Pollard, giving employment to from 20 to 60 men according to the demands of the business.

George E. Fifield for many years had a machine shop opposite the railroad station, where he did repair work of all kinds of machinery, and also manufactured steam engines, sawmills, steam fittings, tools, etc. His sales were largely in the south where his engines and mills secured high repute.

Mr. Fifield's locomotives were of a peculiar pattern of his own invention, most of them going to Georgia, and used on wooden tramways, though adapted to iron rails as well. The boilers were upright instead of horizontal, and the engines combined many modern improvements.

In 1865 Charles H. and Rufus Sanborn, Levi L. Pollard and John F. C. Rider bought of the Ira Choate Company the brass foundry which he sometime earlier had put in operation. The business then was known under the name of the Union Machine Company. After a few months Mr. Rider became sole owner. Under his management prosperity was assured and 36 men were employed. In the midst of his success, in April, 1869, the buildings were burned down, and were not replaced. The brass business in part, went to the Swamscot Company, and the balance of patronage was dispersed. These brass works were located on Main Street, just south of the house long owned and occupied by Simeon Locke.

Chapter XXII.

HALF-CENTURY OF CHANGES, 1800 TO 1850, AND INCORPORATION.

The period from 1800 to 1850 was marked by great and radical changes in the customs and methods of a century and affected every phase of the industrial, social, domestic and religious life of the people.

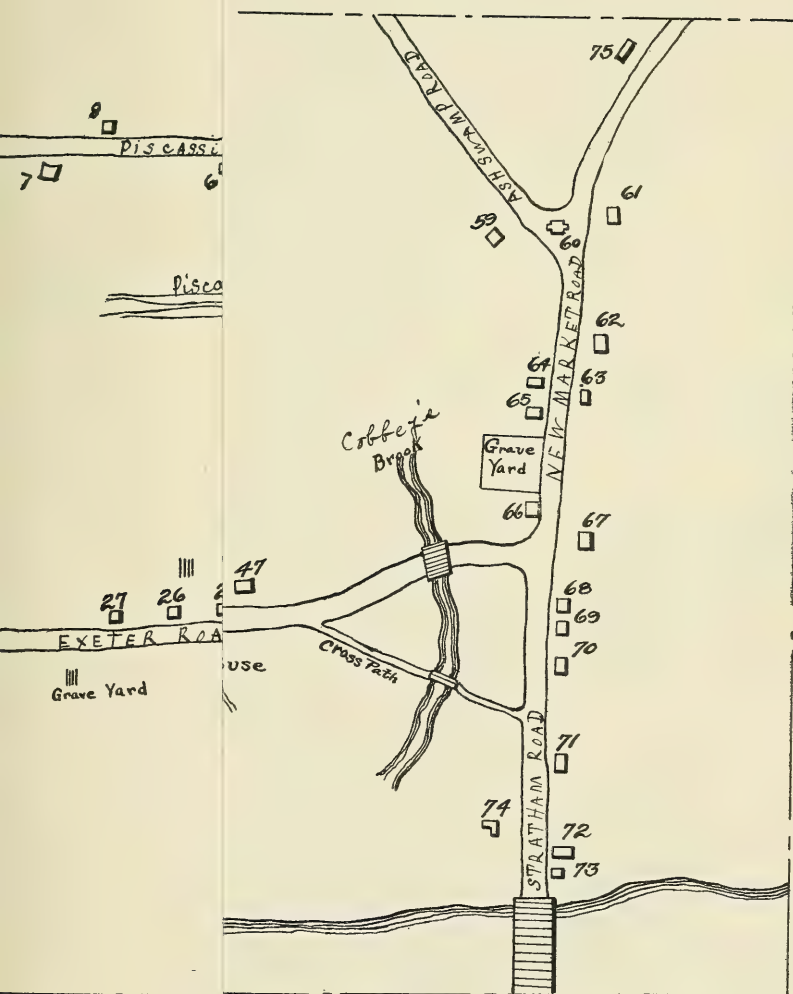

An era of road-making and bridge-building rendered conspicuous the years from 1790 to 1820. During that time no less than thirty turnpikes were constructed in New Hampshire, and fifty bridge companies were incorporated. Stage routes were opened in all directions, the number of post offices rapidly increased, and mails were transmitted with much greater regularity. The sound of the stage-driver's horn and the crack of his whip enlivened country life, and stage taverns became centres of interest and activity. Two lines of stages passed through Newfields from Dover to Boston, one line going by way of Haverhill, and the other by Newburyport. The stages reached Newfields about 9 a. m. and were due in Boston about 5 p. m. Returning the next day they reached Newfields about 5 p. m. The fare to Boston was $2.50.

A line from Portsmouth to Concord passed through Exeter and Raymond. Bids were made for the privilege of keeping a stage tavern where horses were changed, refreshments and lodgings provided for travelers. Captain Treadwell and Abner Stinson were near neighbors and rival inn-holders at the Junction. Sometimes one accommodated the stage and sometimes the other. In 1810, and prior to that date, the principal taverns in Newfields village were the "Shute House," and "Lord House." Later came the "Elm House" kept by Mrs. Mehitable Wiggin, and the taverns of Captain Clark, Lucian Pike, and Captain Pike in Piscassic. Numerous other so-called taverns flourished from time to time for longer or shorter periods. Many of them were merely for the sale of spirituous liquors, no effort being made to provide other entertainment for man or beast. Prior to 1825 the use of intoxicating beverages was universal in social life, and great quantities were provided and consumed on all public occasions. Beginning about 1818 a temperance movement swept over New England like a tidal wave. Public sentiment was strongly aroused, and practically all the ministers and very many influential citizens became "total abstainers," and by 1835 a barn could be raised without the use of strong drink.

The town records, up to 1819, were burdened with matters relating to the meeting house, the minister, his salary and firewood, and the parsonage property. In many towns the most exacting and complicated part of the duties of the selectmen were those relating to the adjustment of church and parish matters. All this was changed by the passage of the "Toleration Act" which exempted the citizens from taxation for the support of the church and ministry, and granted equal rights and privileges to all religious denominations. During the next twenty years five churches were built in the two villages of the town, and the old parish church was used as a town house.

There was no city in New Hampshire in 1820. Portsmouth was still called "the metropolis." Exeter was the second largest village in the state, Newfields was the most prominent part of Newmarket, and the post office centre for the whole town. But the starting of the cotton mills at Lamprey River in 1823 made a great difference in the relative importance of the two villages. Newfields was soon outranked in population, business activity and general prosperity. In fact business interests at Newfields were declining at this time, the old industries dying out and as yet no new ones had taken their places. For this reason great interest and enthusiasm were aroused by the opening of the "Iron Works" in 1830, and the building of a foundry in 1834. This business was successfully conducted for many years and proved a benefit to the community.

On December 10, 1834, the post office at Newfields received the name of South Newmarket. At that time James Coleman was postmaster.

The Boston and Maine Railroad from Boston to Haverhill was completed in 1838, and the stage line was discontinued beyond the latter city. The stage connected with the cars at Haverhill and passengers from Boston reached Newfields at noon. Such "rapid transit" was most astonishing and was attended by great excitement. Interest in the railroad steadily increased as the work advanced toward Newfields, and many interested spectators watched the upturning of the sods in "Samuel Paul's lot." To aid the work wooden rails were laid upon which short dump cars were run. All the iron rails laid between Exeter and Dover were brought to the wharf in Newfields by water and landed at high tide. Often two or three, and at one time five, two-masted schooners laden with rails were at the wharf together. These rails came from Liverpool, England, to Boston, and were reshipped to Newfields. The first regular passenger train went through the village to Newmarket July 28, 1841. The first train from Portsmouth to the Junction on the Concord and Portsmouth Railroad was run October 4, 1849, and the road was completed to Concord in August, 1852.

One of the most important events in the history of the town was the opening of the Swamscot machine shops in 1846. This was followed by years of activity, prosperity and honorable standing in the business world.

As the two growing villages came to hold less and less in common it became increasingly difficult to adjust town business to the satisfaction of the different sections and the advantage of the various interests. Separation was agreed upon, and the culminating event of the period under consideration was the formation of a new town, which, unfortunately perhaps, retained the name of its post office, and was incorporated June 27, 1849, under the name of South Newmarket.

The following is the act of incorporation:

AN ACT TO CONSTITUTE THE TOWN OF SOUTH NEWMARKET.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened, That all that part of the town of New Market, in the County of Rockingham, lying southerly of a line commencing at the easterly line of said town, on the northerly line of the Portsmouth and Concord Railroad, and running thence westerly on said northerly line of said railroad to the westerly side of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and thence westerly in a straight line six rods south of the southerly side of Jonathan Sanborn's house, to the westerly line of said town, be and the same is hereby severed from the town of New Market and made a body politic and corporate by the name of South New Market.

SECT. 2. All real and personal property, including all debts, claims and demands of every kind now owned by and due to the town of New Market, except the town house, all school and other funds owned by said town, and the public money deposited with said town of New Market, and the proportion of the literary fund which may be payable to said town, shall be divided between said towns in such proportions as said towns may agree; and if said towns cannot agree upon the division of any such property, James Foss of Stratham, and George W. Kittredge and Nathaniel E. Burleigh, upon the request of either town, may make division of the same. When in their opinion any of said property cannot be divided without loss or detriment, they may assign the whole or any part thereof to the town wherein it lies, and may order said town to pay over such sums of money to the other as in their opinion is equitable, and may fix the time of payment.

SECT. 3. All the taxes assessed since March last upon the polls and estates of those residing within the limits of said South New Market, and all non-resident taxes assessed within any school district within said South New Market, and upon all corporate property within said limits, shall be collected by the collector to whom the same has been committed for that purpose, and after deducting therefrom the state and county taxes, and such sums as have been expended for schools and the repair of roads within the limits of said South New Market, shall be by him paid over to the town of South New Market, in the same way and manner in which he is directed to pay over the same to said New Market, and the treasurer of said South New Market, when chosen and qualified, shall have the same power to issue an extent against such collector for neglect to comply with the provisions of this act, that he would have if such collector had been chosen by said town of South New Market.

SECT. 4. All debts and liabilities heretofore incurred by said town of New Market, and all sums which may be recovered on any process against said town, or to which said town is a party in any court, and the municipal expenses of said town since the thirteenth day of March last, shall be paid by said towns in the same proportions in which the property is divided; excepting the liabilities and expenses incurred by the purchase of a site for, and the building of a town house, which shall be paid for and owned by said New Market alone.

SECT. 5. All paupers who have a settlement in and are now supported by said New Market shall be supported by said towns of New Market and South New Market, in such way and manner, each of said towns contributing thereto in such proportions as said towns may agree. And when either of said towns shall request, said paupers shall be divided between said towns as said towns may agree; or in case they cannot agree, as the referees hereinbefore mentioned shall agree.

SECT. 6. In all assessments of state and county taxes, until the legislature shall otherwise order, the said towns shall pay that portion of every thousand dollars which may be ordered against the town of New Market as it now is, in such proportions as may be determined, in the same way and manner as is hereinbefore provided for the division of property and funds between said towns, and the state and county treasurers shall issue their respective warrants accordingly.

SECT. 7. Nathaniel E. Burleigh, Samuel Neal and Charles Lane, or any two of them, may call the first meeting of said town of South New Market, by posting up a warrant for that purpose as the law directs, at which meeting either of said persons may preside until a moderator be chosen; and at such meeting all necessary town officers may be Chosen.

SECT. 8. The town of South New Market shall form a part of councillor district numbered one, and of senatorial district numbered two, and the militia thereof shall belong to the fourth regiment.

SECT. 9. Any and all school districts in the town of New Market as it now is, which may be divided by the boundary line hereinbefore mentioned between said towns, shall remain and continue as they now are; and all moneys for the same shall be raised and assessed and paid over in the same way and manner as is provided by law in cases of districts founded by the union of inhabitants of neighboring towns.

SECT. 10. Whereas the dividing line between said towns crosses the homestead farms of sundry persons; all that part of such farms which are now owned by persons residing in South New Market as may be situated in New Market, shall for all purposes of taxation be deemed and considered to be part of said town of South New Market; and all that part of such farms which are now owned by persons residing in New Market as may be situated in South New Market, shall for all purposes of taxation be deemed and considered to be part of said town of New Market.

SECT. 11. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Chapter XXIII.

SOUTH NEWMARKET¹ IN THE CIVIL WAR.

During the first half of the last century the military spirit was manifest in the "Little Training" in May, and the "Great Training," "Muster," "Regimental Inspection" and "Review," in the autumn. The company of cavalry was called the "Troop." There was a company of artillery and several companies of light infantry belonging to the regiment. Other companies were called by names hardly dignified enough for mention in a history. But the day was a notable one and called together the masses.

The utility of these "trainings" and "musters" in the matter of military discipline and efficiency was happily never brought to the test. They, however, served to keep alive the military spirit for the time. But after they were given up not many years elapsed before South Newmarket, in common with all the towns of all the Northern States, heard the startling thunder of that first shot of the Confederates aimed at Fort Sumter as it sped on lightning wing around the world, and ushered in the greatest and bloodiest civil war of the ages. In common with the general uprising of the patriotic North her citizens were stirred as never before to attest their loyalty to the Union, and their readiness to take up arms in its defence. While so many of her sons were quick to respond to the call for soldiers at the front, those who remained at home sent them away with their blessing and did what they could for their comfort and help as they were called to face the enemy on the tented field and show themselves a strong bulwark of protection for their homes and loved ones. The cheering word from home, the thought that the eyes of their loved ones were upon them nerved them to the best there was in them in the way of brave and heroic daring. The starry flag that led them on to the fray stirred them to the utmost to show their loyalty in its defence. It symbolized as nothing else the holy cause for which they were contending. They fought for a united country, some of them at the sacrifice of their lives. The victory was finally won.

¹Thus far in this history when reference has been made to the town we have almost invariably spoken of it as Newfields, its present name. But as South Newmarket was its legal name up to 1895, and as the records of soldiers furnished in the Civil War by the town in the United States War Department and in "New Hampshire in the Civil War" credit them to South Newmarket, to prevent confusion or seeming injustice, we deem it but right and best to retain such name in this chapter.

The following is the roll of South Newmarket's contribution of soldiers in the different regiments of the New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry.

SECOND REGIMENT.

This regiment was in 22 engagements, all in Virginia.

William C. Bean of Company E, born in Montville, Me., but a resident of South Newmarket, 23 years of age. He enlisted for three months May 3, 1861, but was not mustered in; reënlisted May 27, 1861, for three years; mustered in as private June 3, 1861; was wounded in the second Bull Run Battle, August 29, 1862, and discharged on account of wounds June 6, 1863. He died October 11, 1866.

John W. Jones of Company E, born in Rye, but a resident of Newfields, South Newmarket, aged 18; enlisted as a private for three months May 3, 1861, but was not mustered in; reënlisted May 7, 1861, for three years, and was mustered in June 3, 1861; was appointed corporal, and was captured in the Battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 2, 1863. He died in Andersonville, Ga., November 1, 1864.

Nathan E. Kuse of Company E, born in South Newmarket, aged 19; enlisted for three months May 3, 1861, but was not mustered in; reënlisted for three years May 25, 1861, and was mustered in June 3, 1861, as corporal; appointed sergeant May 1, 1863; was wounded in the Battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 2, 1863, and died of his wounds July 31, 1863.

The above report was signed March 13, 1866, by the selectmen of South Newmarket, Patrick Quinn, Samuel Neal and Charles H. Sanborn.

The following items of the town's action in connection with the war are given:

At a special town meeting in 1861 it was Voted, that the Selectmen be authorized to pay nine dollars per month for three months to all residents of this town who have enlisted in the service of the United States.

Voted, that the Selectmen be authorized to pay to each volunteer's wife, and to the mothers of John B. Tetherly and Alcott Stover, the sum of six dollars per month for three months.

At a later meeting the same year,

Voted, that the town adopt the act of the Legislature to raise money in aid of the families of volunteers.

Poll taxes of all soldiers were also abated.

In 1862, $200 bounty was offered to enlisting soldiers, and the town ordered the borrowing of $7,000 for this purpose.

On August 23, 1862, the following resolutions were adopted:

We, the assembled citizens and legal voters of South Newmarket say, that whereas our Government is in a state of insurrection, rebellion and civil war, and whereas notwithstanding all the efforts of the government to suppress it the rebellion is daily becoming more formidable, and our army is in great need of immediate aid, and whereas our Chief Magistrate has called for additional men to be forthwith mustered into the service of the Government, either as volunteers or by draft, and whereas we believe it to be our first and highest duty to respond immediately and earnestly to the Government in all its demands therefore,

Resolved, that we pledge ourselves by our lives, our property and our most sacred honor, to stand by our Country in its hour of peril.

Resolved, that all those who go out from our midst as volunteers to fight the Battles of our Country are entitled to our best wishes, and our most hearty support.

On August 29, 1863, it was Voted, that the town pay to each conscript or drafted man, or his substitute, the sum of three hundred dollars within ten days after being mustered in the United States service.

Also the selectmen were authorized to aid "the families of conscripts or drafted men, agreeable to the laws of the state."

In 1864 the selectmen were authorized "to pay to each Drafted man or his substitute, all the law will allow to fill our town's quota under the late call for 500,000 men."

In April, 1865, the number of male citizens between 18 and 45 years of age, liable to render military service, was 73. The estimated number entering the army and navy from April 15, 1861, to April, 1865, was 95. A surplus of four remained after filling quotas under all calls. Of all the infantry companies, the Fifth New Hampshire suffered the heaviest losses. Of the 303 present at the Battle of Fredericksburg, Va., 193 were killed or wounded. In all its engagements 295 were killed, or died of wounds. It was the only New Hampshire regiment whose loss in killed exceeded 200.

The following soldiers from Newfields served in the Spanish War, all in the First New Hampshire Regiment: Herbert Clough, Company A, enlisted May 9, 1898, mustered out October 31, 1898; Arthur Munsey, Company K, enlisted May 7, 1898, mustered out October 31, 1898; James O. Pike, Company F, enlisted June 17, 1898, mustered out October 31, 1898; Frank Gladding, Company F, enlisted June 17, 1898, mustered out October 31, 1898. All were sent to Chickamauga and were mustered out at Concord.

Chapter XXIV.

CIVIL AFFAIRS, TOWN OFFICERS, LIST OF POLLS, TAX LIST, CHECK LIST, MARRIAGES.

The following warrant was "posted up," July 10, 1849, at "the tavern of Lucien M. Pike being a public place in said town."

To the inhabitants of the Town of South Newmarket, in the County of Rockingham, qualified to vote in town affairs. You are hereby notified and warned to meet at the school house in Newfields district, South Newmarket, on Saturday the 28th day of July inst. at three o'clock in the afternoon to act upon the following subjects:—

1. To choose a moderator to preside in said meeting.
2. To choose all necessary town officers for the present political year.

N. E. Burleigh	} Committee
Samuel Neal		to call the
Charles Lane		first meeting.

The selectmen, August 11, 1849, received the following petition:

Your petitioners represent that for the accommodation of the public there is now occasion for a new highway in said town beginning at the southerly corner of the depot of the Boston and Maine Railroad and running northeasterly to the eastern end of a pair of bars on the land of Benjamin Coe, Esq., situated fifty feet more or less on the western side of a certain brook running through the land of said Benjamin Coe. . . .

Amos Paul
J. G. Skinner
William Paul
George O. Hilton
P. Quinn.

The petition was granted and the road opened.

The town warrant of February 27, 1854, contained the following article:

Article 5. To see if the town will vote to number the school districts, and also the highway districts instead of naming them as at present. The town voted at the meeting to number the school and highway districts instead of naming them, the Newfields district to be No. 1, and the Piscassic district to be No. 2.

At an adjourned town meeting, May 6, 1854, a committee, consisting of Amos Paul and Albert Morton for the town, Rev. Winthrop Fifield, John Pease and Patrick Quinn for the school district, made a report which was accepted and adopted.

Voted: To proceed at once to build a Town hall and school house agreeable to the plan recommended by the committee.

Until 1867 the towns of Newmarket and South Newmarket continued to use the "poor farm" in common. At this time South Newmarket sold its part of the farm to Newmarket for $1,300.

Dr. John M. Brodhead of Washington, D. C., who died in South Newmarket February 22, 1880, left all his property to his widow during her life, but his will contained the following provision:—"Ten thousand dollars to the town of South Newmarket, N. H., for the purpose of purchasing books for a town library to be under the control of the selectmen, under condition that the name of the town shall be legally changed to the name of Newfields and so remain. On the same condition and for the same purpose I bequeath to said town my private library. Neither of these bequests shall take effect until the name of the town shall have been changed."

At the next town meeting, March, 1880, the town voted to accept the bequest of Doctor Brodhead with its condition.

Rev. James H. Fitts was chosen representative November, 1894. Though Mrs. Brodhead was still living it was deemed a favorable time for changing the name of the town by legislative enactment. Mr. Fitts accordingly introduced a bill for this purpose which was passed February 21, 1895, as follows:

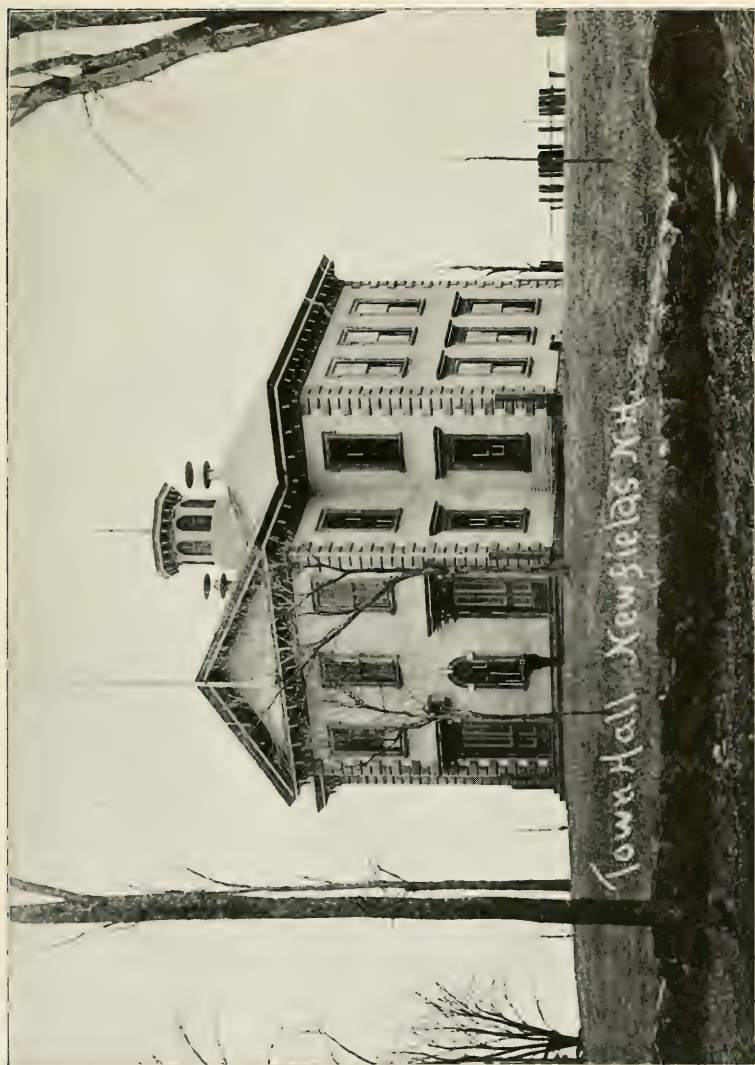

An Act to change the name of the town of South Newmarket. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. That the town of South Newmarket shall hereafter be known and called by the name of Newfields.

SECT. 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

This was signed by Stephen S. Jewett, speaker of the House of Representatives, Frank W. Rollins, president of the Senate, and Charles S. Busiel, governor, and certified by Ezra S. Stearns, secretary of state.

Thus the name of South Newmarket under which the town had acted a creditable part in war and in peace for forty-five years, was quietly dropped and the older name of Newfields restored with the sanction of the law.

A special town meeting was called by the selectmen May 14, 1895, "To see what action the town will take in regard to exempting from taxation any manufacturing firms that will locate and do business in this town. Voted, That any new manufacturing firms that shall locate and do business in the town of Newfields and employ ten or more persons shall be exempted from all taxes for a term of ten years."

Another special town meeting was called by the selectmen April 7, 1897, "To see if the town will vote to exempt from taxation the manufacturing establishment to be put in operation by Walter B. Grant, being the old Swamscot Machine Co., and the capital to be used in operating the same for a term of nine years. Vote: affirmative 50, negative 67." The moderator declared "That it was the sense of the voters present that said establishment shall be taxed."

Another special meeting was held May 29, 1897: "To see if the town will vote to exempt from taxation the manufacturing establishment of Walter B. Grant now in operation on the plant of the old Swamscot Machine Co., for a term of eight years and that the taxes assessed for the year 1897 be abated.

"Voted: That the whole matter be referred to a committee of three." Charles H. Sanborn, Albert H. Varney, John Torrey, were chosen to act as that committee.

The report of this committee was submitted March 8, 1898. By advice of the most eminent lawyers of the county the finding of the committee was: "That the business plant held by Walter B. Grant should be assessed for a just and equitable share of the public tax."

The report was accepted and adopted.

This issue was of more than local importance. It enlisted the attention and interest of many outside the town.

The death of Mrs. John M. Brodhead in 1900 was followed by litigation in the courts of Washington, D. C., respecting the settlement of the estate. It was contended that Newfields had forfeited her legacy by reason of failing to comply strictly with the conditions imposed. To meet this contention the legislature of 1901 was asked to amend and ratify the act of 1895 as follows:

AN ACT

To Amend Chapter 176 of the Laws of 1895, Entitled an Act to Change the Name of the Town of South Newmarket, and to Ratify the Same.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. Amend Section 1, Chapter 176 of the Laws of 1895 by adding at the end of said section the words "and so remain," so that said section as amended will read "That the Town of South Newmarket shall hereafter be known and called by the name of Newfields, and so remain."

SECT. 2. Chapter 176 of the Laws of 1895 is hereby ratified and confirmed as amended.

SECT. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

[Approved March 14, 1901.]

The Newmarket Electric Light Company erected poles and extended their wires through Newfields village in the autumn of 1901, and the streets were lighted by electricity in December.

The Town Warrant of 1902 had

Article 5. To see if the Town will authorize the selectmen to contract with the Newmarket Electric Light, Power and Heat Company for street lighting for a term of years, determine the annual compensation therefor and make an appropriation for the ensuing year.

The article passed, and a contract was signed April 1, 1902, for the term of five years with an annual compensation of $350.

The Town Warrant of February 23, 1907, had

Article 3. To see if the town will vote to build a schoolhouse, and raise and appropriate money for the same.

Voted: To erect a school building.¹

George L. Chase, Charles E. Smith, Augustus W. Richards, Albert H. Varney and Thomas Sheehy were elected a building committee.

CHAPTER 233, LAWS OF 1907.

SECTION 1. The selectmen of the towns of Stratham and Newfields are hereby authorized and directed, on behalf of said towns, to execute and deliver to Rockingham county, a good and sufficient conveyance of the interest of said towns in and to the Stratham and Newmarket bridge, with its appurtenances, over the Exeter river, subject to the condition that said Rockingham county is to maintain said bridge as a free bridge for the public travel.

SECT. 2. The county commissioners of Rockingham county are hereby authorized and directed, on behalf of said county, to receive said conveyance, and to maintain said Stratham and Newmarket bridge over said Exeter river, as a public highway, on the same terms and with the same rights and liabilities as are provided for highways not in any town.

SECT. 3. The town of Stratham and the town of Newfields shall each assume as a part of its town debt one half of the debt existing on account of said bridge.

SECT. 4. Each of said towns shall vote upon the acceptance of the terms of this act as its next annual meeting, and if a majority of the qualified voters present and voting in each of said towns shall vote in the affirmative on said question, this act shall thereupon take effect.

SECT. 5. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

RELATIVE TO THE CHURCHES, NEWFIELDS.

Congregational:—With the close of the first century in the religious history of Newmarket, there had come a change in the administration of ministerial affairs. New business interests sprung up in the villages of Newfields and Lamprey River, and it was found impossible to gather the people for worship at the old center near the railroad junction. Both villages had occasional preaching services by various denominations from 1810 onward. As early as 1825 regular Congregational services were held at Lamprey River, and in 1826 assistance was asked in erecting a house of worship. The church was organized there March 27, 1828. Newfields contributed means and members to this enterprise. Meanwhile the Lamprey River pastors, from 1827 onward, maintained a third service on the Sabbath, or a weekly lecture, at Newfields. Rev. David Sanford, from May 22, 1828, to June 22, 1830, abounded in labors of this kind here. During the spring of 1829, the Pascataqua Association appointed several of the neighboring pastors to preach at Newfields.

The Society at Newfields, April 11, 1827, chose Benjamin Loverin, moderator, and John Kennard, clerk. Benjamin Loverin and Charles Treadwell were appointed "to adjust the accounts of the past year, and to rent the parsonage the present year." It was also voted, "That the proceeds of the income of the parsonage for the two last years and the present year be appropriated to the repair of the parsonage House."

The Society purchased land from the Shute estate for the location of a meeting-house, July 3, 1827.

The Pascataqua Association at Kittery, September 18, 1827, made the following record: "By vote from the Pascataqua Conference of churches, the care of visiting certain destitute churches in our neighborhood was referred to this association; whereupon, voted, that Messrs French, Putnam, Cummings be a committee to see that such destitute churches are visited and the ordinances of the Supper administered. Among these churches visited was Newmarket.

At the Society meeting of the Congregationalists, April 7, 1828, Benjamin Loverin was chosen moderator, and Charles Treadwell, clerk. At an adjourned meeting April 19, 1828, Benjamin Loverin and Charles Treadwell were chosen the committee of the society for the year. Also voted "That the money belonging to the parish in the hands of Samuel Pickering be given to Mr. Brodhead to be accounted for by him in preaching at the South or original Congregational meeting House." Under date of November 11, 1828, Mary Coe makes the following record: "I have been favored with many religious privileges of late. Mr. R. [a young man] spent five weeks in this place. Mr. Merrill has likewise been laboring here for the good of souls. Mr. S. has recently come to this place, a young man who appears much devoted to the cause of religion. May the labours of these young men, with those of the stated pastor, be abundantly blessed."

Ten members petitioned December 20, 1828, for a meeting of the Congregational Society on the first Monday in January, 1829, and it was voted. "2d, To see whether the Society will adopt a Constitution and report themselves a Body Corporate." In this petition reference was had to the Act of the legislature, July 3, 1827. A meeting of the Society at the South or Central meeting-house was held January 5, 1829, with Abner P. Stinson, moderator. It was voted "that the 2d article be dismissed. Voted that the Selectmen be a committee to examine the account of the parsonage & Report at the next annual meeting."

On January 16, 1829, James Burleigh, Robert Clark, Curtis Coe and Thomas Drowne issued the following:

"Public Notice is hereby given that we Curtis Coe, Thomas Drowne, Robert Clark and James Burleigh and others, Inhabitants of Newmarket, for the purpose of Exercising the powers and enjoying the privileges granted to religious associations by an Act of the Legislature of this State passed July 3, 1827, Entitled An Act Empowering Religious Associations to Assume and Exercise Corporate Powers, have formed ourselves into a Religious Society to be known by the name of the South Congregational Society of Newmarket, and have caused the same to be recorded in a Book of Records;"—the present church of Newfields.

The above was formulated at a meeting held at that date, and duly published in the Portsmouth Journal. At the same meeting the society organized by the choice of William Norris, moderator, Charles Lane, clerk, and Benjamin Loverin, Hall J. Jenness and John Kennard, wardens.

The members met at the Newfields school house, March 31, and voted "to raise fifty dollars to support preaching the ensuing year." Also "that any person hiring the parsonage shall give bonds to the Wardens for the payment of the rent."

Rev. Bezaleel Smith's appointment to Newfields by the Missionary Society was the next supply. Having heard January 18, 1829, that his time had expired, sixteen persons, January 20th, subscribed $22 for the purpose of further securing his services. At a meeting of the Pascataqua Association at Strat-ham, January 20-21, 1829, "The subject of Mr. Smith's leaving his mission for the present & supplying at Rye was discussed and opinion expressed individually in favor." He settled in Rye, May 13, 1829, leaving his mission in "Newington and New Market" for the time, but was requested by the Association "to give as much attention to the societies in those places as his labors in Rye will permit." Meanwhile Messrs. Rowland, Porter, Pearson and Kent, members of the Association, were designated to supply the pulpit respectively the fourth Sabbath in January, and second, third and fourth, in February, 1829. June, 1829, Rev. William M. Cornell, a licentiate, commenced preaching, boarding in the family of Rev. Curtis Coe till the death of Mrs. Coe, October 11, 1829, and then with Benjamin Loverin, and afterwards with Charles Lane. The meetings were held in the academy building, no school then being in session.

At the annual meeting of the Congregational Society at the South or Central meeting-house, April 6, 1829, William Norris was chosen moderator, and it was voted:

That the committee for the last two years, 1828 & 29, Loverin & Treadwell, proceed Immediately to the Settlement of all accounts accruing within the two years term of their serving and bring the same to a close as soon as may be.

Voted That the business heretofore transacted by the nominal Congregational Society, in future be transferred to the Wardens of the Congregational societies now existing.

Voted that the book & papers of the nominal Society be transferred to the Wardens of the Societys & that the present committee have Recourse to the same for the purpose of examination for the Rectitude of their doing &c.

Rev. William Mason Cornell, M.D., LL.D., commenced preaching at Newfields in June, 1829, and was present at the meeting of the Pascataqua Association at North Hampton, July 21-22, 1829. A subscription list "for Mr. Cornell to preach" October 8, 1829, secured thirty-one names and $114.

At the meeting of the Pascataqua Association at Rye, October 13, 1829, "A communication from Newmarket, N. Fields, being laid before the association, a committee of three were chosen to act in behalf of the association to communicate with the Wardens &c. Chosen Brs. French, J. Smith and Cummings. Closed the session with prayer by Mr. Cornell."

On the death of her mother, Mary Coe writes in her diary, "Mr. C [ornell] has been present and witnessed the suffering of my dear mother, sympathized in our tryals, and repeatedly presented our petitions to the throne of grace. . . ."

November 26, 1829, she writes, "There are some pleasing indications of a revival in this place," and December 20, 1829, "Many appear anxiously concerned for their soul's salvation."

The following is the "Constitution of the New Fields S.S. Union."

Art. 1st. This association shall be called the Newfields Sabbath School Union.

Art. 2d. The officers of this Union shall consist of a President, Secretary, Treasurer & Librarian, who shall be chosen annually, shall perform the appropriate duties of their respective offices, & shall together constitute a Board of Directors to manage the general business of the Union.

Art. 3d. Any person may become a member of the Union by paying annually into the treasury a sum not less than 12½ cents.

The Union credits itself 1829-30, with money paid by Charles Lane for Sunday school and Question books, $7.45.

Mary Coe writes in her diary, Lord's Day October 11, 1830, "O that the men in this place of the town might become followers of the meek and lowly Jesus; that our Sabbath School may be a school of prayer."

Rev. Mr. Cornell labored in Newfields till sometime in 1830. He was supported in part by the New Hampshire Missionary Society, and used to visit its treasurer, Rev. Abraham Burnham at Pembroke, for his quarterly pay. Church records show money paid for his service. In the winter of 1829-30, he was called to solemnize a marriage at some distance beyond Lamprey River. He hired a horse for which he paid $1.50, and received a marriage fee of $.75.

Mr. Cornell preached in the Academy. Father Jonathan Ward would occasionally drive over from Brentwood, put up his horse at Winthrop Hilton's and meeting Mr. Cornell just as he was entering the academy would preach for him. Rev. W. F. Rowland, then lately dismissed from his pastorate of the First Church, Exeter, used to come to Newfields regularly on the Sabbath and preach half a day for Mr. Cornell.

Maj. Robert Clark used to think the sermons of this young minister were too short, because he got through his sermon before the major had finished his nap.

While at Newfields Mr. Cornell made application to the Pascataqua Association for ordination as an evangelist. He was accordingly examined, and the examination proving satisfactory, he was ordained January 19, 1830, Rev. Jonathan French of North Hampton preaching the sermon.

This application for ordination "as an evangelist" caused the Association to query whether it was a proper thing to do, it being at variance with the prevailing usage. A committee was therefore appointed, consisting of Rev. Messrs. Page and Ward, to prepare a resolution on the question. This committee subsequently reported as follows:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Association there may be cases in which it is not inconsistent with the Scriptures nor with the principles of Congregationalism, for a Council of ministers, called by an individual who wishes ordination as an evangelist, to be organized for the purpose and to ordain him. Nevertheless we consider it expedient and proper that application for this purpose be always made, when it can be done, to some appointed body of ministers.

This resolution after discussion was finally adopted.

Mr. Cornell also asked the advice of the Association as to the propriety of organizing a church at Newfields, and a committee was appointed to consider the subject in connection with Mr. Cornell.

Mr. Cornell, son of Dr. William and Abigail (Briggs) Cornell, was born in Beverly, Mass., October 16, 1812; graduated at Brown University, 1827; was approbated to preach by the Berkshire Association, October, 1829; ordained as an evangelist by the Pascataqua Association at Exeter, January 19, 1830; pastor at Woodstock, Conn., 1831-34; Quincy, Mass., 1834-39; graduated at the Berkshire Medical Institute, 1845; was physician, professor and president of the medical college in Boston and Philadelphia. He published many addresses, sermons, and volumes on theological, medical and historical theses. He died in Boston April 7, 1895. He married in 1832, Emeline A. Loud of Weymouth, Mass., who died about 1886.

At the reorganization of the old parish January 16, 1829, it took the form of an incorporated religious society, annually raising money for the salaries of their ministers. Among these were Revs. Bezaleel Smith, William Cornell, M.D., LL.D., Osseumus Tinker, 1831-32, Samuel Harris, Mr. Barton, Constantine Blodgett, D.D., Charles D. Jackson, William F. Rowland, and Thomas T. Richmond. These ministers preached in the old meeting-house and the old academy. In 1839 a new house of worship was erected at Newfields, and the old house was practically abandoned, and in 1852 taken down, moved to Exeter for mechanical purposes, and later burned.

In 1853-55 the parsonage property was transferred to Newfields and the present buildings erected. The meeting-house was enlarged and refurnished in 1871, the vestries refitted in 1880, and parsonage enlarged, 1882.

The old parsonage used to have a portico on the south side, and a porch on the north side. The barn stood further to the north. The old kitchen hearthstone is now the front doorstep.

In 1824 the Congregational proprietors repaired and rented the parsonage.

In 1836 the parsonage was repaired and barn built.

In 1852 the old meeting-house was sold to John Pease for $100.

In 1853 the parsonage was leased to Robert Smart for 99 years for $800.

In 1854-56 land was bought and the present parsonage built.

In 1859 it was painted inside and out, and in 1863 it was papered, and elms planted.

In 1864 part of the parsonage lot was sold to J. B. Rider who sold it to Mr. Merrill for $450, and in 1879 one and one-fourth acres were sold to Lucius S. Pease.

Further repairs were made on the parsonage in 1875, and in 1882 the stable and ell were moved back, and additions made to the main house. In 1906 repairs were made on the inside of parsonage and on the cellar wall.

On May 19, 1872, it was announced that the debt of $400 was paid. This furnished an occasion for great rejoicing.

On January 7, 1840, the Pascataqua Association meeting at Lamprey River voted "that a committee of Messrs. Tomb, Smith, Richmond and Newman be appointed to look up the professors of religion at Newfields, Newmarket, and advise and assist them with reference to the reorganization of the old church."

In 1843 the pastor at Newfields writes, "During the year we have enjoyed the outpourings of God's Spirit among us, and the cause has been strengthened. Seven family altars have been erected; a good proportion of the subjects of grace have been heads of families. Ten have been added to the church by profession. The cause of temperance has made good progress during the year."

The report for 1846 states that "There is nothing of special interest in the state of the church to be noticed." The old church in the town of Newmarket having become nearly extinct, it was revived and reorganized in 1840. The place of worship is in Newfields village in the south part of the town about one and a half miles from the old meeting-house and parsonage near the center, Rev. Preston Pond, stated supply.

Rev. Elijah W. Tucker was ordained to the ministry September 15, 1841, and became pastor of this church and labored faithfully for four years. During his ministry sixteen were added to its membership. Mr. Tucker was dismissed August, 1845, and the September following Rev. Preston Pond was engaged to supply one year. Subsequently Rev. Edwin Holt supplied the pulpit on the Sabbath for six months. After this there was only occasional preaching until 1851, when Rev. Charles E. Lord supplied one year. Among the good things of his ministry was the forming of the Ladies' Sewing Circle which still continues its activities and proves a real helper of the church.

Rev. Winthrop Fifield became pastor February 15, 1852, and so remained till his death May 9, 1862. Under his administration the church was greatly encouraged and a score of persons were added to its membership. The parish purchased in 1855 nine acres of land, and largely through his efforts a convenient set of buildings for a parsonage was erected at an expense of $3,000, and conditions became more hopeful than for several years previous. In 1857 the average attendance on church services was 160.

Before Mr. Fifield entered the ministry he studied medicine and became a practising physician, and was thus prepared to minister to the physical as well as spiritual needs of the people, which he did most faithfully. The following tribute is quoted from the church records: "Rev. Winthrop Fifield was pastor of this church from February 15, 1852, till his death May 9, 1862. As a citizen he was public spirited, interested in everything that would benefit community, active in the temperance cause and strong in anti-slavery sentiments. As a Christian he was humble, prayerful, steadfast; as a preacher he was plain, practical and earnest; as a pastor he was social, sympathetic and laborious. His health, always feeble, gradually failed, and his death was peaceful and triumphant." His death was greatly lamented and a serious loss to the church and community.

After the death of Mr. Fifield the Pascataqua Association supplied the pulpit several months for the benefit of his family.

Rev. Elias Chapman became pastor December, 1862, and so continued till 1867. In 1864 the statement is made that "there are some things in this little society which indicate vitality in some additions to the congregation, and in a considerable feeling that the little chapel must be enlarged. For this object the ladies have received $130." Rev. Isreal T. Otis supplied the pulpit in 1868, and was followed November, 1869, by Rev. Joseph Bartlett, brother of Rev. Samuel C. Bartlett, D.D., for many years president of Dartmouth College. During his pastorate the church, for many years a beneficiary of the Home Missionary Society, became self-supporting. The church building was enlarged and a vestry made beneath the audience room. The Sabbath services, including the Sabbath School, were well attended and twelve were added to the church. Mr.

Bartlett was very fraternal in thought and method and was highly esteemed throughout the community. His pastorate continued till August 31, 1877.

He was succeeded by Rev. Alexander C. Childs who was pastor from October 1, 1877 to September 30, 1879.

His successor, Rev. James H. Fitts, began to supply the pulpit April 18, 1880, and on May 11 the church and society gave him a call to become pastor. He accepted and immediately began pastoral work. For several years the affairs of the church were very prosperous. The Sabbath services and social meetings were well attended, and frequent additions made to the church. The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies increased in interest, a Mission Circle was formed in which the young people found much pleasure and profit. The parsonage was renovated in 1882, enlarged and painted. Later repairs were made on the exterior of the church.

Thus the years passed bringing God's spiritual and temporal blessings. But in the midst of this prosperity the business of the community began to decline, and so continued till by deaths and removals churches and schools were greatly depleted, and nearly every good work was interrupted. Yet the pastor and people who remained labored on till the morning of November 22, 1900, when the pastor, apparently in good health, while conversing with a neighbor, dropped lifeless to the ground, a victim of heart disease, thus closing his earthly ministry. Mr. Fitts was a devoted pastor, an influential citizen, active in the schools, and interested in every good work. After his death neighboring ministers supplied the pulpit for a few Sabbaths.

This church became associated January 6, 1901, with the church in Stratham under the pastoral care of Rev. George E. Lake, and held its service in the afternoon. The people were soon inspired with new courage and the work of the church revived.

Much needed repairs in the interior of the church were made in July, 1901, including new steel ceiling, carpet and curtains. Also extensive repairs on the exterior in July, 1904.

• Mr. Lake labored earnestly and faithfully till October 30, 1904, and was succeeded April 10, 1905, by Rev. Bernard Copping who has continued pastor till the present time. His enthusiasm enlivens and inspires the people in the work of the church. Most of the congregation are members of the Sunday School. The missionary societies and temperance work are well sustained, and according to its membership, it ranked the last year among the first in the county in its benevolent contributions, and exceeded its apportionment.

Very few names of the early members can be found as some of the records have been lost. At the reorganization of the old church February 12, 1840, the following persons are mentioned: Dea. Thomas Drowne, Mrs. Comfort Drowne, Mrs. Azubah Smith, received the same day by letter from the church at Lamprey River, Rev. William J. Newman officiating, Mrs. Jerusha Tarlton, Mrs. Mary K. Jenness, Mrs. Abigail Hervey, Mrs. Hannah Lane, George Wiggin and Benjamin Coe.

The names of the deacons on record are: Thomas Drowne, Benjamin Coe, William Hervey, Jonathan Colby, in the order of their service.

After the death of Deacon Hervey and the removal from town of Deacon Colby, John C. Hanson officiated for a time, then removed from town, and Lorenzo Dow took his place till his death, September, 1901. Since then J. Lewis Coe has been the officiating deacon.

Several from this church have entered professional life.

Rev. John William Lane, son of Charles and Hannah (French) Lane, graduated from Amherst College, 1856, and Andover Theological Seminary, 1859; was pastor, Whately, Mass., 1860-79; and North Hadley, Mass., since 1878.

Charles Edward Lane, his brother, graduated from Phillips Andover Academy, 1861, Amherst College, 1865, and Andover Theological Seminary, 1868; was licensed to preach, December, 1867, and during vacations was missionary in Vermont. He preached in Rindge, August 9, 1868, and died in Stratham, August 17, 1868.

Charles W. Fifield, son of Rev. Winthrop Fifield, entered the ministry and had pastorates in New York state.

Charles Lane Hanson, son of John Clinton and Anne Lucy (Lane) Hanson, graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy, 1888, and Harvard College, 1892; was instructor in English, Worcester (Mass.) Academy, 1892-95; English High School, Worcester, 1895-97; Durfee High School, Fall River, Mass., 1897-98; and since 1898 has been master and head of the English Department in the Mechanic Arts High School, Boston. He is one of the editors of "the Standard English Classics," and author of "English Composition," both published by Ginn & Co.

His brother, William Clinton Hanson, M.D., graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy, 1894, Harvard College, 1899, Harvard Medical School, 1905, and was appointed assistant of the secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Health May 1, 1907.

Olivia Emeline, daughter of Charles and Hannah (French) Lane, was for years before the Civil War a teacher in the South.

Mary Elizabeth, a sister, married September 14, 1871, Rev. Jacob Chapman, a native of Tamworth, N. H., who was pastor of the Congregational Church in Deerfield, and afterwards of Kingston, N. H.

Anne Lucy, another sister, was student at the Merrimack Normal Institute under Prof. William Russell, 1852; taught in this and neighboring towns for a few years; was assistant in Pinkerton Academy, Derry, 1861; graduated from Mount Holyoke Seminary, 1865; and taught the High School, Newfields, 1865-67. She married John Clinton Hanson, a thriving merchant in town, November 30, 1867. For several years they have resided in Cambridge, Mass.

Isophene K. and Annie H. Dow, daughters of Lorenzo and Elizabeth (Winslow) Dow, graduated from the Plymouth Normal School, 1875, and for years ranked among the most successful teachers in the state.

This church has had a special interest in Miss Abby Colby, a missionary in Japan many years. She was a niece of Deacon Colby, a member of his family, and connected with this congregation much of the time while he resided in Newfields.

Probably there have been others in the history of the church equally worthy of mention, who, with God's blessing, have gone out into the world to give it faithful and helpful service.

Methodist Episcopal:—Rev. George Pickering, presiding elder of the Boston district, was the first Methodist minister to preach in Newfields. This was in 1807, by invitation, in the parish church at the Junction. He was soon followed by Rev. Alfred Medcalf who supplied the pulpit of that church for a year. During 1808 Mr. Medcalf organized a "Class" in accordance with early Methodist Church usage. This "Class" seems to have had a nominal connection with the Society at Portsmouth, but for more than twenty years no record of membership or action can be found. For many years the town was without a "settled" minister. In 1810 Rev. John Brodhead was invited to occupy the parish parsonage and preach in the parish church when his duties did not call him elsewhere. This arrangement continued for thirteen years by annual vote of the town. For those times it was a most unusual exhibition of cordiality towards a Methodist preacher.

In 1828 Rev. Matthew Newhall was appointed to Durham and Newmarket. This is probably the date of the full organization of the church. Sabbath services were held in the school house, formerly the Wesleyan Academy, also at the Piscassic school house. A "class-room" was fitted up in "Father Brodhead's" house and meetings were often held in the homes of Samuel Tarleton, senior, and Samuel Paul. Land was obtained from Miss Sally Hilton and deeded to the church May 5, 1835, and a church edifice erected. Rev. John Brodhead, Samuel Paul and George W. Kittredge were appointed building committee, and John Pease and Samuel Cilley were the builders. During the process of erection Mr. Cilley fell from the belfry to the ground, but strange to say did not sustain permanent injuries.

Daniel D. Brodhead gave the bell, also violoncello, flute, clarinet, and music books to the choir. The church was completed and dedicated in the spring of 1836. At that time the church membership was 64.

¹ Rev. Preston Pond was of Wrentham, Mass., a nephew of Prof. Enoch Pond of Bangor Theological Seminary. From Newfields he went to Milford, Mass., and died while making ready to take charge of a new movement in Boston.

While in Washington, D. C., 1828-32, Rev. John Brodhead enjoyed the friendship of Rev. William Ryland, chaplain of the navy yard, who was pronounced by the statesman, William Pinckney, "the greatest pulpit orator he had ever heard." Mr. Ryland contributed generously toward the new church, and in his memory it was named Ryland chapel. Father Brodhead died in 1838. His portrait still hangs in many homes and "his name was spoken with reverence and affection by all who knew him."

In 1854 Miss Mary Fowler gave a lot opposite the church for a parsonage which was built in 1855. Samuel Neal, Joseph Kuse and Henry Thing were the building committee. The barn was built in 1866.

During the pastorate of Rev. Moses T. Cilley in 1870 the church was raised, according to the fashion of the time, and vestries were finished underneath.

In 1881, Rev. Otis Cole, pastor, the auditorium was remodeled by a new altar, pulpit platform, pews and furnishings, and the organ removed to the recess in the rear of the pulpit. By a noteworthy coincidence, during Mr. Cole's second pastorate, in 1906, the auditorium was again improved by the introduction of electric lights, steel ceiling and steel covering of the walls.

The following is a list of ministers who have served the church:

Matthew Newhall, 1828.
 Caleb Lamb, 1829.
 Daniel I. Robinson, 1830.
 Elijah Mason, 1831-32.
 Samuel A. Cushing, 1833.

 Charles W. Taylor, 1883.
 Cadford M. Dinsmore, 1884-86.
 Edward R. Perkins, 1887-89.

Buel O. Campbell, 1890.	Idelbert B. Miller, 1903-05.
Albert L. Smith, 1891-95.	Otis Cole, 1906-07.
Almon B. Rowell, 1896.	Henry Candler, 1908.
Alvah E. Draper, 1897-98.	Lyman D. Bragg, 1909-10.—
William B. Locke, 1899-1902.

The list is long. We make no attempt to estimate the ability, character, or labors of these men, but it may be of interest to note a few facts concerning some of them.

Rev. John Adams who supplied in 1840 was somewhat widely known as an eccentric revivalist who did much good, familiarly called "Reformation John." His home was at "Adam's Point," Durham.

Rev. William Hewes, pastor for two terms, was a physician and practised as well as preached on his various charges.

Rev. John W. Adams was the efficient and beloved chaplain of the Second New Hampshire Regiment of Volunteers, 1863-65.

Rev. Eleazer Smith was chaplain of the New Hampshire state prison for many years.

Rev. Buel O. Campbell has been a missionary teacher in Chile since 1892.

Rev. A. L. Smith has been twice an occupant of the parsonage—first during the pastorate of his father, Rev. Eleazer Smith, and later as pastor for five years—the longest single term of any incumbent to date.

Rev. O. S. Baketel has become prominent in the Sabbath School work of the denomination. The present year (1910) he has been appointed editor of the Methodist year Book and General Minutes.

Two members of the church have entered the ministry—the late John B. Wentworth, D.D., long an influential member of the Genessee Conference, and John W. Sanborn, also a member of that Conference.

The Sabbath School has been well organized and well attended from the beginning.

Auxiliaries of the denominational foreign and home missionary societies have been sustained with intelligent interest and given hearty support.

The Female Benevolent Society formed in 1842 by Mrs. Brodhead, Miss Deborah Hilton, Miss Mary Fowler, Mrs. Lydia (Locke) Kimball and others has had a continuous existence from that time to the present, Mrs. Kimball having been an officer and an efficient member for fifty-four years previous to her death in 1896.

It may not be out of place here to refer to the influence upon the community of the two academies (Methodist schools) aside from the educational advantages offered to the young people of both sexes. Helpful and pleasant associations were shared by many who were not directly connected with the schools. The teachers were men and women of superior attainments and sterling character. The out-of-town pupils were intelligent, ambitious, promising young people from many different localities, boarding in the families of the village and mingling freely with the people. Neither of the schools remained here many years before being removed to broader fields, but the stimulating influence they exerted lingered long as a distinct benefit to both young and old.

Universalist:—Rev. John Murray, the first apostle of Universalism in America, preached in Portsmouth soon after 1770. It is probable that his influence reached this locality; for, when a little later, Rev. Hosea Ballou went horseback over Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire, he found Universalists here. Mr. H. Jenness Paul says he remembers when Hosea Ballou was regularly entertained at "Uncle Sam Tarleton's."

In 1824 Universalist sentiment hereabout was crystallized by organization of the Rockingham Association, a very popular, prosperous body. This Association met in Newmarket in 1831, holding business meetings at the house of Benjamin Brooks. This village was represented by George O. Hilton and Joseph Lang. During the fifties this village was a mission station for Universalist preachers, and Rev. A. J. Patterson, D.D., of Portsmouth, Rev. George W. Bicknell, D.D., of Portland, Me., Rev. B. F. Eaton of Hampton and Rev. Mr. Hicks of Dover came often and preached in the town hall.

The Ladies' Universalist Social Union was organized in 1859. They held weekly social meetings and while the ladies sewed, George O. Paul read a sermon and all joined in singing. The membership fee for ladies was twenty-five cents, and for gentlemen fifty; weekly dues for ladies three cents and for gentlemen five. Out of these small but regular contributions they sustained preaching and bought a Sunday School library.

At this time more than fifty names are recorded as follows: Mrs. C. Thomas, president; Mrs. A. Morton, vice-president; Mrs. W. M. Paul, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. George O. Paul, Miss Mary A. Paul, Mrs. William Badger, Mrs. C. Smith, Mrs. Charles Sanborn, Mrs. D. Joslyn, Mrs. I. James, Mrs. R. Herve, Mrs. A. Houghton, Mrs. S. C. Kennard, Mrs. E. B. Locke, Mrs. Plummer Smith, Mrs. S. P. Badger, Mrs. A. White, Mrs. J. Saunders, Mrs. C. H. Littlefield, Miss Helen Morton, Miss Adeline Houghton, Miss Josie Houghton, Miss Caroline Hayden, Miss Juliette Pease, Miss Rose Pease, Miss Adelaide Pease, Mrs. Lucius Pike, Mrs. Rufus Sanborn, Miss Lois Barton, Amos Paul, William Paul, Samuel Tarleton, Hollis Pease, Joseph Lang, Oliver Sanborn, Calvin Smith, G. Oliver Hilton, Joseph Pease, George W. Pease, Charles Sanborn, Albert Morton, Andrew Thurston, Plummer Smith, William Houghton, John Houghton, James M. Tetherly, Charles W. Littlefield, Samuel P. Badger, Edwin B. Locke, W. O. L. Badger, Charles R. Paul, John B. Tetherly, George O. Paul, George W. Morton, Albert Field, Lucius M. Pike, Seneca C. Kennard, Plummer Thompson.

In 1871 the Universalist State Convention met here and held its sessions in the Methodist church. A parish was organized July 31, 1872, when the following signed the paper: Amos Paul, Samuel Tarleton, Hollis Pease, John Pease, W. L. Walker, Charles E. Durell, L. M. Pike, D. F. Davis, J. B. Tetherly, J. M. Robinson, G. O. Paul, George W. Pease, G. B. Rundlett, W. M. Paul, G. B. Spead, C. H. Littlefield, John E. Simpson, Calvin Smith, F. J. Beal, A. J. Philbrick, N. G. Tripp, W. P. Spead, Stuart S. Ricker, Frank Tilton.

The leading spirit in the movement was Amos Paul without whom the church would probably not have been built. They began at once to raise funds for a church edifice which was completed and dedicated December 17, 1873, and at the same time Rev. Luther F. McKinney was installed as its first pastor. His successors have been as follows:

Rev. E. A. Read, 1875-77.	Rev. William H. Trickey, 1887-91.
Rev. Royal T. Sawyer, 1877-79.	Rev. Edward Smiley, 1892-96.
Rev. Benton Smith, 1879-82.	Rev. Allen Brown, 1896-97.
Rev. A. L. Rice, 1882-83.	Rev. Nancy W. P. Smith, 1897-1907.
Rev. Henry S. Fiske, 1883-87.	Rev. Winfield S. Turner, 1907-1910.

Of the above Rev. L. F. McKinney, after several years in the ministry, served the state as congressman two terms, 1886-87 and 1890-91. He was appointed minister plenipotentiary to the Republic of Columbia, South America, April 25, 1893, and served four years.

Maj. W. H. Trickey was appointed May, 1907, commandant of the Soldiers' Home, Tilton, N. H., and still holds the position.

The church organization was effected in 1874. Careful records of the religious life of the Universalists have been kept and are still in existence.

The parsonage, a commodious and handsome dwelling formerly the home of Capt. Nathaniel Burleigh, a retired sea captain and son-in-law of Ward Hilton, was bought in 1879. The Sunday School was started long ago but no early records are obtainable. Mrs. W. M. Paul, however, started it in her own house where it continued to meet till large enough to use the town hall. Mrs. Paul has the unparalleled record of seventy years of continuous Sunday School teaching. For several years Charles E. Durell was superintendent, and has been succeeded by George W. Pollard, Miss Bertha J. Hobbs, Mrs. Juliette P. Conner, Mrs. Edna A. H. Paul, Mrs. Isabelle V. Wiggin and Miss Juliette P. Conner.

For nearly twenty years there has been a prosperous young people's organization for religious and social purposes in connection with the church. It began in 1889 under the name of Young People's Guild, later called Young People's Christian Union. The Constitution is signed by ninety-two names. This list includes many of the young people from other churches who found in the Guild a needed social and literary center.

This church has been highly favored in her ministers—persons of high moral worth and Christian character who have labored, not alone for the church, but for the improvement and upbuilding of the town. The following is quoted from the historical address given by Rev. N. W. P. Smith at the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the parish:

We have stood for a generation a lighthouse to warn from dangerous places, salt to save from corruption, a school to instruct, a hearthstone to warm, a mother dispensing bread.

Rev. William Cutter Hanscomb was the first Universalist minister at Lamprey River. His memoir was written previous to 1840.

Roman Catholic:—The first mass was celebrated in Exeter in the fall of 1849 at the house of Daniel Fenton by Rev. J. O.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Donnell of Lawrence, Mass. Rev. John McDonald of Haverhill, Mass., commenced making regular visits to Exeter and Newmarket about 1850. Services were first held in a building, later converted into a dwelling house, in which in 1882 lived Thomas and John Griffin. The first pastor was Rev. Father Walsh, who occupied the stone house on "Zion's Hill" purchased of the Universalists. He was succeeded by Revs. Father Charles Egan, Lewis McDonald, C. W. Calligan, Dennis Ryan.

Previous to 1882 services were held several years in private houses and the town hall. During that year a beautiful house of worship was erected at a cost of about $17,000. It was built under the supervision of Rev. J. R. Powers who was in charge in Epping and Newfields, and spared no pains in making preparations for the structure which should supply a long-felt need. The building is a parallelogram 75 feet long and 35 wide, substantially made, of simple and tasty exterior, with high-peaked roof on each end of which is a gilt cross, and stands on a commanding eminence. The windows are of stained glass donated by Rev. Father Power, M. J. Buckley, Michael Sheehy, in memory of Honora L. Liddy, Thomas Kelly, Thomas Phelan, P. J. Quinn, C. G. Murphy and Peter Lyons. The large one over the gallery was the gift of C. Coffey and Thomas Coffey. The interior is appropriately finished and furnished with everything needful for its ritual of service, and will seat about two hundred people. The society may well be proud of the beauty and convenience of its church. It was designed by P. W. Ford of Boston, Mass., and built by Thomas Phelan of Haverhill, Mass. It goes by the name of "The Church of the Sacred Heart." It was dedicated on Thanksgiving Day in 1882 by Bishop Healey of Portland, Me.

Rev. John R. Powers was succeeded in 1883 by Rev. John Canning who remained till 1898, when he was followed by Rev. James Hogan. In 1902 Rev. Fabian Deshaies assumed the charge thus left vacant and continued his pastorate till May, 1907, when Rev. Herbert Hennon was appointed to the place.

Chapter XXVI.

FRATERNAL ORDERS AND MISCELLANY.

Golden Cross.—The Newfields Commandery, No. 238, United Order of the Golden Cross, was instituted in this town June 4, 1883, with twelve charter members, being among the first commanderies to be chartered in New Hampshire by the Supreme Commandery which was organized and incorporated at Knoxville, Tenn., July 4, 1876, as a Fraternal Beneficiary Order of temperance people. It was the first to admit women on equal privilege with men. It is licensed to do business by the Insurance Departments of the several states. On account of its restricted principles its growth has been less rapid than that of other orders which do not stand on such lofty moral grounds. Its growth, however, has been steady and uniform. In the first thirty-three years of its existence it paid the families of departed members, on death claims, over $10,000,000, and it meets every obligation promptly. It has never lost a dollar by bad investment, nor has it had a dollar stolen.

The members make twelve payments per year. No assessment is made on account of death in the local commandery.

Newfields' Commandery starting with twelve charter members has continued to grow in membership until 114 have joined its ranks.

The order has paid on death claims to the families of departed members of this Commandery during the first twenty-seven years of its existence $12,500.

Members of the order are pleased to furnish any information at all times.

Grange.—The South Newmarket Grange was organized March 17, 1892, by Deputy White with twenty-one charter members. In December, 1904, the name was changed to Piscassic Grange. Land near Littlefield's Crossing for a new hall was given by Charles E. Smith April 14, 1904. A building formerly occupied by Charles Lane and John C. Hanson for a store was given by the Misses Paul through Frank P. Neal, taken down and the timbers hauled by the members to the building site. The building was completed and dedicated January 18, 1905. Electric lights were furnished by the generosity of Arthur J. Conner and Herbert W. Smith. Contributions to the building fund were also made by George L. Chase and George W. Paul. The regular meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of the month. The membership now numbers fifty-eight and the society is in a very flourishing condition. It has always manifested a great deal of interest and enthusiasm, and is still an important factor in the social life of the vicinity.

Within the past three years the losses by death have been many.

A lodge of "Good Templars" had a flourishing existence from 1868-74, also the "Rockingham Guards" organized in 1867 with John E. Simpson, captain, was for a time a popular military company.

Odd Fellows.—An organization of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows has existed for many years. They have a very attractive hall, and in the days of the greater prosperity of the town were a strong and active society.

We give here many miscellaneous items—the recollections of Rev. John Lane and others—which are deemed of sufficient importance to be included in this history, but do not easily fall into connected narrative. No special order has been followed in their arrangement.

The hay scales that stood in the triangle at the junction of Piscassic and Exeter roads are described by Mr. Lane as "looking like a lighthouse whose roof extended over a shed through which loads of hay were driven and, in the shed with a strong wooden frame under the loads, with chains attached to a roller above, were raised by turning a crank in the lighthouse side, and weighed."

The stone pound, between the old burying ground and the Exeter road, was built in 1825. The stones of which it was made were taken by the town in 1900 to construct a new culvert under the highway for Cobbey's brook—so named for a family that long lived on the north side of it, just west of the Exeter road.

Deacon Drowne had a store and wharf near the toll bridge. The toll-house was moved back and forth across the bridge, as the toll-takers lived on one or the other side of the river. On the creek just above the bridge on the Stratham side was a tide-mill with gates which the tide opened as it rose and closed as it ran out. The water thus shut in was used to grind corn. This mill was bought by Charles Lane, and some of its timbers were used in building his store, with hall above, on the main street in Newfields. It has since been taken down, removed and rebuilt for Grange Hall.

James Perkins, Esq., of Williamsport, Pa., a native of Newfields, in 1885 recalled the time when all the houses facing the river at "the Landing" were owned and occupied by members of the Shute family. They were all in good condition and with pleasant surroundings. He also remembered two houses where the foundry now stands. One was the "Coffin house," later occupied by John C. Rider, who was one of the owners and managers of the foundry, and the other, a large, pretentious house on the bank of the river, having a large entrance hall with open fireplace, and a dance hall at the rear of the house. Dudley Watson was, perhaps, the last owner. It was probably erected by one of the earliest ship-builders.

In Epping, just across the Newfields line on the Piscassic road, was the famous stage tavern of James Pike. Travelers from the north bound for Portsmouth would spend the night there, proceed to Portsmouth the next day, and spend the night there on the return trip. It was said the stable had housed 100 oxen and horses in a single night. Its use as a tavern was discontinued after the opening of the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad. It was destroyed by fire in June, 1907.

The Stinson tavern near the Junction was remodeled and a piazza built across the front of the house—the first one remembered in this section.

Previous to the building of the Boston & Maine Railroad raw materials for manufacture were transported by water conveyance. Packets and schooners from Boston and gondolas from Portsmouth did a lively business on the Pascataqua River, across Great Bay, and up Lamprey and Squamscot rivers.

It having proved a difficult matter to fix upon a satisfactory site for the "depot" at Newfields, it was first located on the river side of the track at the right, then moved across the street to the left, and then across the track. Levi Kelly was the first "depot master." The new station, built in the early seventies, was located farther from the street toward the north.

Coal for fuel was introduced into Newfields about 1850, and has to a considerable extent taken the place of wood.

Street lights were first introduced in November, 1886. Kerosene lamps were used and the lamplighter made a nightly round.

In the first foundry were huge leather-sided bellows blown by horse power.

One evening Joseph Smith and his wife, living on the Piscassic road very near the Epping line, visited a neighbor taking with them the twins, Polly and Betsey. On the way home, meeting a bear, Mr. Smith dropped the twin he was carrying and ran for his gun which was in the house a few rods distant. His wife then seized both of the twins and ran back to the house where they had been calling, followed by the bear, and screaming as she ran. The neighbor opened the door, which was in two parts, and as she entered, closed the lower part, but before they could shut the upper half, the bear put his head in and prevented their closing it. Meanwhile Mr. Smith, having secured his gun, shot the bear. Taking it home he dressed it, and put both children in the cavity. Ever after they boasted they had been inside a bear.

When the "musters" were the principal events of the year and were attended by all the community, they were usually held in Piscassic, in any field available, but by 1837 or 1838 a new generation looked upon the "military training" as an irksome task to be avoided if possible. The last ones were held on the school house hill and were attended with little interest or enthusiasm. It is remembered that at probably the last of these occasions the inexperienced and sadly embarrassed officer of the day, forgetting his military phrases, shouted frantically, "Attention the whole, spectators and all! Training's begun!"

A "Note" in the town records gives the following statement:

This is to call the attention of the people in the future to the fact that sometime in the Anniversary year, 1876, Amos Paul, Esq., caused to be planted in the Square near the Universalist Church in this town an Elm tree—and Mr. Paul wishes this record made that future Generations may know the exact age of said tree.

The record was made October 15, 1884, as affirmed by H. J. Paul, town clerk.

The most destructive fire that has occurred in Newfields broke out about midnight September 23-24, 1894, in a stable on the main street owned by J. C. Hanson. The house adjoining, the old "Kennard house," a two-tenement house built by Brackett Jones, the "Shute House" with its stable and various sheds, were burned. With the limited water supply only the persistent and praiseworthy efforts of the men of the town kept the fire in check until timely assistance from Exeter and Dover arrived.

The Methodists of Dover district held their annual camp-meetings from 1857 to 1863 in Fowler's grove near the Junction, at the rear of the cemetery. Since 1863 the meeting has been held at the Hedding grounds in Epping.

The daughters of Rev. Curtis Coe were most estimable maiden ladies of the old school. They spent much time cultivating their beautiful garden just south of the house, through which the brook ran, known later as Coe's brook. They had also mulberry trees and silk worms. The number of cocoons of silk the worms, feeding on the mulberry leaves, produced is unknown.

But few young men of Newfields have entered the ministry, but it is a noteworthy fact that eight "elect ladies," members of the Methodist Church, became wives of ministers.

Chapter XXVII.

CEMETERIES.

Necessity at first compelled the settlers to bury their dead where best they could, beneath some spreading oak or towering pine, perhaps on rising ground, in garden or field. Because of failure to rear some permanent memorial all trace of these graves became obliterated, and it is greatly to be regretted that the pioneer forefathers of the hamlet sleep in unknown and unhonored graves in field or pasture. Somewhat later it became the custom to bury in a lot reserved for the purpose upon their own grounds. For nearly one hundred years there was no public burying ground in Newfields. The Hilton "graveyard" is the oldest of the private lots and upon the stone erected to the memory of Col. Winthrop Hilton is the oldest legible inscription in the town. Another inscription of interest in this lot is that of "Ichabod Hilton grandson of Col. Winthrop Hilton who was grandson of Edward Hilton the first settler of New Hampshire."

Burial lots are also found upon the Hersey, Burley, Bennett, Brackett, Pickering, Thing and other farms, some of which have passed from the families of the original owners. In some instances—as the Colcords—the bodies have been removed to the public cemeteries.

Cemetery at the Junction. The first parish meeting-house was built upon land that was included in Edward Hilton's "upland ground." In the division of the estate it fell in the northern half, beyond the second creek and Cobbey's brook, to his son, Capt. William Hilton. In 1694 it became the inheritance of his sons, Richard and Jonathan. "One acre on which the meeting house standeth" was deeded March 26, 1734, to the parish "for a burying ground." Here rest the mortal remains of many whose names often appear on the pages of this book.

The oldest tomb-stones now standing were erected in 1744 to "Mary, wife of Jeremiah Folsom;" in 1749 to "Nathaniel, son of Josiah & Eunice Parsons;" in 1752 to "Susannah Clark, dau. of Caleb & Mary;" in 1755 to "Capt. Josiah Parsons, mariner;" in 1757 to "Sarah, wife of Lt. John Burleigh;" and in 1759 to "Ann Tash, wife of Maj. Thomas Tash." This cemetery was enlarged in 1893.

Piscassic Cemetery. In this cemetery rest generations of those who lived in this locality, Neals, Sanborns, Smiths, Pikes, Peases. Many inscriptions are not legible. "Nathaniel Pease, 1799," being one of the oldest that can be read. This cemetery has also been enlarged in accordance with a vote of the town at the annual town meeting in March, 1893.

Locust Grove Cemetery. About 1855 a new cemetery was laid out by Hon. Amos Paul, who devoted a part of one of his hill-side fields for the purpose; and was sole manager. All the lots have now been sold, and unless more land shall be added, burials must soon be largely in the extension of the old burying ground near Rockingham Junction. In 1886 the town received $1,000 from the estate of William L. Walker for the Care of Locust Cemetery.

The body of Rev. John Brodhead rested for many years in the Methodist churchyard, but was finally removed to this cemetery.

The following is a copy of the bequest of the late William L. Walker:

I give, devise and bequeathe as follows: To the Selectmen of the town of South Newmarket, in trust, the sum of one thousand dollars. This sum I direct shall be held by the Selectmen of said town as a perpetual trust, to be by them invested in the note of said town, if practicable, but in any event in safe security; permanence and safety being the object and not high rate of interest; and from such income from time to time annually to expend such sum as may be regarded as a judicious amount in the care, protection, repair, renewal and adornment of my lot in Locust Grove Cemetery at said South Newmarket and of such sum any amount not needed for such outlay, I direct to be in like manner judiciously and economically expended in the general care, repair and permanent improvement of said cemetery forever.

Since 1882 the town has annually appropriated $25 for decorating the soldiers' graves Memorial Day.

The cemetery trust funds are invested as follows: The Walker Fund of $1,000 in City of Newton bond; the Fowler Fund of $200 bequeathed by the will of the late G. Clark Fowler "to the town of Newfields in trust to keep my burial lot in order," and received in 1903, Portsmouth Trust and Guarantee Company; and the Allen Fund of $200 received in 1909, Portsmouth Trust and Guarantee Company.

Chapter XXVIII.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Rev. John Osborne, son of George Jerry Osborne, who commanded the Raleigh in 1777, was a popular school teacher at Portsmouth, Newcastle, and afterwards at Lee where he was chosen on the superintending school committee in 1813 and was its chairman in later years. He was ordained over the Congregational church in Lee November 26, 1800, and is thought to have relinquished his salary during the years of the war, 1813-15. He was town clerk, 1816-18; several years representative, and tithingman, 1818. He was immersed in Lamprey River by Elder Eliphalet Merrill of Northwood, and with Elias Smith became a pioneer and champion of the Christian Connection. His favorite text in neighboring pulpits was I Sam. 17:45. He held meetings at Joseph Colcord's, Winthrop Thing's in the Oak-Lands and at Peter Hersey's, Piscassic, where he baptized Mrs. Hersey. About 1827 he was among the first to take a stand for temperance as a total abstainer. He was twice married, second to Mary Frost of Portsmouth, and had fifteen children. His daughter, Abigail Smith, born February 7, 1792, married August, 1808, Hon. Andrew Pierce, of the seventh generation from John Pierce, and died March 5, 1875. He was born December 18, 1785, and died in Dover September 14, 1862.

Mr. Osborn's last sickness was an influenza brought on while laboring in a protracted meeting at Lamprey River. Rev. Henry Pottle of Stratham preached his funeral sermon, and a funeral procession a mile in length extended from the church at Lee Hill where he had so long been settled. His tombstone bears the following inscription:

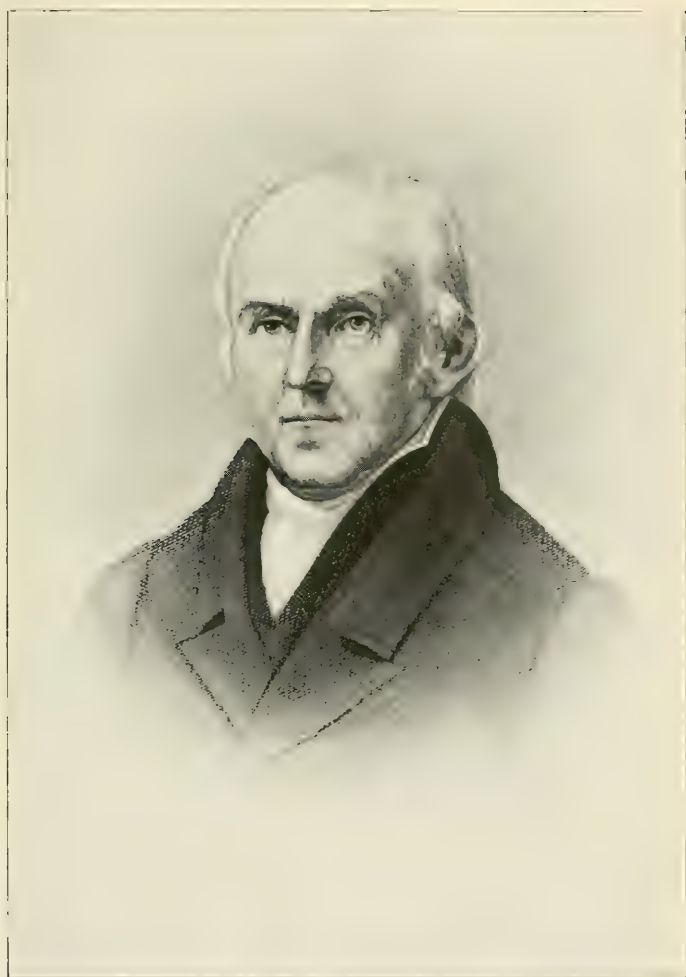

To the memory of the Rev. John Osborne late Pastor and Teacher of the town of Lee. Ordained Nov. 26, 1800. Died Feb. 28, 1832. Aged 63 years.

As a Christian he was eminent for piety; As a minister faithful in his office; And the people over whom he was settled for more than thirty years, erect this Stone as a token of their lasting affection and respect.

Mary, wife of Eld. John Osborne, Died October 8, 1840. AEt. 69.

Rev. Curtis Coe, took up his residence at Newfields in 1809. He was born in Middletown, Conn., July 21, 1750; graduated at Brown University, 1776, and was ordained pastor at Durham, November 1, 1780, having previously preached there as early as August 18, 1779, joining the church October 31, 1780. He continued pastor till May 1, 1806, when he entered the missionary field in the employ of the New Hampshire and Massachusetts Missionary Societies, laboring in the remote parts of New Hampshire and Maine from 1807, as long as he was able to preach. He often preached at Stratham where he administered the rite of baptism, May 30, 1809, May 20, 1819 and May 13, 1821. He preached at Newfields July 1, 1810, January 13, April 15, May 6, 1811, Sept. 29, 1816, March 9, 1817, June 16, and funerals September 20, 1818, and April 1, 1820. When Mr. Coe was not publicly employed on the Sabbath, he conducted a service in his own family. We have memoranda of such services, May 6, 1810, March 1, September 27, October 4, 1812, August 8 and 15, October 2, 1813, March 27, May 8 and 15, August 27, December 1, Fast Day, 1814, April 9 and 16, 1815, May 26, June 2, September 22, 1816, March 2, 1817, May 3, December 30, 1818, April 18, 1819, January 19, March 21, December 16, 1821, March 19, 1823. He died June 7, 1829, and lies buried in the old cemetery at the center. He married in 1781 Anne, daughter of Hon. Ebenezer Thompson, who died October 11, 1829.

Rev. John Brodhead, was born in Pennsylvania, October 22, 1770, ordained to the ministry by Bishop Francis Asbury in 1796, sent at once to Maine, and became one of the "pioneers of Methodism" in New England. It was no "settled ministry" to which he was called, but he joined the "itinerants" in name and fact. For twelve years as "circuit rider" and "presiding elder" he rode many hundred miles yearly on horseback, and experienced great hardship and exposure. In 1801 he married at Lisbon, N. H., Mary, daughter of Capt. Thomas and Ruth (Giddings) Dodge formerly of Ipswich, Mass.

REV. CURTIS COE.

In 1809 he was appointed to Portsmouth, Durham and the Pascataqua region, and made his home at Newfields village. In 1814, during the epidemic of "typhus fever," he contracted the disease and was dangerously ill for sixty days. His strength had been overtaxed during his early ministry and he never recovered from the effects of his illness. Heart disease developed at that time and he was never after able to give full and continuous service to his chosen life-work, but preached and took appointments as he was physically able to the end of life.

In 1817 Elder Brodhead entered political life as senator from District No. 2, and continued in the service of the state as senator and chaplain of the legislature about ten years. From 1829 to 1833 he was representative in Congress under Jackson's administration. He afterwards declined to stand as candidate for the governorship of New Hampshire. He spent about forty-five years in the ministry, forty-two in New England, and died of heart disease from which he had long suffered. His end was peaceful, even triumphant. His monument is thus inscribed:

In memory of the Rev. John Brodhead, born in Lower Smithfield, Pennsylvania, 1770. Died in this place April 7, 1838, aged 67 years, Having been an Itinerant Minister in the Methodist Episcopal church 45 years; Senator and Chaplain to the Legislature of this state & a member of the Congress of the United States. He was beloved as a husband & father, honored as a citizen, esteemed as a statesman & venerated as a minister.

"Peace to the just man's memory, let it grow Green with years blossom through the flight of ages."

Rev. Abel Stevens, LL.D., in his History of Methodism says "he was a fine looking man; large in person, six feet in stature, erect and finely built, slight when young, in mature years robustly stout and towards the end of his life somewhat corpulent, forehead high, eye dark, large and glowing, a man of extraordinary power in the pulpit."

He drew all New Hampshire unto himself, and redeemed his church from obloquy by the public preferment with which he was honored. While in civil office he retained unabated the fervency of his spiritual zeal. In Washington he maintained at his lodgings a weekly prayer meeting, and on the Sabbath preached more or less in the neighboring churches.

He "was a good man, deeply pious, ardently and sincerely devoted to the interests of the church and world."

The Boston Post paid him this tribute, "Possessing naturally a strong mind, warm affections and an imposing person, he was a popular as well as an able and pious preacher and, probably no man in New England had more personal friends, or could exercise a more widely extended influence. . . . The soundness of his judgment and the known purity of his life, gave much weight to his opinions. In the early days of his ministry he endured almost incredible fatigue and hardship in carrying the glad tidings of the gospel to remote settlements, often swimming rivers on horseback, and preaching in his clothes saturated with water, till he broke down a naturally robust constitution, and laid the foundation of disease which affected him more or less during his after life. In his last days the gospel which he had so long and faithfully preached to others, was the never-failing support of his own mind." His widow died, Newfields, August 28, 1875, aged 93.

Rev. David Sanford, son of Elisha and Rachel (Strong) Sanford, was born in Medway, Mass., August 23, 1801; graduated at Brown University, 1825, and was student for a time in Andover Theological Seminary, class of 1828; was licensed to preach by the Pascataqua Association, January 16, 1828; ordained pastor at Newmarket, May 22, 1828; dismissed June 22, 1830. He died December 17, 1875.

Rev. James Pike, D.D., son of Caleb and Mary (Pike) Pike, was born November 10, 1818, in Salisbury, Mass., on the farm which has been in the family in unbroken succession since 1638. He was educated in the common schools of his native town, the Franklin Academy of Newmarket (Newfields), and Wesleyan University. He married Mary R., daughter of Rev. John Brodhead, in Newfields, April 19, 1840.

He entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1841 and served faithfully and acceptably in the itinerant ranks until 1853 when he was appointed presiding elder of the Dover district. While serving in that position and living in Newfields he was elected in 1855 to the 34th Congress, and re-elected to the succeeding Congress in 1857. Of this period a contemporary wrote:—"While in Congress he never lowered his standard as an advocate of freedom, truth, righteousness and good government, nor did he forsake the higher office of a minister of the gospel, few Sundays passing when he was not found in some pulpit in or about Washington, rendering gratuitous and most acceptable service."

In 1860 he was appointed presiding elder of the Concord district.

He accepted November 1, 1862, the unsolicited appointment as colonel of the sixteenth New Hampshire Regiment, and served in the Department of the Gulf under Maj. Gen. N. P. Banks. The regiment was actively engaged in the defence of New Orleans, the capture and occupation of Fort Burton, and the memorable siege and conquest of Port Hudson. He was mustered out with his regiment at the expiration of service August 20, 1863.

Subsequent to his army service he held few pastorates, but was presiding elder twelve years, serving upon each of the three districts of the New Hampshire Conference. During this time he preached in every Methodist pulpit in the state and in many churches of other denominations.

He was elected by the Conference a delegate to the General Conferences of 1860, 1864, 1868 and 1872. He was persuaded to accept the nomination of his party for governor of the state in 1871. There was no election by the people and in the legislature he was defeated by two votes.

In 1873 Wesleyan University conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

He was appointed by the bishops the New Hampshire delegate to the Ecumenical Council of Methodist bodies, meeting at Cincinnati in 1876, and also to the centennial celebration of American Methodism at Baltimore in 1884. In 1886 his health becoming seriously impaired he retired from active public service, and spent his later years at his home¹ in Newfields.

A few hours before his death, July 26, 1895, with impressive gesture and solemn emphasis he pronounced the apostolic benediction, and that act, at once invocation and farewell, closed a useful and honored life.

Rev. Winthrop Fifield, M.D., was the son of Capt. Winthrop and Mehitable (Pettengill) Fifield, and born in Franklin, January 3, 1806; studied medicine with Dr. Jesse Morrill and practiced three years in Pittsfield; and later, theology with Rev. Jonathan Curtis of Pittsfield, and was licensed to preach by the Derryfield Association September 20, 1836. He was ordained at Epsom, May 10, 1837, and was pastor there, 1837-46; East Concord, 1847-50; and Newfields, 1852-62, dying there May 9, 1862. He was a man of excellent Christian spirit and thoroughly consecrated to his work.

He married (1) Sophia Garland of Franklin, October 7, 1833, who died at Pittsfield, November 19, 1836, and (2) Sarah Ann Olivia, dau. of Col. Jonathan and Sarah (Harvey) Piper of Northfield, at Epping, January 17, 1842.

Rev. Joseph Bartlett, son of Samuel Colcord Bartlett, was born in Salisbury January 26, 1816; graduated at Dartmouth College, 1835; was teacher, Phillips Andover Academy, 1837-38; tutor, Dartmouth College, 1838-41; graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, 1843; licensed to preach by the Hopkinton Association October 10, 1843; acting pastor, Waterville, Me., 1846-47; ordained an evangelist, Buxton, Me., October 7, 1847, and acting pastor, 1847-67; acting pastor, Newfields, December 1868-77. Retiring from the ministry he was in North Springfield, Mo., 1877-78, and at Gorham, Me., 1878, till his death August 12, 1882. He was scholarly and greatly endeared himself to his people in Newfields. He married Margaret, daughter of Capt. Robert and Mary (Marble) Motley of Gorham, Me., October 26, 1847. She died at Westbrook, Me.

Rev. James Hill Fitts, twenty years pastor of the Congregational church, and the industrious and persevering gatherer of the material included in this volume, deserves an extended notice. He was the son of John and Abigail (Lane) Fitts, and a descendant of Robert Fitts the American ancestor of the family who settled in Salisbury, Mass., in 1635, and was born in Candia, March 3, 1829; received his education in the public schools of his native town, Pembroke Academy, Normal Institute of Merrimack, and also Lancaster, Mass.; was teacher several years in New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts and in Ashby Academy; and studied theology at Bangor Theological Seminary, 1855-58 and later took special studies at Andover. He was ordained an evangelist at Candia, November 2, 1859, and had pastorates at Boxboro, Mass., 1858-62; West Boylston, Mass., 1862-70; Topsfield, Mass., 1871-80; and Newfields, 1880-1900. He served the Christian Commission, 1863-64, and on school boards for twenty years. He was a member of the New Hampshire legislature in 1895, and through his influence the name of the town was changed to the original Newfields.

He was a trustee of the Newfields Library, and a member of the New Hampshire Historical and New England Historic-Genealogical Societies, also for thirteen years scribe of the Pascataqua Association of Congregational Ministers.

He loved the work of the ministry, esteemed it a great privilege to deliver to the people the gospel messages of salvation, and according to his own words, made it his highest ambition to be a good preacher of the Word. Though not unmindful of manifest successes, he did not delay to count them up, but was content to render his most efficient service and leave results in the care of the Heavenly Master he sought so well to serve!

He was also a great lover of science and history, and his researches were thorough and extensive. His leisure hours were largely given to them.

He married January 1, 1862, Mary Celina, daughter of Coffin Moore and Dolly (Pillsbury) French, of Candia, who survived him.

He died suddenly of heart disease November 22, 1900, greatly lamented not only by his own people, but the entire community, and a host of friends widely scattered. His funeral occurred November 27, and was largely attended by the teachers and children of the public schools, townsmen, parishoners and the clergy and friends from other towns. A brief service was held at the home, and the more formal and impressive one in the church where he had so long and faithfully taught the people. A service was also held in the church in Candia, and his body was laid away in the Hill Cemetery of his native town to await the morning of the resurrection!

His publications were: (1) Nineteen Annual School Reports; (2) Genealogy of the Fitts Family, 1869; (3) Commemorative Services of the Semi-Centennial Anniversary of the S. S., West Boylston, 1870; (4) Manual of Congregational Church, West Boylston, 1870; (5) A Sketch of South Newmarket, [Newfields] 1882—in County History; (6) Historical Address at the Rededication of the Brick Meeting-House, West Boylston, 1890; (7) Lane Genealogies, 3 vols., 1891, 1897, 1900—associated with Rev. Jacob Chapman, in Vol. I.

Hon. John Montgomery Broadhead, M.D., second son of Rev. John and Mary (Dodge) Brodhead, was born at Canaan, N. H., November 11, 1803. When he was six years of age the family settled in what is now Newfields, where his boyhood was spent. Receiving his preparatory education at the Newmarket Wesleyan Academy, he studied medicine, took his degree of M.D. at Dartmouth Medical College in 1826, and began practice of his profession at Deerfield, N. H. He married Mary Josephine Waterman, only daughter of Rev. Thomas Waterman, formerly of London, England. Finding he was not robust enough physically to endure the hardship incident to his profession in this climate, in 1830 he removed to Washington, D. C., and was several years in the treasury department as clerk, chief clerk and acting second comptroller. He was appointed in 1853 second comptroller and served in this capacity four years. He also held responsible positions in the city government, serving as councilman, alderman and commissioner under the Emancipation Act, April 16, 1862. He was a strong unionist when most of his associates were disloyal. In 1863 he was again appointed second comptroller, whose duties by reason of the Civil War had become very exacting and important. "He had the final adjustment and settlement of all accounts and claims arising in the army and navy, the pension and Indian offices. In a single year these claims amounted to $1,300,000,000. A digest of some 1,500 of his decisions was made and became authority with the department."

He filled this office with signal ability till 1876, when he tendered his resignation to President Grant and retired from public service.

From early childhood a lover of good books and a tireless reader, possessing a singularly retentive memory, his mind was stored with valuable knowledge that was at instant command. Of a calm, sunny, amiable disposition and a ready wit he was a delightful companion, a man of pure character and unimpeachable integrity.

He died at Newfields February 22, 1880, and his wife February 13, 1900. Both Doctor and Mrs. Brodhead were buried with their three sons in the Congressional cemetery, Washington, D. C.

Amos Paul was the third son of Nathaniel Paul, a millwright who came early in 1800 from Eliot, Me., where his ancestors had lived since the middle of the seventeenth century, and settled in what is now Newfields, where he married Mary, daughter of Dr. John and Elizabeth (Shute) Marsters. He was born April 29, 1810. He remained at home attending school till 1827, when owing to the death of his father he was thrown upon his own resources, and apprenticed himself to James Derby of Exeter, where he stayed for five years, learning the cabinet maker's trade. He then returned to Newfields and went into the foundry of Drake, Paul & Co., as a pattern maker.

Amos Paul

At the end of two years with three associates he purchased the foundry, and was chosen its president. The first year being somewhat unsatisfactory, Mr. Paul suggested that the entire management of the company should be given into his hands for one year, which was done, with the result that the foundry was well established and dividends soon began to be paid. It was burned; but was immediately rebuilt which was due to Mr. Paul's energy and strong will, for none of the insurance was ever paid.

In 1846 The Swamscot Machine Company was incorporated by Mr. Paul, the management of the two companies being in his hands. By 1865 the Machine Company had absorbed and purchased the foundry, and constant additions were made to the plant which was located near the river. Two hundred and fifty to three hundred men were employed and the village had the stir and bustle of a prosperous place. Mills which were fast being put up in that part of the country caused an ever-increasing demand for machinery, which gave The Swamscot Machine Company all the business they could do. They manufactured various kinds of machinery as well as boilers, engines and wrought-iron pipe, and from this kind of pipe small fortunes were made, this company being one of the last in New England to manufacture it.

Mr. Paul was for nearly fifty years, president, agent, treasurer and the controlling power of the company, which stood in the front ranks of the early New England manufacturies. In addition to these duties he was for twenty-six years a director in the Boston & Maine Railroad to which he gave more or less time. An early Abolitionist, and later a staunch Republican, Mr. Paul was a presidential elector in 1868. He also served his town as representative, and he had its interests ever at heart. It was largely due to his encouragement and help that the Universalist church was built, and he was always one of its liberal supporters.

Mr. Paul lived in the village on a farm which with his garden was his chief recreation. He was very hospitable and every one was warmly welcomed at his house.

Mr. Paul died at his home January 31, 1896.

His first wife, whom he married December, 1836, was Mary A., daughter of Moses Randlet of Epping, N. H. Their three children were Mary, Amos and Charles R., all of whom are deceased. Mrs. Paul died May, 1860.

His second wife was Harriet A, daughter of Thomas Randlet, of Newburyport, who died April 13, 1894, leaving two children Isabel and Harriet.

Green Clark Fowler was born in Newfields February 27, 1823, son of John Cutts and Mary W. (Nutter) Fowler. He came of an old, highly honored and honorable English ancestry, and represented the eighth generation of the Fowler family in this country. He acquired his early education in the schools of Newfields. In 1849 he entered the employ of the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad, and by his industry, energy and manifest capability worked his way up to the position of assistant road master, residing meanwhile in Raymond.

Mr. Fowler married September 25, 1859, Sarah M. Hall, who was born in Lee, September 25, 1825, and died August 25, 1877. She was a descendant of the Hall family so prominent in early Newfields affairs. He married (2) Ellen A. Locke of Newfields November 1, 1882.

On account of physical disabilities Mr. Fowler retired from active business in 1873. Soon after his second marriage he returned to his native town, spending the remainder of his days in comfortable leisure.

His second wife died in May, 1893, and he, December 1, 1902, leaving one son, James E., who was born in Raymond June 17, 1861, and married in Philadelphia December 31, 1895, Elizabeth C. Zingraf, a native of Germany, and has since resided in Newfields.

William Robinson Hobbs was the third child of Robinson and Lavinia (Hale) Hobbs, and was born in Norway, Me., June 3, 1823. His mother was the daughter of Major Elijah Hale, a descendant of Hatevil Hale, brother of Deacon John Hale of Dover. His father was the third son of Amos Hobbs, who had seen considerable service in the continental army, and at the close of the Revolutionary War, emigrated from Hopkinton, Mass., to Maine. He stopped in Falmouth for a time, but soon removed to Gray. In 1786 he, with four others, began the settlement of the town of Norway. The first year he cleared some land and built a house and the next spring he and his young wife moved into it. She was the daughter of Ezekiel Cushing who settled in Falmouth, now Portland, early in the eighteenth century and held many offices under the colonial government.

The early life of the subject of this sketch was that of the ordinary New England boy of his day. In the summer he worked on his father's farm and in the winter attended the district school. Later he attended the private school of Rev. Samuel Cobb who was famous as an instructor in that part of Maine seventy years ago.

After completing his course Mr. Hobbs taught school for a few years and was a very successful teacher, but as he intended to engage in business he removed to Andover, Mass., in 1845, and entered the employ of Davis & Furber with whom he learned the machinist's trade. He remained in Andover several years. In 1851 Mr. Hobbs went to Durham, N. H., and opened a machine shop of his own. His business was the manufacture of steel spindles for cotton and woolen mills. He was successful from the first and for more than thirty years was engaged in making spindles for many of the New England mills.

After twenty years of business in Durham, in 1872 he removed to this town where he continued the manufacture of spindles until failing health compelled him to retire from business.

He married December 16, 1852, Dolly Collins Hale of Athens, Me. She was the daughter of Andrew Hale, a lineal descendant of Deacon John Hale of Dover, and Dolly Collins, a lineal descendant of Quaker John Collins of Salisbury, Mass. They resided in Durham until Mr. Hobbs removed his business to this town. Two daughters were born to them in Durham—Edna Adelaide who married George S. Paul and lives in this town, and Bertha Janette who married John E. Young and lived in Exeter, N. H., where she died August 24, 1906.

Mr. Hobbs died April 28, 1894, and his wife January 1, 1907. Mr. Hobbs was a life-long Republican. He represented the town in the legislature in 1879. His marked characteristics were his business judgment and industry which made him one of the substantial citizens of the town, his ingrained integrity and dignity which made him respected by all who knew him, and his kindness and sociability which made him a good citizen and neighbor. He also possessed that indefinable substance which gives weight to a man's simplest utterance, and makes him the wise counselor and valued friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs were life-long Universalists and generous supporters of their church, but their interests were not limited to their church. They were always ready to help any cause calculated to promote the public welfare. They were great readers and enjoyed traveling. Their home was to them the happiest of all places.

Charles E. Smith, youngest son of Daniel R. and Deborah (Wiggin) Smith, was born January 5, 1831, in Newfields on the Piscassic farm which had been the home of several generations of his ancestors, and there he spent his boyhood. Later he became interested and active in local politics, and held many of the minor town offices. He was tax collector, 1859, and representative, 1868. For several years he was proprietor of the "Shute House," Newfields village, and later of the "Kimball House," Dover. He served as state senator from the Dover District, 1879-80. Returning to Newfields a few years later, he conducted the "Elm House" for a time, then retired to his farm in Piscassic where he passed the remaining years of his life.

Mr. Smith was a regular attendant, and frequently speaker, at meetings of the Rockingham County Republican Club and other political gatherings. He attended as delegate sixteen Republican county conventions, and presided over more than one. He was a member of the school board for ten years, and was for many years moderator of Newfields, a position for which he was unusually well qualified, and died in office.

He was an enthusiastic member of the Grange subordinate and Pomona, and had a wide acquaintance and many friends.

He married December, 1865, A. Augusta, daughter of Jonathan and Sally (Neal) Burley, and died at his home April 30, 1909. His wife died March 31, 1903, leaving no children.

Dr. Albert H. Varney, son of Calvin and Eliza (Nowell) Varney, was born in North Berwick, Me., March 27, 1836. His parents on both sides were descendants from reputable English families. His mother, Eliza Nowell, was a daughter of Mark Nowell, Esq., whose ancestors came to this country early in the sixteenth century, settling in York County, Maine, where many of his descendants are now living.

Doctor Varney was educated at the Phillips School in Boston, and Berwick Academy in South Berwick, Me. He studied medicine with the skilled and then celebrated Dr. Moses Sweat of Parsonsfield, Me., and was graduated from the Medical Department of Harvard University, and later took a post-graduate course at the Baltimore (Md.) Medical College. He began the practice of medicine in Chicago, Ill., where he remained one year, and in January, 1860, came to New Hampshire and settled in South Newmarket, the present Newfields, and has resided here all his professional life. He soon acquired an extensive and lucrative practice in this and surrounding towns, and established a reputation as one of the leading physicians in Rockingham County, for several years having an office in Exeter where he had a lucrative business among its leading citizens. When the Cottage Hospital was founded he was among its earliest supporters, and from its opening has served on its staff of physicians. Although largely occupied with his professional duties he has yet found time for extensive reading, and has taken an active part in all things pertaining to the interest of the town. Broad and progressive, he has always been identified with the Republican party in politics, and has been chosen at various times to discharge the duties of important public trusts which he has faithfully done. He has filled the position of notary public twenty years, justice of the peace and quorum thirty-five years, town clerk for twenty consecutive years, member of the board of selectmen three years, chairman of the board of health ten years, superintending school committee seven years, and represented the town in the legislature of 1871. He was an industrious legislator, serving as chairman of the special committee on the bill to regulate the sale of medicines and poisons. He was commissioned October 2, 1867, assistant surgeon of the second regiment of New Hampshire militia and served three years.

From his character one would expect to find Doctor Varney in accord with the feeling of universal brotherhood, and we find him not only a member of the Rising Sun Lodge, No. 47, A.F. and A.M., but also a member of Fraternity Lodge, No. 56, I.O.O.F., in which he was a charter member, and has occupied the highest position.

Doctor Varney is a good representative of his profession, and one of the active, successful men of Newfields. In January, 1857, he was married to Miss Olive J. Fernald, daughter of Hercules Nelson Fernald and Melinda Bracket Chadbourne whose ancestors came from England in the sixteenth century and settled in Berwick, Me. They have three children—Isabella J., born July 19, 1858, wife of the late Daniel C. Wiggin, one of Newfields' staunch citizens; Ida Alice, born August 1, 1864, wife of James Stuart Ward of Wytheville, Va.; and Edith Charles, born August 31, 1870, a prominent physician of Lynn, Mass.

H. Jenness Paul was born in South Newmarket, now Newfields, September 23, 1839, the youngest of ten children of Samuel and Martha (Tarlton) Paul. His father was born in Eliot, Me., September 7, 1789, and died in South Newmarket September 3, 1878. His mother was born in Newmarket April 18, 1796, and died February 19, 1883. His paternal grandparents were Amos and Sally (Dixon) Paul who were born and died in Eliot, dates unknown. His maternal grandparents were Samuel Tarlton, born in Newmarket December 11, 1769, and died in the same house in which he was born July 10, 1855, and Jerusha Hopkins born in Brewster, Mass., July 16, 1774, and died July 3, 1854. She was a lineal descendant of Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower.

The subject of this sketch April 2, 1855, entered the employ of the Swamscot Machine Company as an apprentice, and at the expiration of his term of service attended the Putnam Free School of Newburyport, Mass., for a year. He enlisted in Company A, Eleventh New Hampshire Volunteers August 13 and left for the seat of war September 11, 1862. He re-enlisted October 15, 1862, in the band of the Second Brigade, Second Division Ninth Artillery Company and was mustered out June 4, 1865, returning home June 11.

He married September 23, 1865, Mattie B. Smith, born May 12, 1845, and died January 29, 1900. She was the daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Burley) Smith of Beech Hill, Exeter, N. H. Two children were born of this marriage, a son born July 6, 1869, who died in infancy, and Edith, born September 6, 1871, who married September 1, 1892, Charles S. Strout, born in Winterport, Me., November 16, 1859, son of Rev. Silas and Nancy (Moore) Strout. Three children have been born to them—a son who died in infancy, Edwin M., born July 30, 1895, and died August 7, 1907, and Elizabeth P., born November 25, 1899, and died December 2, 1904.

Mr. Strout was a teacher in the Biddeford (Me.) schools for sixteen years and is now a florist in the same city.

The subject of this sketch was elected March, 1872, a member of the board of selectmen and in March, 1873, was chosen representative to the legislature. He was chosen March, 1884, town clerk and resigned after a service of twenty-three years. He was appointed postmaster March 28, 1899, and resigned January 15, 1907. He is a member of the G. A. R. and the local lodge of Odd Fellows, and a Republican in politics.

George Edward Hilton, son of John and Sally Hilton, was born in Lynn, Mass., June 13, 1841. He is a worthy descendant of a noble ancestry, the ninth generation from Edward Hilton, the first settler of Newfields and vicinity, and inherits many of the excellent traits of preceding generations. He was educated in the public schools of Lynn, graduating from its High School.

Mr. Hilton is a veteran of the Civil War having served in 1862–63 as second lieutenant in Company I, Eighth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers.

From 1866–84 he was a successful business man in Chicago. He received the highest Masonic honors and was prominent in political life. In 1884 he returned to Lynn and resides in the house in which he was born. He continues his interest in Masonic affairs and is also deeply interested in military organizations, and a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston. He has a fine physique, a cultivated mind, is affable in manner, and a lover of the beautiful in nature and art. He takes much pride and pleasure in the possession of the homestead of the first Edward Hilton, which portion of the original grant has not passed from the Hilton name in nearly three hundred years. During the warmer months he spends much of his time in Newfields, beautifying and decorating the ancestral home which he has made an interesting museum.

Mr. Hilton has never married. He is much interested in the publication of this history, toward which he has given generous financial aid.

The family name is given only once. In the female line the surname of the husband is appended to the name of every child.

Heavy faced figures indicate that they are to appear again in a parenthesis followed by the same name with descendants.

Figures in a parenthesis appearing at the end of an individual sketch indicate the page in the Narrative where additional facts of the person are given.

Some of the family genealogies, we regret to say, are very meager and unsatisfactory, but as given are correct as far as known to the compiler. Where no representative of the family is now living in the vicinity, the needed information cannot be supplied.

Two numbers connected by a hyphen indicate occurrence of name on inclusive pages.

AMES.

The Ames place is now occupied by Smith Sanborn. The old house was a garrison, two story building with two rooms on the floor, and two chambers, and stood near Piscassic River and the old mast-way, where the neglected graves of the household may be seen.

1. Daniel¹ Ames was a husbandman, and lived on Piscassic River. His Will mentioning him as "aged & well stricken in years & in a Weak habit of body," was dated Dec. 24, 1753, and probated Jan. 30, 1754. It makes his sons Nathaniel² and Jacob² executors, and gives to them the homestead. (111). Children:

2. Simon² witnessed, May 3, 1740, to a deed of land from Daniel Ames to Nathaniel Ames; was of Canterbury as early as 1749. His Will was dated Dec. 14, 1786, probated May 13, 1793, and mentions daughters, Mercy³ Heath, Elizabeth³ Gordon, and Mary³ Ladd, and grandson, Simon Ames³ Heath, who is executor.

3. Samuel², witnessed, Nov. 22, 1747, to a deed from Edward Hilton to Daniel Ames; was of Canterbury in 1749. His Will signed June 22, 1793, and probated May 18, 1803, mentions wife, daughters, Sarah² Merrill and Hannah² Bean, and sons, Samuel³, and David³ who is appointed executor.

4. Daniel², husbandman, received, Nov. 15, 1744, from Nathaniel Ames deed of land on Piscassic River; was of Canterbury, 1750. The Journal of the House of Representatives says, "Fryday Jan^y 18, 1765. The petition of Walter Bryant in behalf of Daniel Ames for bringing Mary Flood from Canterbury, who was tryed for her life & acquitted on the supposed murder of a child, with his attendance &c. of the Acc^t therewith presented, Amount'^s to £15-2, old tenor, being read, Voted, That there be allowed twenty five pounds New Tenor in full for said petition & Acc^t thereto annexed & p^d. to the s^d Daniel Ames on his order, out of money in the Treasury for contingencies."¹

5. Nathaniel² bought of Daniel Ames, May 3, 1740, 150 acres of land on Piscassic River; sold land on Piscassic River to Daniel Ames Nov. 15, 1744; petitioned for Newfields bridge, Nov. 21, 1746; with David Ames bought, April 17, 1753, land joining the Ames possession and the mill grant line of Charles Rundlett; and with Jacob, petitioned for a bridge at Newfields, Nov. 25, 1755; received, Dec. 11, 1758, of Josiah and Sarah Hilton, administrators on the estate of David Ames, a quitclaim deed of land bought of Charles Rundlett, April 17, 1753; sold Jacob Ames 10 acres of land in two pieces, Dec. 11, 1758. The name of Nathaniel Ames Jr., appeared on records 1758, who was awarded damages 1766 in the laying out of Hall's mill road; and sold April 15, 1775, to John Burleigh "all my Farm whereon I now live containing ninety Acres more or less, with the Buildings thereon." Nathaniel Ames 2d, was credited for labor, with other Newmarket patriots, in building fire rafts on the Pascataqua at Newington, Oct. 22, 1775; with Nathaniel Ames Jr. signed the Association Test, July 12, 1776; and sold John Ames, Aug. 28, 1782, "all my Farm whereon I now live containing ninety acres, with the buildings thereon."

6. Jacob², with his wife, Sarah, sold to her brother James Hersey, Dec. 7, 1743, all their right in the estate of their "Hon^d Father Peter Hersey," by estimation about 60 acres, "within y^e Tract of Land Commonly Called & known by y^e name of Moses Gilman's Six hundred acre grant;" with Nathaniel, petitioned for a bridge over Squamscot River, Nov. 21, 1746; bought of Winthrop Hilton, Oct. 23, 1752, ten acres of land that said Hilton bought of Thomas Haley; purchased of David Lyford, May 30, 1753, land adjoining his own and that of Walter Neal on Piscassic River; bought land of Nathaniel Ames Dec. 11, 1758, and the same year sold to Andrew Burleigh the land he had bought of Winthrop Hilton, Oct. 23, 1752; purchased 12 acres of land of Joseph Young, April 21, 1763. Hall's mill road passed through his land 1766. He refused to sign the Association Test, July 12, 1776; was of Newmarket and sold to James Hersey of Sanbornton, Aug. 22, 1786, "the ten acre Lot on the Great Hill so called in Newmarket, it being the Land I had by deed from Brother James Hersey of Newmarket;" died about 1786, leaving a son Daniel ¹. His son, Jacob³ Ames Jr., m. Mehitable Goodin, Aug. 1, 1799.

7. David² purchased of Richard Smith and his wife, Mary, daughter of Richard Mattoon, Dec. 11, 1749, land "att or upon a Place called Smarts Crike In Newmarket," and sold the same land to Walter Weeks, Jan. 9, 1753; with Nathaniel Ames, purchased of Charles Rundlett, April 17, 1753, land adjoining the "Ames Possession." He died intestate, Dec. 24, 1753, leaving widow, Sarah, to whom his father wills the easterly end of his house so long as she remains a widow. His interest in the last purchase was sold to Nathaniel Ames, in 1758, by Josiah Hilton and Sarah Hilton his wife, who were appointed Feb. 23, 1757, administrators of the estate.

8. Anna² m. ——— Powell. 9. Lydia² m. Charles Rundlett.

10. Mary² was given by her father's will a legacy and a room in the westerly end of his dwelling house so long as she "lives single."

(3). Samuel² (Daniel¹) was born in Newfields, Feb. 13, 1723; settled in Canterbury, near the center meeting house, about 1749; moved to that part of the town called the "Borough," 1791; married about 1744, Hannah Dolloff, who was born Jan. 18, 1728, and died Canterbury Jan. 23, 1804; and died, Canterbury, Jan. 16, 1803. Children:

11. Samuel³ b. May 12, 1745; m. Jane Gerrish.

12. Sarah³ b. March 25, 1747; m. Laban Morrill.

13. David³ b. May 27, 1749; m. Phebe Hoyt.

14. Hannah³ b. June 23, 1754; m. Benjamin Heath.¹

15. BRAY.

The Bray family was early in town.

Richard Bray received from Exeter a grant of 30 acres of land, Oct. 10, 1664, adjoining a grant Bray purchased of Samuel Dudley, and was laid out March 10, 1714, to Jeremiah Gilman who had obtained it by purchase. The deed describes it as "beginning about six score rod from the salt water at a popel tree marked on three sides, from thence Running west forty Rods to a Red oak tree, etc."

The old Bray cellar is still pointed out at Bray's brook on the Newfields road to Exeter beyond the "Haley place." Tradition says goodwife Bray was a witch. Aged people tell us how they used to run quickly over Bray's brook of an evening for fear the old witch would catch them.

The family has long since disappeared from the town.

24. Samuel⁴ b. Oct. 25, 1749; m. Mary Pickering.

25. Capt. Peter⁴ b. Jan. 10, 1752 at Coventry, R. I.; was witness to a deed from Joseph Thomas to Samuel Baker, Jan. 7, 1768; selectman of New Durham, 1783; having "served as a Captain in Col. Stephen Peabody's Regiment in Rhode Island in the year 1778" petitioned June 6, 1785, to have the depreciation of his pay made up to him, Col. Thomas Tash signing the petition in his behalf; was murdered by Elisha Thomas at New Durham, Feb. 4, 1788.

The circumstances attending the murder were as follows:

A number of persons had assembled at the tavern of a Mr. Randall. Among others present were Col. Tash, Capt. Peter Drowne, a son of Col. Tash and Elisha Thomas. Thomas getting into a dispute with one of those present, took a stone in his fist, and was dealing his blows with a great deal of violence, when Captain Drowne sided with the inhuman sight stept between them, and taking Thomas to one side of the room endeavored by soft words to cool down his resentment and dissuade him from continuing such conduct, but instead of stopping Thomas drew a knife and plunged it into Drowne's breast, Drowne dying within a few hours. Thomas threatened death to any who should approach him, and wounding several times the son of Col. Tash who endeavored to seize him, made his escape, but was soon apprehended and lodged in Dover jail. In due time he was tried, convicted, sentenced to death, and was hung at Dover, June 4, 1788. A previous endeavor to escape was unsuccessful.

Some days after his committal to jail, his wife taking the youngest of her six children in her arms to one of the neighbors, set out for Dover to visit her husband. During the night following the eldest of her five other children, a boy, was awakened by the falling of a board on his bed, and saw that the house was in flames. Springing up instantly he attempted to save his four brothers and sisters, but was unsuccessful and they perished in the flames, he only escaping to tell the tale.

But misfortunes did not come singly. As Mrs. Thomas was returning in a sleigh from Dover to New Durham, the horses took fright and running against another sleigh, the "tongue came with such force against the unhappy woman's side as to break three of her ribs, and it was with the greatest difficulty she escaped being torn in pieces."

(24). Dea. Samuel⁴ (Rev. Samuel,³ Solomon,² Leonard¹) was born in Providence, R. I., Oct. 25, 1749; married Mary, daughter of Capt. Thomas and Dorothy (Stover) Pickering, who was sister of Capt. Thomas of Revolutionary fame and of Olive who married George Jerry Osborne; settled in Portsmouth; was a noted patriot of the Revolution; lived on State St., and kept shop opposite Long wharf; his connection with and version of the capture of Fort William and Mary, Dec. 1774, gives great credit to Capt. Thomas Pickering, his brother-in-law, Maj. John Langdon and about 40 other patriots of Portsmouth, all the powder captured passing through the hands of Langdon and himself.

In 1775, the ship of war Scarborough commanded by Capt. Barclay was in the lower harbor. The captain was accustomed to seize American fishing craft, and send a boat ashore for provisions for his crew and the King's forces at Boston. Captain Pickering greatly resented this action. One day borrowing Drowne's musket, which Mrs. Drowne, his sister, handed him, he stationed himself behind a pile of lumber on the wharf with a companion, Samuel Hutchins, to hold his ammunition and ram-rod, and blazed away at the advance boat. The musket did good execution. Though the boat proceeded on her trip that day, this much is certain, the Scarborough's provision boat never repeated the attempt to visit the Portsmouth market. Captain Pickering died unmarried in command of the Hampden, a privateer of 20 years, March 1779, aged 32.

When in 1775, Gov. John Wentworth left his seat on Pleasant St., he entrusted the care of his place to Dea. Drowne, and it was afterwards recovered by the Wentworth family. Dea. Drowne signed the Association Test at Portsmouth Aug. 14, 1776; was on the committee of twelve efficient citizens of Portsmouth to receive Gen. Washington, Oct. 31 to Nov. 4, 1789, the General coming from Newburyport, spending four days, and leaving by way of Exeter; died Aug. 7, 1815. HILL.

1. John¹ Hill was born about 1625, and was at Dover in 1649, where he was taxed as a resident of "Oyster River," 1649-72; received grants of land from the town, 1652, 1653, 1655 and 1656; was grand juryman, 1668. His wife was Elizabeth ———.

2. Samuel² (John¹) was probably born at Oyster River about, 1659; married Oct. 28, 1680, Elizabeth, daughter of William and Mary Williams of Oyster River; bought land in Eliot, Me., 1686, and settled there. His Will dated Aug. 28, 1713, was probated March 28, 1723.

3. Benjamin³ (Samuel², John¹) was born July 2, 1703; married Jan. 12, 1726, Mary, daughter of Andrew and Catherine (Furbush) Neal.

4. Gen. James⁴ (Benjamin³, Samuel², John¹) was born at Kittery, Me., Dec. 20, 1734; married (1) Jan. 1, 1761, Sarah, daughter of Dr. Edmund, grandson of Tristram the emigrant from Brixton Parish, England, and Shuah (Bartlett) Coffin, who was born July 1, 1742, and died Feb. 3, 1774, (2) June 20, 1774, Mrs. Sarah, widow of John, son of John and Sarah (Hall) Burleigh, and daughter of Capt. Joseph and Sarah (Jewett) Hoyt of Stratham, who was born March 19, 1747, and died Dec. 10, 1789, (3) April 6, 1790, Mrs. Martha, widow (1) of Thomas Brackett and (2) of Col. John Folsom of Stratham, and daughter of Thomas Wiggin, who was born, 1729, and died June 7, 1812; settled in Newmarket in 1761, and became a prominent citizen, taking an active part in the civil and military affairs of the town all his life. It is not certain where he first lived, but in 1778 he purchased of Bradstreet Doe the "Neck" farm so called, lying between Lubberland road and the shore of Great Bay, recently the home of the late Almon R. Smith; purchased of his son-in-law, John Moody Smith, "the parsonage" farm, 1786, giving in payment the "Neck" farm, where his son-in-law, John Moody Smith, and his brother Joseph Hall Smith afterwards lived. This parsonage farm was located just north of Rockingham Junction, east of the main road from Newfields to Newmarket, which was the homestead of Rev. John Moody during his life in Newmarket, and given in his Will, dated 1778, to John Moody Smith, his namesake. The "parsonage," a fine, substantial, dignified colonial mansion, was probably built soon after Mr. Moody's settlement over the first church, in 1728, and is still standing in good condition, and deserves to be carefully preserved because of its association with the history of the town. Gen. Hill added to this estate land adjoining bought of Valentine Hill, Richard Perkins, and his sister, Ann (Perkins) Brackett, Eliphalet Mighels and others, till he had a farm reaching from the County road to the shore of Great Bay. In his Will all his surviving children received portions of this large estate, the homestead going to his youngest son, Amos Shepherd Hill, who disposed of the same to Capt. Charles Treadwell, and is now owned by the Boston and Maine railroad. Gen. Hill died Aug. 22, 1811, and lies buried in the old cemetery just south of Rockingham Junction, as also his second wife. PACKER.

Captain Packer was granted by the town of Dover, April 11, 1694, with Jonathan Woodman, James Davis, Joseph Meader and James Thomas, "the hole streame of Lampreh River for the erecting of a sawmill or mills, that is to say the one half to Capt. Thomas Packer, the other half to the other fower men befoure mentioned"; also received a grant of fifty acres of land "on the south side of the aforesaid falls, or elsewhere, for his conveniency, leaving eight rods of land by the river for a highway"; sold this grant and mill privilege Dec. 1, 1711, to Philip Chesley of Oyster River.

The name Packers Falls, originally applied to a series of falls, has also been given to the southwest part of Durham on both sides of the river, extending to the adjoining towns of Lee and Newmarket.

Gen. John Sullivan's mills at Packers Falls are spoken of December, 1774, when Eleazer Bennett of the Fort William and Mary expedition was in his employ.

In 1774 John Adams, afterwards president, in a letter, said that John Sullivan had "a fine stream of water with an excellent cornmill, sawmill, fulling-mill, scythe-mill and others, six mills in all, which are both his delight and profit."

In the Packers Falls district once stood the David Davis garrison, the Pendergast garrison which is now occupied by John H. Scott, and the Joshua Woodman garrison. Col. Thomas Tash lived there.

In 1900 an electric light plant was erected to furnish heat, light and power for Newmarket and Durham.

Packers Creek and Packers Point in Greenland were named for Col. Thomas Packer.

The Paul brothers with their sons and grandsons added much to the business interests of Newfields. Temple, Nathaniel and Samuel were house carpenters, millwrights and master mechanics. About 1830, an iron foundry was established by Rider, Drake, and Temple Paul. In 1834 the Newfields Iron Foundry Company was formed with Amos Paul, president, George O. Hilton, treasurer and manager, Amos Paul, John B. Rider and George G. Skinner, directors. The company made castings for cotton and woolen mills, and at one time did a large business in manufacturing stoves. Their works were entirely destroyed by fire, but rebuilt at once.

In June, 1846, the Swamscot Machine Company was incorporated, consisting of Amos Paul, Walter E. Hewes and Seneca C. Kennard. A boiler-making department was established under the superintendency of Patrick Quinn. In 1865 this corporation purchased the entire interest of the Iron Foundry and united both branches of business under one management. Amos Paul was continued agent, and William M. Paul, treasurer. The company was prosperous, employing an average of 260 men, with a monthly pay-roll of $10,000—more than $10 per capita to every inhabitant of the town. It manufactured stationary and portable steam engines, locomotive, marine and tubular boilers, steam boxes for print works, plain and galvanized wrought iron pipes, steam and gas fittings of all kinds, together with several specialties or patents controlled by the company. The works of the corporation covered about ten acres on both sides of the Boston and Maine Railroad, with a frontage and wharf on Squamscot River.

TUFTS.

1. Rev. Thomas¹ Tufts was born in Devonshire County, England, and in early life emigrated to Boston, Mass.; commenced an academical course of study, and graduated at Harvard college, 1701; became a clergyman, and was ordained in Boston, preaching there till his death, in 1725, or according to the Harvard catalogue, 1733; left a "name free from reproach." Among his children were:

2. Henry²; m. ——— Wedgewood.

3. Thomas² probably; was witness, Feb., 1740; ensign and acting quartermaster in the N. H. regiment under Col. Samuel Moore, employed in the reduction of Louisburg and adjacent territories, from Feb. 13, to Sept. 6, 1745, at two pounds per month wages.

(2). Henry² (Rev. Thomas¹) married ——— Wedgewood, who later in life was called "an old witch woman"; served an apprenticeship with one Whitcher, a tailor of Boston, till 21; removed to Newmarket, and after remaining two or three years, to Lee, where after a time he purchased a small farm by means of which, and his trade as tailor, he acquired an honorable livelihood; petitioned Nov. 18, 1765, for the division of Durham and formation of the parish of Lee; with his son Henry, signed the Association Test in Lee, 1776; died, aged 75, two years after his wife, both of whom left behind "the testimony of a good confession." Children:

4. Thomas³; received and settled on the homestead; is mentioned with his house, 1779; assessed in Lee, 1787.

5. Eliphalet³; served in the Revolutionary army, and was at "Soldiers Fortune," near West Point, 1778. 6. Child.³

7. Henry³ b. Newmarket, June 24, 1748; m. 1770, Lydia Bickford of Durham, some years his senior, but a very notable and discreet woman contributing more to the support of the family than her husband; moved to his home beyond Newmarket Plains towards Lee Hook; was famous in his day and in his field, which extended from Canada to Virginia, for a reprobate life under many disguises and marvellous escapes, bearing assumed names, appearing as rake, tramp, bully wrestler, burglar, horse-thief, freebooter, bounty-jumper, fortune-teller, Indian doctor, religious enthusiast, and New Light preacher; nearly a score of times in a score and a half of years was sentenced to prisons, dungeons, and chains at Falmouth and York, Me., Dover, Exeter, eight times, Newburyport, Ipswich, Salem and Castle William, Mass.; was condemned, June, 1793, unjustly he says, for burglary and sentenced to be hung Aug. 14, 1793; with wife, a juryman, ladies of Ipswich and students of Harvard, solicited reprieve of Gov. Samuel Adams, but as time passed receiving no answer the suspense became terrible; was asked to sell his body and publish his memoir; his coffin was made, his grave dug, and the sheriffs appeared ready to execute the penalty, and the hour of four passed with no word from the governor, but on Sept. 18, his punishment was commuted to imprisonment for life, and he passed five wretched years at Castle William in Boston Harbor. In 1798 the fortress was ceded to the National Government, and he was removed to Salem, whence he soon escaped, and joined his first wife and family at Lemington, Me.

In 1771 he left his wife and child, and married Sally, daughter of Enoch Judd of Claremont, whom he abandoned within a year and returning to Lee found his "first wife yet held possession of the castle." In 1786 under the fictitious name of Gideon Garland he married Abigail Kennison, a young widow of Stratham, who followed his fortunes for nearly 10 years, and by whom he had four children. She afterwards married in Vermont a man of respectable fortune. He died in Lemington, Me., in some measure a reformed man. His descendants have been among the most respected and influential citizens of the place. He had nine children, the oldest named Simeon.

Among those victimized in Newmarket and vicinity were "Stevens, a steady old farmer," Peter Folsom, James Burleigh, Elisha Thomas, Dea. Tash, Daniel Chapman, Smith Gilman, Levi Chapman and Lt. John Burleigh.

Note. The title of his book is "A Narrative of the Life, Adventures, Travels and Sufferings of Henry Tufts, now residing at Lemington, in the District of Maine. In Substance compiled from his mouth. In Three Books; pages 366. Preface VIII pages. Dover, N. H. Printed by Samuel Bragg, jun., 1807." The story of Col. T. W. Higginson's "New England Vagabond" in Harper's Magazine of March, 1888, is founded on the vagaries of Henry Tuft's autobiography.

WEDGEWOOD.

John¹ Wedgewood was one among the 14 names of the 24 men from Ipswich, Mass., to unite with the Salem boys in April 1637, under Capt. Trask and march against the Indians. From the Diary of Robert Perkins we learn that John Wedgewood and Thomas Sherman gave chase to a set of Indians and drove them to a swamp. Both men were wounded and came back with scars, and the satisfaction of having driven back the enemy.

On Oct. 1638, and again Sept. 3, 1639, John Wedgewood is sentenced "to bee set in the stocks at Ipswich." His Will was dated Nov. 24, 1654, and probated April 10, 1655. Children:

In keeping so closely to the "early settlers" and "older families" in the foregoing genealogies, it may seem to some that we have discriminated against many intelligent and valuable citizens, who, for a longer or shorter period, have been active and prominent in the social, business and political life of the town. They came as strangers, attracted by opportunities for employment or engaging in business, some becoming real estate owners, buying or building homes. They gave valuable service to the town in various offices, some representing us in the legislature of the state. They have been familiar figures upon our streets, and their families have been conspicuous and useful in social circles, in our schools and our churches. But as the prosperity of the place waned, they left us for new homes and larger opportunities. A few still linger, and in rare instances the children of the third generation are with us yet. They are still remembered and accorded their worthy meed of honor.

It is a matter of regret that the genealogy of some families is so incomplete, but the great difficulty, or impossibility, of procuring the necessary information must be plead in justification.

ADDENDA.

By some oversight the following person was omitted from the list of New-fields' soldiers and is appended here:

Charles Page Kimball, son of Nathaniel Folsom and Susan (Libby) Kimball, was born Oct. 24, 1836. During the civil war he served three years in the Navy on the "Quaker City" which participated in several battles. He was honorably discharged, and died a few weeks later, Aug. 4, 1865.

Also for a like reason the postmasters since the incorporation of the town in 1849, were not included in the list of the various officers, and are here appended:

John T. Locke, 1849-61.

Albert S. Freese, 1861-68.

Albert Field, 1868-84.

Thomas Leddy, 1884-88.

Thomas Leddy, 1892-98.

H. Jenness Paul, 1898-1908.

Ernest S. Neal, 1908- .
